if we had to depend on this press to print the Year Book of Motion Pictures, it would take about five years of constant work. Our fast automatic presses do the job in one month. In this age of industrial achievement we are prone to overlook the great handicaps under which man had to operate in the past.

On the Record

SINCE 1933, and again during 1952, it has been our privilege to make a sizeable number of motion pictures for Industry.

During the past year, for example, we produced one or more films for American Cancer Society, American Gas and Electric Company, American Telephone & Telegraph Company, Atlantic City Electric Company, Cast Iron Pipe Research Association, Elgin National Watch Company, Ethyl Corporation, Merck & Co., Inc., McGraw-Hill Book Company, Inc., National Board of Fire Underwriters, The Texas Company, U. S. Department of State, Air Force and Navy, and a considerable number of television commercials for N. W. Ayer & Son, Inc., Benton & Bowles, Inc., and Young & Rubicam, Inc.

In appraising the qualifications of a producing organization, no yardstick can take the place of the question, "What have you done?" It is on that basis that we solicit opportunities with prospective clients.

firm for the benefit of its dealers and distributors gathered in theaters in 17 cities during non-operating hours. The innovation signalized the first time theater television had been utilized coast to coast for industrial purposes.

How much importance the film industry attached to theater television as a means of promoting its fortunes was attested by its concerted effort to get the FCC to act on the request of the Motion Picture Association of America and the National Exhibitors Theater Television Committee for the assignment of exclusive TV channels. The first part of the hearings opened on Oct. 20. The second part got underway early this year. A decision was not anticipated for another year.

ABC-UPT Merged

The battle to win FCC approval of the merger of the American Broadcasting Co. and United Paramount Theaters was capped by victory early this year after interminable hearings. The consolidated companies took the name American Broadcasting-Paramount Theaters. Leonard Goldenson, president of UPT, was designated as head of AB-PT.

The question of live versus filmed television shows mounted in importance in 1952. It provided one of the most hotly contested issues of the year. The answer to the riddle of whether New York or Hollywood stood to become the television capital of the future was believed likely to govern the fate of the networks. The opinion was extensively held that the majority of television programs in the future would be on film, the figure most frequently quoted being 80 per cent. The growing trend toward filmed television programs was seen by the proponents of film as pointing in that direction.

More TV Film Makers

The heavy increase in the ranks of television film producers was offered as further indication of the way the wind was blowing. It was pointed out that only 78 regular producers of television films were in operation in 1951, while there were 160 in 1952.

Also cited as significant was the fact that more motion picture companies last year entered or planned to enter television film production via subsidiaries. Paramount Pictures was the chief of these. The company let it be known that early this year it would go in for the production of TV films through Paramount Television Productions, a wholly-owned subsidiary. It was announced the films actually would be turned out by Edward J. and Harry Lee Danziger.

Bing Crosby Enterprises established an outfit called Lancer Productions for the making of television films. George Bagnall and Associates came into being in Hollywood for the production and distribution of films for video. Pathe Television Corp. was set up by Pathe Industries for the purpose of financing and distributing syndicated film programs for television.

A deal for the production of 39 half-hour TV films to be sponsored by the Ford Motor Co. on NBC-TV was closed by Screen Gems, wholly-owned subsidiary of Columbia Pictures. Plans to establish a department for the production and distribution of films were made known by the Mutual Broadcasting System's TV network. Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., entered into an agreement with NBC to make 39 half-hour TV films in England. The deal was said to involve a consideration of $900,000.

Movietonews broke new ground by coming up with a newsreel for youngsters. The reel was intended for syndication by 20th-Fox. It appeared on TV for the first time in 10 cities under the sponsorship of the International Shoe Co.

Exhibs. Complain

Sales of films to television by motion picture companies drew denunciation in exhibitor circles as never before, with the voice of national Allied rising above that of all others. The strongest curses were reserved for Republic for selling to WCBS-TV the exclusive first-run video rights in New York to 104 features films. Some of the pictures were made after 1945. The deal was the biggest of its kind ever to be signed between a motion picture concern and a television outlet.

Eidophor Shown

The wraps were taken off the Swiss-born Eidophor theater TV system by 20th-Fox, which had obtained rights to it. Demonstrations of the system, into which CBS color had been incorporated, were staged here for important personalities and stockholders of the film company. These were followed by a showing for the members of the New York press. The system won unqualified endorsement. At the turn of the year General Electric was reported making headway on the engineering work essential to the production of the Eidophor equipment.

Last year also witnessed the demonstration of the first production model of the Simplex direct-view theater television sys-ter designed and manufactured by General Precision Laboratory. The system features a throw distance of as much as 80 feet for a picture measuring 25 by 19 feet. It is based on the Schmidt optical system.

Other developments in the field of equipment made news last year. One was the announcement of the Chromatic Television Laboratories, an affiliate of Paramount Pictures, that work on its tri-color video tube had progressed so far that only the controversy over the RCA and CBS color systems was keeping the tube from being placed in production and marketed.

Another development involving equipment had to do with the electronic tape recording system, which eliminates the use of film in the making of pictures for television. An electronic TV camera is employed in the system, which was claimed to represent an improvement over film and to effect economy in production costs.

Skiatron and International Telemeter Corp., the latter of which is owned 50 per cent by Paramount Pictures, found themselves compelled to put off until this year public tests of their pay-as-you-see television systems, known respectively as Subscriber-Vision and Telemeter. Skiatron was hampered by the disinclination of the film companies to make available to it product required for its tests.

Competition developed for Theater Network Television in November with the organization of an outfit called Teleconference, Inc. Up to then TNT had had the field exclusively to itself.

Autry Claim Rejected

The year produced several court decisions weighted with significance. In one Gene Autry's request for an injunction to prevent some 60 old horse operas of which he was the star from being licensed by Republic and Television Products, Inc., a subsidiary, for TV showing was rejected in Federal Court in Los Angeles on the ground the screen cowboy's stand was "untenable and unfair." The decision was appealed by Autry's counsel.

Another decision, this one also handed down in Federal Court in Los Angeles, had the effect of clearing up the status of residual video rights in pictures that are still being distributed to theaters by major film companies. Involved was a 1948 contract between United Artists and Nasser Brothers. Television distribution of pictures made initially for release by the major companies was held by the court not to be a "commercial practice" under the agreement.

Color In Offing

Prospects improved for color television early in the Summer when the National Production Authority relaxed the restrictions on its manufacture for theater and home use.

The first important use of theater television for an educational purpose occurred when theaters in 10 cities, among them New York, were hooked up to receive a civilian defense program.

The value of television in the promotion of motion pictures won greater recognition in 1952 when the film companies resorted to wider use of the medium for the merchandising of their product to the public.

At the beginning of 1953 plans for the establishment of a television and film production center were in an advanced stage of discussion between the Department of Commerce of the City of New York and private interests. There was talk of building on a 250-acre site in the New York metropolitan area, with the cost of the project estimated at $75,000,000.

Another contribution to the campaign to raise the importance of New York as a television production center was made with the formation of a motion picture and TV committee by the New York Film Board of Trade. The aim of the committee was to enlarge and strengthen the scope of television and film activities in the New York City area, particularly in the filming of TV shows.

CBS Television City had its opening in Hollywood. The multi-million-dollar video plant, covering 15 acres, was rated the largest and most modern in the world designed exclusively for TV. It was expected the project would cover 25 acres when completed.

In December the Du Mont Tele-Center opened on the site of the old Central Opera House in New York. It was recognized as one of the city's first major structures planned solely for television. The project was designed to integrate all phases of video production under a single roof and to assure efficient and economical production. It was announced by Du Mont that ultimately the Tele-Center would house all its programming, production and engineering activities and would be used for the origination of most of the network's shows.

"Great progress" in television around the world was reported in February of this year by the Department of Commerce, credit being given to American equipment and know-how. A video survey made by the department disclosed that 12 foreign governments had television in operation. They were listed as Argentina, Brazil, Canada, Cuba, Mexico, United Kingdom, Russia, France, Germany, Denmark, Dominican Republic and Venezuela. Nine others—Colombia, Belgium, Czechoslovakia, Italy, Monaco, Switzerland, Morocco, Thailand (Siam) and Japan—were found preparing to go on the air in the immediate future. An additional nine were reported making progress with experimental television. They comprised Uruguay, Finland, the Netherlands, Norway, Spain, Sweden, Turkey, Australia and Egypt.

THEATER TV: A YEAR OF GROWTH

By S. H. FABIAN

Chairman, National Exhibitors Theater Television Committee

THE YEAR 1952 witnessed the continued growth and development of theater television. From 36 installations in 23 cities, the medium has expanded to 97 theaters in 55 cities. This expansion of facilities was greatly stimulated by the program experimentation which was conducted in the course of the year.

The closed circuit telecasts of the fights—the two major championship fights of the year, Robinson-Maxim and Marciano-Walcott, were both televised to theaters — of course no longer fall in the category of the experimental. In this area, theater television has established itself as a medium which can contribute substantially to the gate of the major outdoor fights and to the theater box office as well. SRO was the general rule at both fights.

FABIAN

In the field of theater TV entertainment, the major experimental advance of the year came with the closed circuit telecast of the opera "Carmen" direct from the stage of the Metropolitan Opera House in New York on Dec. 11. While this event was not particularly successful financially, the audience reaction to the program, despite spotty reception and transmission, was enthusiastic.

I would say that this is the more important measure of success of the program because it shows that there is a market for these and similar events, particularly plays from the legitimate stage. It is not the ready-made market that we have found in boxing, but it can, with proper attention and care, be nurtured into a profitable audience. Here theater television stands out as a means of attracting the older and more sophisticated segments of the public to our theaters.

As a medium of selective communications for business anl government, theater television came of age in 1952. The Federal Civil Defense Administration Police Training Show which was televised to theaters in 10 cities on June 26, and the James Lees & Sons program of Dec. 8 demonstrated the efficacy of the medium and together give a good indication of the range of potential services which this medium can render.

With the above programs, theater television is gradually staking out a place for itself in our theater operations. With all of its merits, however, it still appears to us that this medium should properly be viewed mainly as an adjunct, albeit a profitable one, to our film operations. The promise for regular and frequent use of the medium at this point seems to rest mainly in the off hours usage by business, government and civic groups.

Not only can theater television render the community an invaluable and unique service, but the theater owners can reap much in the way of intangible as well as tangible benefits in the form of improved public relations. Moreover, as theater television establishes itself in this field of selective communications, the public will come to see that the area of conflict and competition between home TV and theater television is a relatively insignificant one.

The success of the fights and our first step with the opera, while taking us out of the experimental stage, introduces new problems as growth inevitably does. Thus far, we have charged increasing admission prices at the box office in order to cover the increasing high cost of the rights for the events. It is true that admission prices to fights fluctuate greatly with the quality of the attraction. It is true also that the scale for the opera on the road generally exceeds by far normal movie theater prices. Nevertheless, experience has shown that we have reached a price ceiling; in fact, we have already overpriced ourselves in some areas.

Our experience this year has highlighted certain technical deficiencies in our medium. Everyone knows by now—if there was ever any doubt—that our present inter-city facilities, using at best a four megacycle channel, do not serve the purpose of a quality picture on our large screens. If theater television is ever to develop its full potentialities, it must have the use of broader TV frequencies. This is the importance of the channel hearings before the FCC.

We must also have color. Many new areas of programming, musical comedies and the opera in the entertainment field, and even more in the business field—fashion shows, merchandising promotions, etc. — will be greatly enhanced through the addition of color. Both the RCA and the Eidophor demonstrations which were conducted in the course of the year showed that practical theater TV color systems are close at hand. We cannot afford to let the birth of color theater television suffer a prolonged gestation period.

In the meantime we must not sit back to await these further developments. Even within the present standards, much can be done to improve the quality of our television presentations. No steps in this direction should be overlooked. The novelty of the medium will not carry us forever.

THE TV-FILM PARTNERSHIP

By ROBERT E. KINTNER

President, American Broadcasting Co. Division of American Broadcast-Paramount Theaters, Inc.

MOST OF THE DIRE PREDICTIONS concerning the devastating effect of television would have upon the motion picture industry have, thus far, failed to come true. The new medium has not devoured nor destroyed the older one as many gloomy forecasters envisioned. On the contrary, we already have signs of an economically healthy, cooperative working partnership between the two.

I'd like to point out that similar dire predictions have been made about almost every new form of entertainment media and have been just about as accurate — the movies were going to kill the stage, but we still have an "Oklahoma," a "South Pacific," a "King and I" or a "Pal Joey" popping up with surprising regularity. Radio was going to kill the phonograph and record industry — and when have record sales ever been better? Television was not only going to kill the motion picture industry but also make us a nation of illiterates but never have books been printed and sold in such volume as today.

KINTNER

The truth is that the American standard of living has risen so consistently that we have been able to participate in and utilize every new form of entertainment and diversion. The amount of leisure time available to most of our people has steadily increased, enabling them to enjoy more diverse entertainment. And I think they're going to continue enjoying both television and movies, as more leisure time becomes available and as each satisfies the appropriate mood of the consumer.

Indirectly, I think, television has had a beneficial effect upon the quality of motion picture production. While, for a time, the movie box office definitely slumped as television spread into more sections of the country and finally achieved coast-to-coast operation, the recent upswing in box office grosses indicates that a good movie will still draw large audiences to the theaters.

It seems definitely established that, given the choice of top-flight entertainment in the comfort of his living room or an indifferent motion picture at the neighborhood house, the average televiewer-moviegoer will select the former. Conversely, offer him a first rate movie with top talent, outstanding direction and production and a good story and he will still line up at the theater box office for his tickets.

Film producers are finding television a constantly growing market for their product. While there is no question that some types of programs are best suited for live telecasting, many advertisers are turning to film for what they feel are its decided advantages—elimination of the worry that at the last minute your star may become ill, or that an actor will blow up in a crucial scene, or that some accident will happen studiowise. In addition, through use of film all of an advertiser's executive personnel can know ahead exactly what their company is putting on the air which is often a distinct advantage in their business operations.

Another facet of this type of operation is that it eliminates the difficulty of lining up a considerable number of inter-connected stations in desired market areas at the time of origination of a live telecast.

In brief, the two media are now competing on a realistic basis—that of good entertainment—with each other just as they compete with books, magazines, plays, music and social activities for the attention of the potential audience.

In another sector, television and the movies have drawn closer. This is through the use of TV as an advertising medium for motion pictures. Aware of television's impact on its own (and thus the potential movie) audience, producers have steadily increased their use of spot advertising on television as well as the use of sizeable time segments in key box office cities for film premieres.

To cite specific examples, the world premieres of such outstanding pictures as "The Snows of Kilimanjaro," "Stars and Stripes Forever," "The Jazz Singer" and "Above and Beyond" were all telecast over ABC's key television station in New York with demonstrated excellent effects upon the box office. I look toward a continuing increase in this type of advertising by motion picture producers as well as greater use of spot TV advertising to maintain box office grosses once a picture has been launched.

Hollywood has not only discovered the potency of television as a medium for the exploitation of the better pictures it is turning out but has also learned that for its own best interest and to serve the growing market that exists in television it must provide a better product than it did during its more complacent years when, so to speak, it offered its productions on a "take it or leave it" basis. Extension of this type of operation, whereby the motion picture industry makes available to television product of consistent high quality and avails itself of television's ability to help market that product can be of immense value to both media.

FILM AND TELEVISION— A HARMONIOUS PARTNERSHIP

By ROBERT W. SARNOFF

Vice-President in charge of NBC Film Division

SOME YEARS AGO, as the motion picture industry grew to maturity, there were those who prophesied the demise of the legitimate theater. They obviously were wrong. Today, the theater, very much alive, and the motion picture industry are mutually complementary. They feed each other with talent, ideas, performing skills, and the creation in the minds and hearts of the public a profound understanding of the value of every aspect of show business.

Although the economic pattern has not yet jelled, the sound future relationship between the television and film industries is based, I believe on this same kind of healthy interdependence. Two fundamental reasons support this conviction: (1) certain types of television programs can be more effectively produced on film than on live TV, and (2) more people can see a given program if it is run more than once—if, in effect, it is not lost to posterity.

SARNOFF

This does not mean necessarily that filmed programs are "better" than live programs on television. Live television is requisite for certain kinds of programs, just as filmed TV is more effective for other kinds. As far as NBC is concerned, its policy is to bring to the public the best in entertainment and information by whatever is the best means available.

Imagine, for instance, Hopalong Cassidy without the golden sunlight which floods every magnificent outdoor scene in the new series he has filmed—in California—for television! A lonely Scottish moor in a Douglas Fairbanks production is as authentic as it is haunting—and the viewer is literally transported outside of himself. The film-camera crew, accordingly, can lend a greater scope and latitude to certain kinds of productions, can expand the viewer's horizons.

But these are technical reasons with which to bolster an argument favoring filmed TV over live. Day by day the special-effects experts, working with rear-screen projection, prismatic lenses, electronic devices, and man-made snow, broaden the horizons of live television and create an almost completely effective illusion of authenticity.

A much stronger link in the chain between the film industry and the television industry is being forged by the increasingly apparent advantages of re-running the film series—whether they be dramatic or documentary. One does not throw away a copy of a magazine because one person has read it. A magazine publisher measures his readership in terms of total audience—not in terms of copies sold.

By the same token we must measure our audience in cumulative terms—not just in terms of a single telecast. Through re-issue, such fine programs as "Victory At Sea" and "Dragnet" will penetrate to millions of homes which may not have been reached on the first run.

This thought leads logically to the next: as new television areas open up, the new stations will come on the air with an impressive backlog of film programs to draw upon. This reservoir of entertainment, information, and culture, then, will be constantly replenished. Film will make this possible.

Although certain programs are more effectively produced on film, I do not believe that the use of film should be primarily to make matters convenient for the performer or producer—to enable them hastily to throw together 26 or 39 episodes of a series.

One of the main dangers we must combat is creative thinking on a production-line basis. The future of films for television will be seriously impaired by unimaginative imitation in an effort to achieve quick, volume production.

Before "Victory At Sea" went on the air last Fall, producer Henry Salomon stated that he had "tried to make use of the best techniques employed by Hollywood and Broadway while recognizing TV is a new medium which demands treatments and techniques that are new, that are its own. In short, we are developing motion pictures for television rather than using television to exhibit motion pictures." It is this kind of attitude on which the future relationship of the two industries can be made secure.

Out of a successful cooperation between films and television, a new kind of craftsman and a new kind of entertainer will emerge. Just as the stage and the motion pictures have fed each other with talent and creative production techniques, so will television develop technical advances which will help the film industry while the original minds of Hollywood will help create programs for television.

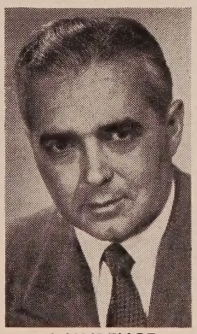
We cannot afford to overlook Hollywood's 30 years of experience in the production of box office successes, any more than Hollywood can disregard our 30 years of broadcasting experience in serving the advertiser, and primarily the public interest, convenience, and necessity.

THE FEATURE FILM IN TELEVISION

By CRAIG LAWRENCE
General Manager, WCBS-TV, New York

MOTION PICTURES—feature length, that is—on television have taken such a beating from comics, cartoonists and critics that I'd like to say a few words in their behalf as far as the future is concerned.

Feature film has been an important ingredient in TV programming, as an analysis of the New York stations will show. When Telepulse of New York broke down all programs according to types on New York's seven stations for the last six months of 1952, it became evident that just about one-fourth of all of the telecasting hours were taken up by feature film shows.



LAWRENCE

One might say, "That's quantity all right, but how about quality?" Well, quality does vary station by station and on each station from week to week. It is inevitable that this should be so, as it is with other types of programming.

Much of the kidding about TV film shows revolves about the age of the pictures. Yet age has no direct bearing on quality. A good picture produced in 1945 is still a good picture in 1953 in most cases, and properly edited and presented is just as entertaining to those who haven't seen it as one made in 1952. Such pictures as "Tomorrow the World," "Last of the Mohicans," "My Son, My Son," "Seven Days Till Noon," "Winterset," and many others which have been telecast on WCBS-TV's "The Early Show" and "The Late Show" are basically as good entertainment today as when first released.

There are two widely different methods of using feature films on TV stations, and the choice usually depends upon competitive conditions in each market and the programming philosophy of each station. One way is to schedule individual feature film shows wherever in the schedule they might happen to fit best or according to where a sponsor wishes to buy one. This method usually results in a staggered schedule of feature film, and doesn't require as much product as the other method. With fewer shows, the "per-program quality level" can be somewhat higher.

The second method is based upon the principle of strip or block programming with a feature film show being scheduled five, six or seven nights each week at the same time across the board. This is the principle used at WCBS-TV, where "The Early Show" runs Monday through Friday 6:15-7:25 PM and "The Late Show" runs Sunday through Saturday from 11:15 PM to conclusion of the picture. This method requires more product and more effort, ingenuity and money to hold up the average quality night after night.

Admittedly, lots of "B" pictures are used, but with proper selection, they're still very acceptable entertainment in the home, and the audience likes the idea of being able to turn on the set to a certain channel at the same time each evening with the assurance that there'll be a movie. As an example of WCBS-TV's "The Early Show" ranked fourth among all multi-weekly shows (network and local) in the January, 1953 Telepulse of New York. Almost one-third of all the TV homes in this area see it one or more times each week.

I believe that TV can carry feature films on this basis, and not injure the moving picture theater's business. That might not be true if current releases were used on TV, but that isn't an immediate possibility anyway. There is, and always will be, a distinct difference between entertainment in the home and outside of the home.

I believe that the theaters (both regular and drive-in) can do more to dramatize the "night out" appeal which is inherent in their business. The drive-ins have already made it easier for families with baby-sitter problems to have an evening out together, and other services and appeals will develop to aid the general movie box office.

As more TV markets open up, and more TV stations get on the air in old and new markets, the revenue potential for feature pictures is going to grow substantially. Many pictures which don't have revenue possibilities through exhibitors will have through TV.

Major producers won't release all of their back product because of re-issue value of certain pictures, but I'm sure that there will be free and unrestrained business done in the future between TV and the producers. This business will be done on the value of the product to TV, and the comparative revenue producing potential of re-issue or TV to the producer.

TV FILM PROGRAMMING

By ELIZABETH BAIN

Film Director, WGN Television, Chicago

IN THE CHANGING CONDITIONS of the television world, it is apparent at present that film programming has not yet come into its own. It is becoming increasingly true that scheduling film on a substitute for live programming basis is losing ground with viewers and in sales results; it is also increasingly true that programming film for its own value is just beginning to be understood.

Feature film programming has paid rich dividends for the majority of advertisers. It is a matter of record that one late evening program brought over 2,000 requests for a religious medal within a period of 12 hours; that one client's offer to provide free breakfast for hunters who would purchase shotgun shells caused a 6:00 traffic jam.

Even more productive is the experience of two other sponsors; the first, using a morning Western as his only advertising medium increased his business volume from a low five-figure income to that of a high seven-figure in less than two years. He is now doing more business than the combined efforts of eight of his competitors. An evening show for a regular sponsor of feature films has been credited with increasing his income more than 400 per cent.

It has been successfully demonstrated that film will hold its own against network shows —but only if it is superior film programming. The weakest employment of film is in the same manner in which transcriptions have been used in radio programming, as ratings and sales delivery appear to fall with the abuse of indiscriminate film fills.

Viewers have indicated that the short film subject is high on their list of favorites, but they like to know in advance that it is to be shown and be able to tune in and find that the listed film is being shown. Good short subjects can pull mail and get ratings if they are programmed and not moved about at the mercy of the changing schedule.

Film programs which are "dressed" with personality tie-ups, proper program identification, or built into extended units have been extremely successful in ratings and in selling. It is no longer sufficient to throw in a film and let it sink or swim for itself. It may swim surprisingly well, but it often sinks extremely deep. The growing experience is that film—like live programming—must be used with imagination and attention to presentation.

Feature films have reached their point of saturation play in most instances, but their continued ability to produce results is amazing. It was possible for one client to draw 3,000 people to his store even though the film used was in its eighth showing.

The changing market in feature buying would seem to indicate that price, not quality, is the determining factor in selection. Experience has shown that the repetition of features with name stars is preferred programming. These films apparently wear better than replays of superiorly produced films with unknown casts of first runs of inferior quality. The ability of local sponsors to make a continued cash outlay for expensive features on a week-after-week basis is on the downgrade.

Unlike the theatrical market which theoretically can push its financial potential to the utmost promotion level, the local television advertiser has a specific financial ceiling which dominates his selection of program material. Many sponsors have turned to the half-hour program which is continuing to grow in acceptability and availability. But the fact that a feature film costs less in many instances than the half-hour program, and allows an advertiser approximately three times the commercial time, has deterred all but the most institutionally-minded local sponsor from adopting the shorter program.

The diminishing market in feature films and the growing market in half-hour program availabilities has begun to set a pattern in programming. The anticipated prominence of local half-hour programming is developing slowly, with economics the determining factor in sponsor acceptance.

The much-maligned Western continues to be a backbone of daily film programming. The Western's appeal to both the child and adult audience makes it a fairly sure program bet with less automatic tune-out than some other features promote. Westerns have proven consistently strong selling agents and weather repetition better than any other type of product.

The most apparent deficit is in the field of available children's material. Here the stereotyped approach—the failure to understand the inquiring, alert mind of the child has produced more than the usual share of uninspired rubbish. Educators long ago learned that children are eager to absorb information and to become acquainted with the world. Television producers continue to try to excite rather than to inform, and to substitute fancy for the imaginative. Very little programming of merit is being offered which will permit long-term scheduling on an across-the-board basis.

There are many other fields in which good film is badly needed. It is almost impossible to build a 30-minute travel program with up-to-date material. Authoritative science, psychology and health programs are almost nonexistent. The so-called "family" half-hour film is still in the realm of wishful thinking.

Special religious film programs have begun to appear and undoubtedly will eventually replace much of the dated religious films which are not acceptable productions for television.

In spite of the fact that the production of films has begun for improved television programming, there still exists the need for film as a substitute for live shows. The ideal condition will be achieved when film programming is entirely out of the substitution realm and can stand on its own superior merits. Then there will be great viewing ahead for the television audience of early tomorrow.

THE TELEVISION ACADEMY

By HAL ROACH, JR.
1952 President of the Academy of Television Arts and Sciences

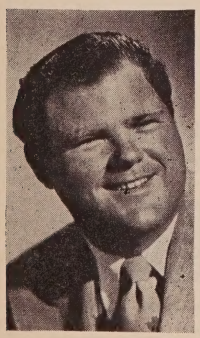
NOW IN ITS SIXTH YEAR, the Academy of Television Arts and Sciences has succeeded in unifying the industry in terms of agreeing on a method of making awards. The industry is in agreement that awards must be made on a national basis.

At the same time the Academy recognizes that there must be measuring sticks for local awards in the 64 television areas as an aid in the important work of further developing live programs.



ROACH

The Academy is gratified that more than 300 television editors across the country made the nominations for the 1953 awards. It is gratified also that during 1952 more than 50 members were added from the New York area alone.

The Academy in 1952 gave recognition to the scientific advancement displayed graphically in CBS' Television City in Los Angeles and NBC's structure in Burbank.

On an expanded basis the Academy has continued as a center for the dispensing of research information on the industry.

Also on an expanded basis the Academy has continued its policy of facilitating meetings of members in the various phases of the industry's work to discuss mutual problems and to exchange information.

The industry and the Academy, formed in 1947 by Syd Cassyd, will make still longer strides under President Charles Ruggles and his officers in 1953.

A CHALLENGE IS MET

By RALPH COHN
Vice-President, Screen Gems, Inc.

THE YEAR JUST CONCLUDED has been an important one for the television industry for a variety of reasons. New stations either appeared on the horizon or were immediately in the offing as the year ended; new programs, with new program ideas, were introduced, some to great success and some to almost immediate failure; and, perhaps most importantly for the future of the industry, the use of film in television took on a new dimension during this year. For this was the year that the professionals took over.

This statement is by no means meant to disparage the fine efforts of those companies and individuals who were producing films for television for the past number of years. Their efforts have been excellent, many of their offerings have met with great public acceptance, and a debt of gratitude is owed them for the pioneer work they have done in this field. But isn't it reasonable to believe that, when polished film production is required as it is today, the only people who can supply it are those who are thoroughly trained through their previous experiences in the complex art of film making?

This was the year when the polished film was demanded, and this was the year when the professional took over in full force to supply it. Hal Roach, Jr., whose Hollywood background is so well-known, has brought us "Racket Squad" and "My Little Margie"; Leon Fremkees and Rudy Flothow, both veterans of the movie world, presented a series starring that other veteran, Jon Hall; and Gene Autry, who for years has thrilled the small fry (both young and old) on the screen, continued into television with his Flying A Films.

Purposely I have left my own company, Screen Gems, to the last. We, too, are progressional in every sense of the word. A glance at the roster of stars, producers and directors we have utilized for such shows as, let's say, The Ford program, will verify this claim.

When the listing in the daily newspaper contains such star names as Broderick Crawford, Yvonne de Carlo, Barbara Hale, Edmund Gwenn, Terry Moore, Ellen Drew, Dan Duryea, Dick Haymes and Wanda Hendrix (all members of the Screen Gems-produced Ford program), the chances of having a great number of viewers of your program are very good indeed. And when your show can offer such producers as Jules Bricken, Irving Starr, Fred Briskin and Endre Bohem; such directors as Fletcher Markle, Victor Stoloff, Laslo Benedek, George Archainbaud, Lew Landers, Leigh Jason and Richard Quine (some more graduates of the Ford Theater), then you are virtually assured of a finished show, a happy audience and a satisfied sponsor. That has been our experience at any rate. You just can't produce a topflight show unless your people have the know-how.

Where will this influx of the "old pros" lead? Well, in the first place I think it's safe to assume that sponsor, audience and agency are all going to demand the professional in film from now on. We have showed them it can be done, and experience has proved in the past that once the American people are given a standard they invariably refuse to accept less.

There is just one point that needs further clarifying. There has been much loose talk that either: a) films will never succeed on television, the audience demands live shows; or b) shortly there will be no live shows left on television, the film people will take it all over. That's just as silly (and for the same reason) as saying there will either be all color motion pictures or all black-and-white motion pictures.

In motion pictures, the subject determines to a large degree whether or not to film in color; so in television the program determines to a large degree whether it is to be live or on film. The advertisers and the agencies are aware of this and they will continue to make their choice between film and live based on the very real consideration of what type show they want.

However, it is safe to predict that, now that good film is available, advertisers and agencies will think a little longer before saying "let's make it live." They know they can obtain certain desirable results with film and they are astute enough to make every possible use they can of the medium.

How do we producers of filmed television shows feel? By and large we feel fine. We faced up to a challenge, met it and established ourselves in the industry. We like the atmosphere we find in television. I'm usually short on the crystal ball gazing, but I'll make one prediction. You're going to see us around television for a long, long time.

OUTMODED THEATERS AS TV STUDIOS

By MITCHELL WOLFSON
Co-Owner, Wometco Theaters

WOMETCO THEATERS no longer has a Capitol Theater. In its place stands television station WTVJ.

To a number of short-sighted or unthinking people those two factual statements might mean a number of things—to the television broadcaster who cannot see beyond his nose this means, "Ah ha! we shall soon rule the nation!"—to the exhibitor without foresight it means, "I'm in a dying business."—to the unversed and too-quick-thinking public it means, "Television is taking over, movies are on the way out."

Wometco's Capitol was once a proud first run showplace which was packed nearly every day; a fact which seems to bear out all the hypothetical opinions expressed above.

WOLFSON

But are you interested in hypotheses or history as it happened?

The Capitol Theater was a losing venture quite some time before television was ever introduced into the Miami area where the Capitol is located. Because of lack of parking space, location, population shifts, and the construction of more modern theaters in more desirable locations, the Capitol's business dwindled until finally we adopted a policy of showing Spanish-language features to try to make that theater show a profit. The theater's position remained as precarious as the governments of some Spanish-language countries.

In short, the Capitol Theater was "thru" as a movie theater.

Meantime, WTVJ was growing and needed more space. It's as simple as that.

We wanted a new and larger studio for WTVJ but first looked only at the small size of the stage of the Capitol and wondered how we would do it.

Then someone got the bright idea—this wasn't a theater at all, it was space!

Not the Buck Rogers nor the Commander Corey type, but usable space.

Level off the first floor and make offices there. Why, sure! Then build another floor at the level of the balcony crosswalk for the main studio floor. Leave half the balcony for an audience viewing area and put in a third floor over the other balcony half for control rooms and announcer's booth.

And that, we believe, is a sound tip for others with outmoded theaters who want to make them into TV studios.

Might I add further for the record that at the same time we were building and opening several fine, new theaters and drive-ins, and that these new theaters and new drive-ins from the first have enjoyed good business.

Lohengrin for movies and TV? It's already happened here. If our WTVJ personnel have something special coming up and it's worthy of note, we have either trailers in the theaters to plug it or lobby displays.

Similarly, the theaters buy time on the station for direct plugs for the pictures they are running. In addition the local TV talent on the station get in plugs for pictures wherever they may in good taste and without overdoing the commercial plugs.

One of our executives is charged with the responsibility of seeing that there is a balance between this mutual aid, one for the other. Even though he is primarily a theater employee, he looks with disfavor on any idea one of our theater managers might bring him for a plug on TV that does not have visual appeal. If it is strictly audio it goes to disc jockeys at radio stations. Also, we make time available on our TV station for our movie competitors, at the same card rates that we charge our own theaters.

Also, to popularize themselves further, the TV talent from time to time make personal appearances in the theaters, particularly at Saturday's children's shows. This benefits not only the talent but gives the theater the added drawing power of a local "star" name.

Some exhibitors who ignore or fight television wil go on making a profit. But a brighter future exists for those who use TV intelligently and observe other rules of good showmanship.

We can never use television as intelligently as we might until Hollywood starts making special trailers for spots and shorts for showing on the medium, using the stars themselves and showing samples of the pictures. We've got some specific ideas about that if

A UNITED NATIONS OF TV

By MELVIN L. GOLD

Chairman of the Board, The National Television Film Council

BACK IN 1948, when the television industry was comprised of about 18 television stations (all in the "red") and approximately 2,000,000 television sets, with screens ranging in size, from three inches to 10 inches . . . the big job of every TV station, was to fill its minimum time requirements (as regulated by the FCC) with some kind of program material . . . be it good, bad or indifferent.

School bands, glee clubs and the good old local "Amateur Hour" utilized a sizeable share of the available time . . . and several dust-covered motion pictures, that had outlived their usefulness in movie theaters, were making their brittle celluloid contribution to the new medium's search for entertainment. As a matter of fact, it was these old Hollywood "hand-me-downs" that were giving the television stations their most seasoned talent, there best stories and superior production techniques . . . their vintage and physical condition notwithstanding. Thus, quite innocently, motion pictures became the early economic answer to TV station program requirements.

All over the country, film distributors with one to a hundred old films lying idle in their vaults, dusted off everything from cartoons to features and offered them to television stations, for anything the market would bring. Down South, old films were being marketed like link sausage . . . at 50 cents a foot! Elsewhere in the country, $15.00 a reel was considered a logical price. To small distributors, who had been watching this film go brittle in their vaults, the sudden call for these "oldies" represented a bonanza rather than a business . . . whereas to TV stations, the existence of these films was manna from Heaven, as the high cost of live programming became more apparent. Film was already becoming a major source of TV programming.

Distributors of motion picture films found themselves in a completely new market. New principles were involved. The exhibitor of TV film had no box office . . . and the station paid the complete cost, on a no-income sustaining program, or was able to sell it to a sponsor, at a "buyer's" price. Stations, on the other hand, were staffed with radio-experienced programmers, buyers and technicians, whose immediate conception of television was an electronic joy-ride from audio to video with format unchanged. They likened motion pictures to familiar radio transcriptions . . . and could see no reason for departing from radio-developed procedures in their evaluation and handling of films. The result was chaos! Like a 3-D film, seen without polaroid glasses, the path of films on television was confused, distorted and discouraging.

The tremendous difference in the cost of producing a film and the cost of cutting a radio transcription, was not yet apparent to radio-trained television programmers or their sponsors. The sponsor's need for low-cost programming was not yet apparent to the distributor, who had always served a box office. Low rental fees offered by stations made it impractical for distributors to provide new prints and routine inspection of film. Lack of stations' knowledge in handling of film, seriously impaired the condition of the already poor prints. Stations, unaware of print costs, would hold as many as ten or more feature prints, for weeks and months, prior to showing them, for the purpose of filling emergency needs.

Meanwhile, with old films whetting the appetites of programmers for new films, a hue and cry persisted for films that would fit sponsors' budgets. Film producers scoffed, and cited the movies' past experience in the cost of producing films. It was becoming more apparent that to establish a business of films in television, it would be necessary to provide a meeting of the minds between stations, film distributors and producers, and advertising agencies.

Precedent had already established a format for trade associations in the motion picture and radio industries. To attempt a similar enterprise indicated that the problems would not necessarily be solved, but probably emphasized, if separate organizations were created for these entities so that their disorganized bickering could become organized war. The true solution seemed to indicate a single organization, in which each of these facets of the TV and film business might become acquainted with their respective problems and iron them out around a council table.

Thus, in May 1948, the writer communicated with approximately 200 film producers and distributors, television stations and advertising agencies, then engaged in television, as well as trade publications, and called an initial meeting at the Astor Hotel, to discuss these problems. The meeting resulted in the formal organization of the National Television Film Council at a meeting in June of that year.

NTFC's first administration was comprised of the writer as president, Burt Balaban of Paramount Television as vice-president, Robert H. Wormhaudt of General Television was secretary and Robert M. Paskow of station WATV was treasurer. Jack Glenn, senior director of The March of Time was chairman of the board . . . and some of the more active charter members who served as directors, committee chairmen and members of the writer's advisory committee, included Sally Perle of The Mesal Organization, Seymour M. Peyser, NTFC legal counsel, of the law firm of Philips, Nizer, Benjamin and Krim, J. A. Maurer of J. A. Maurer, Inc., Myron Mills of Equity Film Exchanges, Gus Ober of WMAR-TV, Baltimore, and many others whose efforts in behalf of the infant organization were to make great contributions to the growth of the TV-film industry.

The first problems confronting the newly formed National Television Film Council were: (a) the need for standardization in the business practices of the distribution of films for television (b) improvement in exhibition of films on television (c) education of stations in the handling and use of films (d) education of producers and distributors in station requirements and the business of sponsored films.

Committees were immediately formed in the fields of distribution, production and agencies, and a film clinic was instituted, headed by John A. Maurer, who was then a vice-president of The Society of Motion Picture and Television Engineers.

For nine months the distribution and television committees met independently and unitedly under the supervision of counsel Seymour Peyser, to establish a standard exhibition contract, that would anticipate the needs of stations and distributors in a standardized format of business practices. The acceptance of this contract by more than 50 per cent of the stations and distributors in the country, immediately upon ratification by the council had the effect of clearing the air and placed the distribution of films for television on a sound business basis. Today, the NTFC Standard Exhibition Contract is used almost exclusively by all stations and distributors, either in the form sold by the council, or through adaptations adopted by some of the networks and distributors.

The problems of film standards, film handling, music clearances, etc., were exposed to educational discussion through inviting outstanding authorities in their respective fields to address NTFC members at their monthly meetings and at full-day Quarterly Forums, which permitted an exchange of ideas and the opinions of the experts for their solution.

In its five years of service to the television industry, NTFC has presented among its outstanding speakers, such authorities as Dr. A. N. Goldsmith, chief consultant to RCA; Dr. Bach, inventor of the zoomar lens; Col. Howland of Zenith's Phonevision; Samuel Spring, noted attorney and author of the book "Risks and Rights"; John Stott, vice-president of Tri-Art Color Corp.; Walter Shirley, New York Commission of Commerce; Dr. Henry Faught, and numerous others who contributed their knowledge of their specialized activities in assistance to the Council's resolution of industry ailments.

Members of NTFC have been represented in negotiations with the American Federation of Musicians and The Screen Actors Guild. When the House Commerce Sub-Committee proceeded with a Congressional investigation of Radio and Television pursuant to House Resolution 278, the entire films-for-television industry was represented before the congressional committee by the writer, in behalf of NTFC. Bulletins completely covering these activities are afforded members, who receive a service from NTFC that is invaluable to anyone engaged in the TV film field.

With the accelerated recognition of films in 1952, NTFC saw a greatly increased influx of advertising agencies to its membership, and attorneys, scientists, film laboratories, etc., have swelled NTFC's ranks, in recognition of the council's value to television, and they, as members, are now making their own contributions to NTFC's progress.

Among those who came to speak and then became members of NTFC are Dr. A. N. Goldsmith, sometimes known as "The Father of Television," the noted attorney, Samuel Spring, and laboratory genius, John Stott. The administration for 1953 reflects in its officers and board of directors a cross-section of representatives of the many facets of the industry that contribute to its success. It is comprised of film producers and distributors, advertising agencies, television stations, film laboratories and a film manufacturer, a foremost television scientist, an attorney, a literary representative and a trade publication. All sitting at a single council table, to resolve their problems in behalf of the industry as a whole.

Although the chaotic days of 1948 have passed, NTFC is faced with new challenges in the organization's efforts to improve films for television and to continue to gain added recognition in the program and commercial fields. New production techniques, improved equipment for production and exhibition, the exploration of the color and third-dimensional film fields, for subsequent use on television, are among the council's projects. Its membership is ambitious, aggressive and farsighted . . . and its unusual structure, based on the solid foundation of embracing all of the entities that contribute to the growth of films-for-television assures a blending of thought and spirit, undisturbed by dissention and litigation.

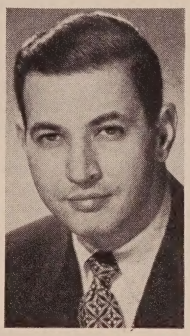
The National Television Film Council is a veritable United Nations of Television.

TODAY, NOT TOMORROW

By NATHAN L. HALPERN
President, Theater Network Television

THIS PAST YEAR has witnessed the rapid growth of theater television into a major medium of national coverage. There are over 100 permanent theater installations in 60 major cities coast-to-coast and now growing more rapidly than ever before. Theater TV outlets will exceed TV stations in number shortly.

Theater Network Television demonstrated convincingly during the past year that theater TV is now definitely for today's action, not merely for tomorrow's dreams.



HALPERN

On Dec. 8, 1952, Theater Network Television launched closed-circuit theater TV use for industrial purposes, when James Lees & Sons Co., national carpet manufacturing leader, conducted its national sales convention through TNT networking facilities. The Lees personnel found the Tele-Session completely successful as a means of holding a simultaneous, nationwide dealer meeting.

Sparking to this idea, many national companies are ready to follow suit, by holding what we call Tele-Sessions. Unique in character, Tele-Sessions represent a functional marriage of theaters in off-hours, with television that saves sponsor companies money by reducing the costs of their national sales meetings.

The forerunners of such theater TV uses by industry, government and other organizations, pioneered by TNT personnel over the past four years—the first theater TV classroom session for high school students, the first Federal Civil Defense theater TV schools, and experiments in news—idea presentations on theater TV—now lead to the Theater Tele-Session,—a specialized audience medium for private use, as contrasted with the mass audience serviced by broadcasting networks.

This past year has also seen the birth of the entertainment field in theater TV—when TNT televised a history-making Metropolitan Opera performance of "Carmen" on Dec. 11, 1952 to 31 theaters coast-to-coast. A notable first in show business, the movie theaters participating in the theater TV network that evening, showed no films whatever—and presented exclusively the telecast of the opera direct from the stage of the Metropolitan Opera House in New York.

The public response in the 27 cities included in the TNT network was beyond expectation, and their response to this cultural entertainment on a theater TV scale will lead inevitably to demand for further entertainment shows in this field.

Continuing its earlier fight presentations, TNT televised the heavyweight and light-heavyweight championship fights last summer. The Walcott-Marciano fight set new records, when 50 theaters in the TNT network that evening, grossed over $400,000 at admission prices which averaged more than $3.00 per seat. Some of the large potentials in this field were thus beginning to be realized sooner rather than later.

This coming year should see theater TV take even more important strides towards its place as a major part of the entertainment and business worlds. Already exhibitors have experienced profitable attractions, and their attitudes are definitely setting towards a theater TV installation in their future. With the development of color theater television, proper and extensive transmission channels for theater TV, and the establishment of a modus operandi with the labor unions concerned in the field, it was possible that theater TV would forge rapidly into a leading position in show business.

Meanwhile, our watchword continues to be "Today, not Tomorrow."

BOX OFFICE TV ASSURES FUTURE OF MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR

By ARTHUR LEVEY
President of Skiatron Electronics & Television Corp.

THE ADVENT OF talking pictures in the late 1920's posed the question of whether the new medium was here to stay or whether it was a "passing fancy," as one top film executive defined it. The question needs no comment today.

Prior to the outbreak of World War II, when television's domestic progress was cut off as a security measure, there were many persons also who believed that TV, because of its limitations and imperfections at the time, would never win universal acceptance. That fallacy, too, has long since been proven. In both instances, however, the paying public had to live with the development of the improvements, with only the novelty of the media compensating for the deficiencies in quality of reception and entertainment values.

LEVEY

Today, television, per se, is on the threshold of a new phase in its comparatively short history. The difference is that the public need not suffer through the "growing pains" of the offspring. Subscriber-Vision, the name applied to Skiatron's method of home subscription TV, has overcome the pitfalls that beset the pioneers of talking pictures, television and, to go back further, radio, prior to, and after, their delivery to the public as a source of entertainment.

Skiatron is ready and able to make subscription television a reality whenever the Federal Communications Commission gives the green light. And, despite the fact that the Skiatron system is designed primarily for the home, the company's format is conceived as a boon, rather than a competitive force, to motion picture production and exhibition.

The last year has been one of extensive experimentation and research. The so-called bugs that are inherent to all new developments were eliminated. While the FCC did not give a go-ahead signal for commercial transmission, it did authorize hundreds of tests, using the broadcasting facilities of WOR-TV in New York. In the after-midnight hours, home viewers could see, if their dials were set to Channel 9, blurred, unrecognizable images dancing crazily on their screens. Only those persons sitting in the Skiatron laboratory and other experimental places where the decoder cards were utilized, could see the sharply defined images as they should be. These experiments are continuing, with WOR-TV allowing daytime periods for the tests.

During the last year, the Subscriber-Vision system was demonstrated to the entire body of the FCC, including the legal and engineering departments. It was seen by the owners of the major baseball leagues, by professional football league owners and Commissioner Bert Bell. It was a year of extensive activity, laying the ground-work for the exciting new entertainment medium that is certain to be a commercial fact in the not too distant future.

As a result of these demonstrations Skiatron will seek FCC approval to conduct a 90-day test in the metropolitan New York area. The test will include a cross-section of 300 teleivsion set owners.

But it will be a different story when the gates are open for regular programming. From reactions we have had to date, even without a general public exhibition, Skiatron feels it can start in the New York area alone with at least 200,000 subscribers. That figure could be increased to 600,000 or more within 90 days. A reliable government official has confirmed the possibility of those figures. The almost limitless possibilities may be seen from the fact that there are, roughly, 21,000,000 TV sets now in operation and it is estimated that 6,500,000 more will be produced in 1953.

How, you may ask, can Subscriber-Vision be anything but lethal competition to the motion picture industry? The answer is simple. From the producers' standpoint, the revenue potentialities derived from millions of homes having Skiatron equipment are boundless. The producer's share from the contemplated $1 per family per pictcre will pay back production costs and return sizable profits in a very short time.

As for the theaters, they, too can cash in on the medium.

The exhibitor's role would be identical with that which he plays today: selling tickets to patrons visiting his theater, to see the latest feature film, or providing Subscriber-Vision decoding "tickets" for those who desire to see the current attraction at home.

To make the plan as effective as possible, the distributor would book as many prints of a current feature into as many theaters as feasible within a 40 to 50 mile range of his exchange. Thus in a single night, more people would be seeing that same film either inside a theater or on a home receiver than might witness the picture in theaters alone over a period of a year!

For the benefit of those who are not familiar with the operational method of Subscriber-Vision, herewith is a brief summary.

1. Simplicity of operation: An IBM-type card with an electronic printed circuit is inserted into a small decoder device hooked up to the TV receiver the same way you attach a record player to a set. Television manufacturers of new sets would be licensed by Skiatron to include the small decoder as a component part of the TV chasis inside the set, so that only a slot with a few small push buttons would be visible on the top or side of the TV cabinet. The electronic card has the various attractions listed for the week, each one located above a push-button on the decoder device. You push the button for the desired program at the time it is due, the show comes on, and the card is automatically punched to provide a record for charges, etc.

Of course, the pictures that are transmitted from the TV station are scrambled to prevent anyone not having the Subscriber-Vision electronic card and decoder from picking them up. At the telecasting station all that is required are two highly ingenious but portable pieces of coding equipment, each about the size of a suitcase.

2. Economy: Program information, bills and payments are sent out by ordinary mail. The electronic unscrambling code on the card, capable of an infinite number of variations, is changed weekly to prevent bootlegging of the cards. Cards will be purchased in advance and credits allowed for some unused shows. There will be a minimum weekly charge, however, to include amortization of the decoding device, and overhead, plus certain performances. Skiatron believes the initial charges would be moderate and, as subscriptions increased to the millions, fees would be reduced to a point where they might eventually reach 25 cents, or even a dime. Furthermore technical refinements are being made by Skiatron's engineering staff that should result in economy of operation, reduced cost and miniaturization of the decoder unit itself.

ERA OF PAY-AS-YOU-SEE TV IS JUST AROUND CORNER

By WILL BALTIN

President, Videoscript, Inc.

INDUSTRY PUNDITS would have you believe that a lot of blood-letting among the oldsters, capped by a transfusion of young blood, would give the film business the shot-in-the-arm it needs to lift it out of an alleged lethargic state.

Yet it is interesting to note that the "brains" of the industry—men who built the nickelodeon into a fabulous multi-billion dollar business—are still delivering the biggest grosses at the box office and projecting the most progressive ideas for the future.

BALTIN

Example No 1.: Louis B. Mayer. He's now head of Cinerama Productions, pioneering in the industry's most exciting inovation since the advent of sound.

Example No 2: Cecil B. deMille. His "Greatest Show On Earth" has become one of the greatest box office hits of all time—in the midst of the TV era!

Example No. 3: Samuel Goldwyn. He's not only still turning out top grossers (like "Hans Christian Andersen") but he envisions subscription television as bringing the film industry a form of prosperity undreamed of today. And another young fellow with vision—Adolph Zukor—echoes Sam's convictions.

Mind you, this piece is not being written in defense of the mature titans of moviedom by a member of the same fraternity, age-wise. We admit to still being a suckling when deMille made "The Squaw Man." But men of vision are the film industry's most treasured asset, and it seems that most of the common sense and vision these days stems from the "brainy branch of the industry," while a lot of talented young blood hardly gets steamed up about the future.

Cinerama is the talk of the industry, and well it might, adding a dimension that fires the imagination and pours gold into the box office. But there are stirrings in other directions—and in important places—that should excite both the producer and exhibitor with equal fervor. The era of pay-as-you-see television is starting to dawn.

The Federal Communications Commission, it is reported, is becoming increasingly intrigued by the possibilities of pay-as-you-see video. This is a sure sign that the home box office in TV is just around the corner—a development that is destined to be a boon of first magnitude to all parties in the film business.

Three years ago in THE FILM DAILY YEAR BOOK, we tickled the toes of showmen with a suggestion that subscription television might one day make it possible for TV set owners to see the latest current attractions on their home television screens, day-and-date with exhibition at local showplaces. "Pooh-pooh," was the response to this suggestion—from interesting quarters, too.

Two years ago in THE FILM DAILY YEAR BOOK we elaborated on the subject; showed how local exhibitors might share-the-wealth by selling subscription TV tickets at their box office—for current attractions. Reaction, this time, was somewhat more sympathetic—casual acceptance, with tongue-in-cheek.

Now with the FCC definitely warmed to the idea of permitting limited "sale" of TV shows via the airwaves—some sources say hearings on the question of pay-as-you-see TV may start this year—producers, distributors and exhibitors might bone-up on the subject by hastening to their bookshelves and refer to Year Books of 1950 and 1951 for a look-see at our favored format for putting a box office for feature films at the doorway of every TV-equipped home.

And now we go a step farther and forecast that within five years the film industry—all elements, that is—will be serving the public with first run motion pictures in their home—on a pay-as-you-see TV basis; that every top football game on a Saturday afternoon will be available to television set owners—on a pay-as-you-see TV basis; that Broadway shows (on opening night) major boxing events, Metropolitan operas, great concerts—all these and many more will grace the home television screen, all paid for by the public.

Sam Goldwyn calls subscription television a natural; Adolph Zukor is stirred by its possibilities. How about you?

Sales Offices:
Baltimore, Boston, Chicago, New York

Heywood-Wakefield's famous TC 706 AIRFLO is as comfortable as the average patron's own easy chair at home.

The reclining AIRFLO chair has the "rocking action" of the exclusive Heywood-Wakefield spring action mechanism. By virtue of this mechanism the AIRFLO retains the scientifically correct pitch of seat-to-back regardless of how the patron shifts his weight or position.

Comfort is our business . . . in theatre seating as in Heywood's famous household furniture, like the Old Colony platform rocker at top.

For further information contact your Heywood-Wakefield representative or write for the fully illustrated catalogue on Heywood-Wakefield Theatre Chairs.

CAUSE FOR ENCOURAGEMENT

By JOHN and DREW EBERSON

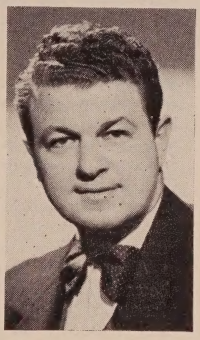
Partners in the Architectural Firm of John and Drew Eberson

THIS YEAR FINDS US divested of our mourning clothes. It is for good reason that we make the change to more cheerful raiment.

The past year has produced developments that bear witness that the theater operator has acquired a greater sense of obligation to his patrons and become more acutely conscious of the importance of catering to their physical needs.

The theater man has given evidence that the constantly repeated message of the architect and the equipment man that what his theater has to offer physically can contribute much to his success is really beginning to sink in. The more favorable account the better-appointed theaters are giving of themselves has helped to drive the point home. The result is that more theaters during the year have been inclined to install an improvement of one kind or another in their determination to improve the box office showing.

J. EBERSON



D. EBERSON

That theater men have taken it to heart to effect improvements to their theaters augurs well for the future of the motion picture business. The obsolete theater having no regard for the comfort of its patrons must of necessity fall by the wayside. No tears should be shed for it since it operates as a millstone about the neck of the industry. It would be far better for the good of the industry to have one theater it could be proud of, a theater offering an abundance of comforts, than two rundown houses equipped with nothing but empty seats. So the number of theaters of itself is not the measure of the industry's success.

The year has revealed that exhibitors are now devoting more attention to furnishings, particularly to styles of theater chairs. It is apparent that theater men are more aware than ever that an uncomfortable seat can drive a patron away more quickly and more surely than anything else. How important seating comfort has come to be regarded may be judged from the fact that in many instances theater owners have seen fit to sacrifice the number of seats. The trend unmistakably is to the installation of modern and spacious chairs.

We also have reason to rejoice in the fact that the architectural style of the new film theaters is modern functional with complete avoidance of glitter, of over-ornamentation and of elaboration of treatment. The fancy business is out.

Proper shaping for acoustical advantages has become an important consideration in theater planning—and rightly so. Everything is planned with good taste in mind, and the color scheme has commanded more attention than ever before because of its contribution to the aesthetic effect and because of what it can do to help put the patron in the proper mood and make him more receptive to what is on the screen.

No less to be commended is the constant striving for simplicity in the design of theater facades. The neat, uncluttered front is now definitely the thing. Helping to improve the looks of the theater's face is the utilization of the latest fluorescent lighting which does away with shadows caused by cornices and ornamental features.

The extensive use of structural glass and natural domestic marbles in theater construction and modernization is a development also worthy of note. Here again the effect achieved is one of simplicity with no sacrifice of beauty.

New developments that are expected in the way of screens and lighting must be borne in mind in the designing of theater structures today. They render it advisable to arrange for a construction procedure which will make available large areas of free space.

It has been said that one of the biggest deterrents to the reactivation of theater building is today's extremely high cost of construction. This difficulty can be greatly overcome through (1) a choice of proper architectural design, (2) the careful selection of building materials that are economical to buy and to use, (3) the employment of intelligent construction methods and (4) the proper timing of building operations.

ALTEC SERVICE gives an exhibitor greater safety — greater value — greater satisfaction

1. National Organization

The Altec organization, being nation-wide, can organize the distribution of manpower so that your theatre is protected every day. More than 200 Altec inspectors are scheduled to give complete coverage to every Altec Service theatre.

2. No Equipment to Sell

Altec Service is exclusively a service organization. We are in business for one purpose only—to provide sound service so complete and technically advanced that your sound system will operate at its peak performance all of the time. Altec is not a manufacturer of complete sound systems and therefore is unbiased and impartial in any recommendation it makes for the improvement of sound in your theatre. This is of vital importance to you in the face of necessary present-day economies.

3. Good Service, Plus

When you contract for Altec Service you get the regular services of an Altec-trained specialist. But you get more. You get the day-in-day-out services of an entire corps of research and development engineers, who work at Altec headquarters in New York and Hollywood.

Science never stands still. At all times, new inventions, new techniques, new modifications of existing techniques, are being developed, to improve both recording and reproduction of sound motion pictures.

All of these new developments are under constant study by the Altec research engineers.

4. Technical Information and Advice Available

Your Altec inspector gets weekly bulletins from headquarters announcing each new development that affects your theatre. Where you can take advantage of the improved box office value of improved sound your Altec inspector will advise you.

The Altec research and development engineers work closely with the engineers of the Academy of Arts and Sciences, and with the Society of Motion Picture Engineers (SMPE). These organizations are working constantly toward the improvement of standards of sound reproduction as they affect theatres, new testing techniques, new measurement methods for the scientific anaylsis of theatre problems and their solutions. The Altec headquarters engineering staff immediately relays to your Altec Service inspector these findings, the new methods, the new testing techniques.

5. Close Cooperation With Equipment Manufacturers

Protects the Commercial Application of New Techniques in Equipment Design.

The Altec research and development engineers work closely with the development engineers of the manufacturers of sound systems, to bring to the manufacturer the benefit of nation-wide service experience with theatre sound problems. They, in turn, advise Altec of any new improvements.

6. Altec-Designed Test Equipment for Theatre Use

The Altec Service research and development engineers have developed and are constantly improving test films, and test equipment, etc., which are an essential part of the kit which the Altec inspector carries with him when he comes to your theatre. These essential test meters, films, measurement apparatus, and tools—so vital in the servicing of your theatre—are scientific equipment, much of which is exclusive with Altec Service.

7. Altec Repair and Replacement Agreement

You can budget your maintenance cost for sound and projection equipment at a minimum weekly charge by means of an Altec Service and Parts Agreement. Altec Service maintains warehouses and stock points in all parts of the country, and in each of these stock points a constantly replenished back-log of all parts that are most and frequently needed in the booth of your theatre is maintained.

The parts stocked in the 36 Altec points are all pretested for optimum performance, and are "life-tested". These important life-tests are made in Altec Service testing laboratories; all parts, chosen impartially from the products of all manufacturers on the basis of efficiency only, are thus constantly being improved by continuous Altec laboratory testing.

With the cost of parts constantly rising you can effect a saving by budgeting your costs now.

8. Constant Supervision Insures the Best in Service

The headquarters engineering staff of Altec Service receives from each of its inspectors, after every call he makes, a complete, technical report. This insures a constant headquarters supervision of the efficiency of the Altec inspector who visits your theatre. His reports are analyzed by the Research and Development engineers; facts discovered in improving sound in one theatre are immediately applied to all Altec-serviced theatres. All technically useful information is immediately relayed to every Altec inspector. Your theatre benefits by this continuous supervisory process by the Altec research engineers, and a constant check is made to see that the service function of your Altec inspector is always at its best.

9. Television in the Theatre

Altec Service is ready now to supervise installation and provide maintenance for theatre television systems.

THE SERVICE ORGANIZATION OF THE MOTION PICTURE INDUSTRY

These four points in the construction of modern theaters or in the modernization of existing houses at a saving in costs are known to many architects who at present are devoting time to the designing of theaters.

Yes, we indeed have cause for encouragement. Developments of the past year and the prospects that lie ahead provide ample justification for our feeling as we do.

1953 SURVEY OF THEATER EQUIPMENT

By JACK SINGER
Equipment Editor, THE FILM DAILY

THE year 1952 will undoubtedly go down in motion picture history as the year that ushered in the era of three dimensional films.

Recognizing the great demand for 3-D, which was demonstrated by the overwhelming public acclaim accorded the opening of Cinerama in New York during the year, the major motion picture producers began the switchover to production of three dimensional and panoramic type motion pictures. The equipment industry concurrently began to prepare for the conversion of theater equipment for showing of the new type of films.

A call was issued in many quarters for the adoption of a set of 3-D standards that would enable equipment manufacturers to produce equipment that would be compatible for showing all the various 3-D films. As 1953 came in, however, the problem of 3-D standards still remained to be solved.

Coincidentally with the increase in activity due to 3-D, the motion picture industry was given an additional "shot in the arm" by the government's relaxation of its ban on new theater construction which had been established upon the outbreak of the Korean War in 1950. Although the National Production Authority's relaxation order made available after Jan. 1, 1953 enough quantities of copper, steel and aluminum for the construction of new drive-in theaters, the amount of material needed to build conventional theaters was not yet forthcoming.

Effect of the relaxation order was to set in motion plans for the construction of an estimated 2,000 new drive-ins in the early part of 1953. In 1952, only some 600 new drive-ins were constructed, which hiked the total of drive-ins at the end of the year to between 3,500 and 4,000.

Nineteen fifty-two saw considerable activity in the field of theater television. For the first time, an industrial corporation, James Lees & Sons, utilized closed circuit theater TV as a medium for holding a nationwide dealer conference; and also for the first time, a non-sporting entertainment event, a Metropolitan opera telecast of "Carmen," was presented to paying theater television audiences. The number of theaters equipped with the theater TV facilities jumped during the year from 62 to about 100.

The long-awaited get-together between equipment manufacturers and exhibitors in the form of a joint convention and trade show was finally realized when, on Nov. 15 of last year, Allied States association of exhibitors opened its convention in Chicago jointly with TESMA-TEDA convention and trade show. A record turnout of equipment manufacturers, dealers and exhibitors was greeted with one of the most varied assortments of theater equipment ever shown. Close to 100 of the leading equipment manufacturers turned out to show off their lines of theater products. Considerable emphasis on drive-in equipment was noted in the exhibits.

Hailed as a resounding success, the 1952 joint TESMA-TEDA-Allied conventions and trade show will be followed by a similar undertaking between the equipment groups and the TOA exhibitors in the Fall of 1953.

3-D EQUIPMENT

Century Developed Mechanical 3-D Interlock System

AN important 1952 development in the switch-over of the motion picture industry from regular films to three-dimensional films is the mechanical interlock system of synchronizing two projectors for showing 3-D films, that was perfected by the Century Projector Corp. The Century synchronizer was said to permit projectors to be changed from regular film operation to three

Mr. H. W. Leuthstrom, Division Manager
American Seating Company

Dear Mr. Leuthstrom:

You will probably be very glad to know that even now, long after the opening of the Cameo Theatre here in Magnolia, we hear newcomers to town, visitors and others who attend the theatre for the first time, comment on the comfort and convenience of the American Retractor seats installed there. The seating arrangement--seats, spacing, etc.--remains one of the outstanding features of the house.

Furthermore, they are holding up well and still look very nice. The red mohair covering material still retains the rich, full color it had when the seats were installed.

Sincerely,

dimensional operation in a matter of seconds. With most of the theaters equipped with only two projectors, the ease of changing to three dimensional operation was considered highly important. One of the features of the Century mechanical interlock system considered worthy of note was its relative simplicity which insured less opportunity of breakdowns.

Century was accorded considerable honor by the industry last year for its successful development of the projectors and synchronized interlock system used by Cinerama in its revolutionary entree into the motion picture scene.

Larry Davee, Century's sales manager, noted the unusually exacting requirements demanded by the Cinerama equipment resulted in considerable perfection in design and mechanism of projection units. Many of these developments were carried over into Century's line of standard projection equipment with what was confidently expected to be a top quality increase in efficiency of Century equipment.

Natural Vision Corp. Formed 3-D Equipment Subsidiary

EXPECTED upsurge of demand by theater owners for 3-D equipment cued the entrance into the equipment field of Natural Vision Theater Equipment Corp., a subsidiary of Natural Vision Corp., whose cameras were used for the first 3-D feature, "Bwana Devil."

In addition to supplying exhibitors with 3-D equipment, the new concern will also be active in educating and training exhibitors and projectionists in the proper use of 3-D equipment.

20th-Fox "Cinemascope" Screen To Be Manufactured by Hurley

WITH 3-D developments coming one after the other, 20th Century-Fox announced towards the end of the year that it had developed a large-screen system called "CinemaScope" which gives the illusion of depth through the panoramic proportions of the projected image.

The motion picture company signed a contract with Hurley Screen Co. to manufacture the CinemaScope screens. It announced that it would handle distribution of the screens, stereophonic sound equipment and special lenses needed for the showing of Cinemascope films itself.

RCA Developed 3-D Theater Conversion Kit

A 3-D kit which was said to permit speedy conversion of projection equipment for showing of 3-D films was put on the market by RCA early this year.

Included in the RCA package are two selsyn interlocking motors, a mounting plate, a silent chain and two sprockets to couple the motors, special screws for attaching the sprockets to their respective motor shafts, upper and lower 5500-foot film magazines, and two small blowers to keep the polarized filters in the projection ports cooled.

The RCA "Seamless Silver" screen, a metallic-type screen, was termed well-suited for 3-D film showings. The screen is not part of the 3-D package. It can be obtained separately from RCA dealers.

Motiograph Made Available Both Mech. and Electrical Interlocks

MOTIOGRAPH CO., early this year, announced that it would be able to service theater owners with both the mechanical and electrical interlock equipment for synchronizing projectors for three dimensional showings.

The mechanical system interconnects the soundheads through gear reduction boxes in front of the soundhead castings and joined by a slowly revolving cross-rod. According to Motiograph, this mechanical system is adaptable for use with any make or model projector except certain obsolete models having unorthodox drives.

The more expensive electrical interlock systems, which employs Selsyn motors, can be used with any type projectors.

DRIVE-IN EQUIPMENT

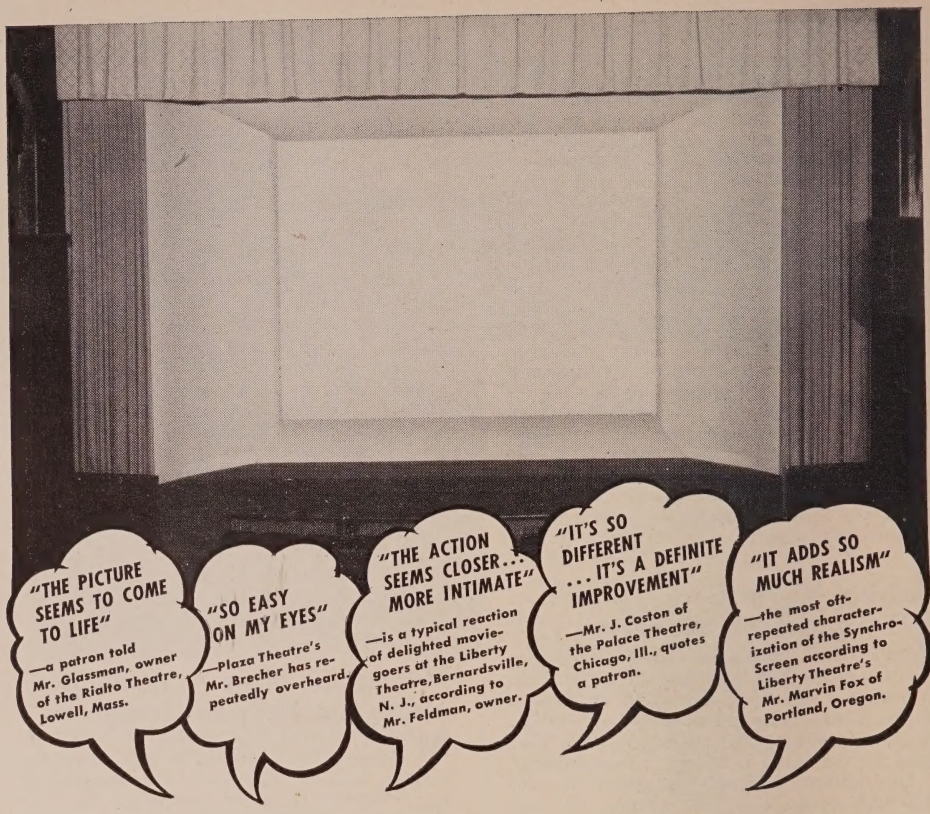
Daylight Drive-in Operation Offered by New Perkins Screen

A SIGNIFICANT development in the drive-in field was announced towards the end of the year by Perkins Electric Co. Ltd., a Canadian firm. This was a new rear-projection type drive-in screen which permits showing of motion pictures in outdoor theaters during daylight and early evening hours.

The new screen, which enables drive-ins to extend their hours of operation, utilizes a rear projection system where projectors are located behind a transparent screen and the space between the screen and the projectors is entirely enclosed in the form of a large shadowbox.

The new screen set-up is marketed in a prefabricated package that offers picture sizes up to 44 feet in width.

It was expected that demand for the daylight operational system would be large in the Northern U. S. and Canada, where long Summer twilights cut down the number of evening hours available for night-time operation.



"THE PICTURE SEEMS TO COME TO LIFE"

"SO EASY ON MY EYES"
—Plaza Theatre's Mr. Brecher has repeatedly overheard.
"THE ACTION SEEMS CLOSER... MORE INTIMATE"
—is a typical reaction of delighted movie-goers at the Liberty Theatre, Bernardsville, N. J., according to Mr. Feldman, owner.
"IT'S SO DIFFERENT ... IT'S A DEFINITE IMPROVEMENT"
—Mr. J. Coston of the Palace Theatre, Chicago, Ill., quotes a patron.
"IT ADDS SO MUCH REALISM"

Here's nationwide acceptance of RCA's new Synchro-Screen

Synchro-Screen is today's big story. It's big because patrons are telling it from coast to coast. Everywhere they've seen it, they like it—and they say so.

Here's why they're enthusiastic

Today's average man considers himself a critic of "how" pictures are presented. He's a self-styled expert on "surround lighting." He knows about uniform screen brightness. And he's interested in seeing what you've done along these lines.

Here's why you'll be enthusiastic

Synchro-Screen gives you a brand-new story to tell—about something your patrons can actually see. It's not an investment that you locate in the projection booth or behind the walls—it's right up front telling every individual in your audience that you're up to the minute in your methods.

You'll get a personal thrill, too, out of seeing your pictures on Synchro-Screen. You can't imagine what a difference this one piece of equipment makes until you've actually seen it—until you've compared it with the results you are getting with your present black-mask screen.

Call your RCA Dealer now

It will pay you to be first in your community to offer this new method of presentation. Call your RCA Theatre Supply Dealer now, and ask him about RCA's new Synchro-Screen for your theatre.

Automatic Car Counting Device Set for Drive-ins by K-Hill

A NEW automatic device to register the number of cars entering a drive-in theater was produced last year by the K-Hill Signal Co. of Urichsville, O. The equipment consists of a cumulative register activated by cars passing over a tube extending into both lanes of a two lane entrance served by a single toll booth. The company said it could make available this counting device so that it can be set back to zero each day. It weighs seven pounds and measures 7" x 7½" x 4½" overall.

New Weather Resistant In-Car Speakers Offered by Dawo Corp.

AMONG the companies that came up with a new line of in-car speakers last year was Dawo Corp. of Toledo. Its new speaker utilized a case and junction box made of sandcast aluminum with baked-on hammerloid finish. A press fit ground magnet is a feature of the speaker, which sets in a special mount to prevent warping of the cone. Full water drainage is provided, and the cone is treated to resist damage from the weather. The speakers can be had with or without built-in ramp light in the junction box. The light is provided with nylon-enveloped sockets that are waterproof. The junction box is equipped with an enclosed terminal strip for connecting and disconnecting speakers. It contains a heavy-duty matching transformer.

Steel Plate "Permascreen" Developed by Poblocki & Sons

A NEW drive-in theater screen made of steel plates coated with vitreous enamel was developed last year and trade-named "Permascreen" by Poblocki & Sons. The product promptly turned out to be the fastest selling item in the company's line of 1952 products.

The vitreous enamel is fused onto steel plates at a temperature of 1700 degrees Fahrenheit. These plates are then mounted on the drive-in screen tower—either over existing screen surfaces, or, in the case of new drive-ins, onto the frame of the tower so as to form the entire surface structure of the screen area.

According to the company, the surface of the "Permascreen" is not prone to turn yellow and retains its reflective quality without periodic refinishing.

Increased Demand Brought Many New Items to DIT-MCO Line

ENCOURAGED by the fact that there were "more exhibitor inquiries and dealer activity during the first six weeks of 1952" than it had experienced at any time during the preceding year, DIT-MCO expanded its line of drive-in theater equipment considerably. Items added included concession building or patio chrome furniture, "Lone Rider" mechanical coin-operated horse, "Space Rider" mechanical coin-operated airplane, atomic jet lamp-house blowers, aluminum ladders, rotary power lawn mowers, and directional lights. The firm also expanded its transformer manufacturing facilities by 200%, its manufacturing and warehouse space was expanded by approximately 10,000 square feet, and it published for the first time a complete 54 page catalog and price list of the equipment it produces.

Ballantyne's Dub'l Cone In-Car Speaker Biggest Seller in 1952

WHAT turned out to be one of the biggest selling equipment items in 1952 was marketed for the first time last year by the Ballantyne Co. This was the Ballantyne Dub'l Cone In-Car Speakers, the firm's AX-90 series, over 70,000 of which were sold and delivered during the year. Utilizing an outer cone as protection against the elements, the Dub'l Cone speaker was credited with remarkable long-lasting properties. The speaker unit was provided with a heavy 1.47 ounce Alnico 5 magnet which gave two to three times the power of earlier magnet materials. The company claims that the die cast aluminum casing used in the speaker makes it practically non-resonant at any frequency.

The Dub'l Cone speaker consists of two cones, one super-imposed over the other, with an air space of close to one-quarter of an inch between the two cones. It is the outer cone that provides the protection against sunlight, rain and other injury-causing factors.

Other items the firm introduced during the year was a new car side and over-flow speaker, new ramp signs, and the Boyer pre fabricated screen tower.

A hefty jump of 30% in Ballantyne's sales to drive-in theaters was recorded in 1952 over the previous year's figure. In commenting on the outlook for 1953, J. Robert Hoff stated, "we would unqualifiedly say that 1953 will be the largest in the sale of motion picture equipment for the Ballantyne Co. in all the years we have been in business."

In a move to expand distribution of Ballantyne equipment in the West Coast area, the company arranged for B. F. Shearer Co. to take on sale of the company's products in the West Coast.

The company disclosed that in August of this year it intends to introduce a "revolutionary device" that is expected to make quite a stir in the trade. It offered no further details of what this new development might be.

Tape Record Featured in New Automatic Car Counting System

AMONG the new pieces of drive-in equipment that found their way to the market towards the end of last year was an electronic automobile counting system developed by the Electronic Signal Co. Inc.

Called the "Electronic Admissions Control System," the new device consists of a detector installed in the vehicle lane and a recorder in the box office. As the patron drives up to the booth, his car is automatically counted, and the count recorded on a tape. Provision has been made for the box office employee to record the number of passengers in the car and the number of "pass" vehicles.

Motiograph Improved DeLuxe Series of In-Car Speakers

THE Motiograph Co. early in 1953 came up with an improved version of its DeLuxe series of in-car speakers. The new speakers are built with a full magnet 5" diameter speaker unit, which was described as 20% larger than most other in-car speakers units on the market. Multi-tapped transformers which permit exact matching of the speakers and the amplifier circuits are also being used in the improved DeLuxe Motiograph line.

CONCESSION EQUIPMENT

Hot Chocolate Dispenser, Hot Fudge Pump Set by Helmco-Lacy

HELMCO-LACY, INC. came up with two new products of interest to the concession trade. The latest is a new hot chocolate dispenser, Model C-256, whch utilizes a double action faucet that is said to allow fast serving during "rush-hour" traffic.

The dispenser features the Helmco-Lacy "Dial-a-heat" temperature control unit which permits the hot chocolate to be kept at a constant degree of heat in one of three categories: low, serving, and high.

Another feature of the new dispenser is a built-in agitator which, according to the company, can keep the hot chocolate continually stirred.

The second product developed by the company in 1952 was a hot fudge pump for counter service, which assertedly does away with the need for ladles by utilizing an adjustable portion control. The company claims that the pump can be used for cold fudge when the demand for hot fudge hits an off-season.

Armour Offered Drive-ins Free Trailers to Boost Concession Biz

A NEW series of eight full-color movie trailers designed to announce intermissions at drive-in theaters and at the same time boost concession sales was announced at the beginning of this year by Armour & Co., who is offering the films free to drive-in theaters.

Encouraged by the reportedly enthusiastic reception accorded its four one-minute trailers that it distributed to drive-ins in 1952, Armour hopes to expand this service even more widely in the future.

Built around a singing jingle format, the shorts show scenes of family groups and teen-agers enjoying a variety of intermission refreshments, thereby stimulating viewers' appetites not only for frankfurters (the company's product) but popcorn, drinks, candy, ice cream and other refreshments.

Infra Red Lamp Featured in Gold Medal's "Pop A Lot" Popper

A NEW "Pop A Lot" popcorn machine, which uses an infra-red lamp to keep the popped corn warm and to light the case, was marketed by Gold Medal Products Co. of Cincinnati.

According to the company's description of its new machine, the "Pop A Lot" kettle is heated by a Chromolox element and is protected by a built-in thermostat which keeps the temperature below 510 degrees. A "drip-lip" device insures that the oil remaining in the kettle as it is dumped does not run down the side but drains back into the kettle to be re-used.

All-Industry Wide Popcorn Assn. Aim of NAPM Campaign

THE National Association of Popcorn Manufacturers in 1952 embarked on a campaign to organize an overall popcorn association that would include, not only popcorn manufacturers, but all other segments of the industry, including theater concession owners.

The proposed all-industry association, as outlined by Oliver Koeneman, president of the NAPM, would consist of an active voting membership from seven component segments of the industry: popcorn processors, popcorn manufacturers, theater and concession operators, retail popcorn shops, jobbers of popcorn and supplies, brokers of popcorn and supplies, and popcorn equipment manufacturers.

Each of the above groups would be represented on the board of the directors of the new association.

The benefits that such an organization would be able to bring to its members were described as: (1) a free flow of information and ideas back and forth among the various groups; (2) a unified presentation of the problems of each group to the rest of the Concession Snack Bar Offered To Drive-ins by Charles E. Hires

A SNACK BAR constructed for immediate operation at drive-ins and other similar establishments was marketed in 1952 by the Charles E. Hires Co. The unit was made to serve the firm's root beer in conjunction with the sale of grilled frankfurters.

NAPM Fosters Popcorn Quality With New Popcorn Analysis Kit

IN keeping with the modern trend in the food industry towards greater cleanliness, the National Association of Popcorn Manufacturers came up with a unique Popcorn Analysis Test Kit, which was scientifically designed to make the testing of raw popcorn easy by purchasers of this commodity. The kit contains chemicals and equipment for testing popcorn, as well as complete instructions on how to use the kit, which is obtainable from local distributors of popcorn supplies.

Fast-Serving, Large Capacity Popcorn Machine Set by Cretors

A NEW popcorn machine, designed especially for spots such as drive-ins where fast service and extra capacity storage space for popped corn is needed, was put out in 1952 by the Cretors Corp.

The new machine features two elevators, a circulating hot air heating system, and a new automatic seasoning pump. The two elevator wells provide storage space for more than 200 boxes of ready-to-sell popcorn, which can be kept hot by circulating currents of hot air. The elevators and warmers are said to solve the moisture problem of drive-ins by eliminating excess moisture, thus keeping the corn crisp and tender.

During 1952, sales of Cretors popcorn machines to conventional theaters increased by 34%, according to the company, while drive-in sales also increased substantially.

The "Hollywood 48" Model remained the company's biggest seller "because the large circuits and independents have realized that maximum popcorn sales are produced by the animation and aroma of popping corn."

The company is looking forward to 1953 as indicating an even larger year in terms of sales than 1952.

Hot Dog Steamer, Popcorn Machine Offered by Star

AMONG the new products put out by Star Mfg. Co. in 1952 was the new Model #35 Steamro, Jr., which is a unit for steaming hot dogs and buns. The company also put out last year its new Model #46 floor model popcorn machine. This was an improved version of its former Model #44 and its main feature was the automatic oil pump.

The company was planning on putting on the market at the beginning of 1953 a large hot dog steamro with a capacity of approximately 300 buns and 400 hot dogs. This unit, according to the company, was "designed especially for the drive-in theaters that are interested in having a large supply of hot dog sandwiches on hand and ready for rush sales. A unit such as this has been in demand for a long time and we are the first on the market with it and our business should be heavy."

SOUND EQUIPMENT

All-Purpose Speaker System Featured by Electro-Voice Inc.

A NEW public address loudspeaker system, known as the CDP Compound Difraction Projector, was introduced to the 1952 market by Electro-Voice Inc. of Buchanan, Mich. Designed for single or multiple use in all types of situations—indoor or outdoor—the new product was claimed to be "fundamentally new in concept." The system utilizes two coaxially mounted diffraction horns working from both sides of a single diaphragm. Molded of "Fiberglass" material, the CDP was said to be weatherproof and shock-proof. Drain holes permit subsequent operation after complete water immersion. It is conservatively rated at 25 watts. Impedance is 16 ohms.

Westrex Sales in 1952 Were Bigger Than Previous 4 Years

WESTREX CORPORATION's organization throughout the world was exceedingly busy throughout 1952. Increasing numbers of Westrex theater sound systems were sold and total orders for 1952 exceeded the average of the previous four years. The company's subsidiaries continued to service nearly 5,000 theaters outside the United States.

Considerable interest in drive-in theaters outside the United States resulted in orders for Westrex equipment and the specially designed English Westrex In-Car speakers in 1952. Westrex equipped during 1952 the first drive-in theaters in Panama City, Panama, and in Johannesburg, South Africa.

The same was true for Westrex studio recording and re-recording equipment. In 1952 Westrex completed 29 new recording licensee agreements of which 17 were outside the United States.

A new Westrex development in 1952 was the multitrack magnetic recorder. This recorder is designed to accept the output of three separate sound channels and records three 200-mil magnetic tracks simultaneously on 35mm film in synchronization with motion picture film. The recorder is also designed to reproduce simultaneously from three magnetic sound tracks. These operations may be restricted to one or two tracks, or if desired, one or two tracks may be re-recorded to another track position on the same film in one operation.

For film studios and processing laboratories, Westrex adapted the widely accepted RA-1100 type Densitometer to color as well as black and white.

Westrex furnished considerable quantities of reproducing equipment to Cinerama during 1952.

At the beginning of 1953 Westrex was busily engaged in adapting its recording and reproducing equipment to 3-D pictures and stereophonic sound.

DeVry Continued Development Of JAN Sound-Film Equipment

A DEMONSTRATION of DeVry Corp.'s new developments in Magnetic Sound, which, among other things, makes possible the recording of two different sound tracks in two different languages on one film, was presented to officials of foreign governments and the U. S. armed forces early in the Spring of last year. The magnetic sound system developed by DeVry was said to make it possible to produce effective, inexpensive sound movies for the first time in the history of the industry.

Versatile, Wide-Range Power Amplifier Offered by Fairchild

A NEW power amplifier developed in 1952 by the Fairchild Camera and Instrument Corp. was its Model 620, which, according to the firm, "delivers to the cutterhead ample power over a frequency range extending from less than 20 to beyond 15,000 cycles." Operation at average recording level assertedly keeps distortion to "an absolute minimum."

The equipment is said to be compact, lightweight, and easy to service, and has low heat dissipation.

Revere "Synchro-Tape" Process Made 16mm Film Narration Easy

THE Revere Camera Co. developed a special "synchro-tape" process by which 8mm and 16mm movie producers could tape record a voice narration that would run in perfect synchronization with their silent films.

The new process enables amateur movie producers to provide a "sound track" for their silent films at a cost of $7.85 for a 600 foot roll of the special magnetic recording tape, good for a half hour's showing.

Rangertone Out with New Battery Operated Lightweight Recorder

THE emphasis on portability was the keynote feature of a new lightweight magnetic tape recorder designed for use by film producers on location and marketed by Rangertone, Inc.

Designed by Col. Richard H. Ranger, the unit weighs 30 pounds and, like a film camera on location, is normally operated on battery current. However it was stressed that an alternating current power supply may be used when available.

The economical status of the unit can be gleaned from the fact that it is said to consume power equal to that of an average light bulb.

Unique Stereophonic Tape Recorder Introduced by Ampex

THE first high quality stereophonic magnetic tape recorder, which it is claimed reproduces "dimensional" sound and is patterned upon the dual hearing process of the human ear, was developed in 1952 by the Ampex Electric Corp.

Utilizing the same principle that Cinerama uses in its multiple sound track system, the instrument makes dual recordings on separate tracks, which when played back simultaneously through dual speakers gives dimension and presence to sound.

Self-Powered, Portable Field Recorder Produced by Travis

DESIGNED to fill the industry's needs for a self-powered, portable magnetic recorder that may be used where power lines or motor-vehicle battery-power is unavailable, the Travis "Tapak" recorder was put on the market early in 1953 by the Terminal Radio Corp.

The new portable recorder allows the operator in the field to monitor continuously while recording, to erase, to rewind at high speeds, to playback for on-the-spot evaluation and to edit.

Changeover of Magnetic to Optical Sound Aided by Reevesound Items

IN 1952, the Reevesound Co. came up with a number of new developments for the transcription of magnetic sound to optical sound, among them laboratory recording and reproducing machines including new Magniprinter, Selsyn control units, new type 35mm photosound channels, tape console (TC-19) Reevesound powerstat set, Selsyn adaptation of Mitchell camera, Bell and Howell projector and Simplex projector, and 16mm and 35mm Selsyn footage counters.

SCREENS

New Caldwell "Halo" Screen Distributed Nationally by NTS

A SCREEN surround that utilizes the principle of indirect lighting in its surround, rather than reflected light from the screen itself, was developed and marketed locally for the first time last year by the National Theater Screen Refinishing Co. of Buffalo. The Caldwell "Halo" Screen, as the new item was named, was taken over for national distribution by National Theater Supply.

The "Halo" screen utilizes a cycloramic backdrop which is set two feet behind the picture screen and provides a square illuminated border around the picture. The cyclorama background is lit by a series of electric lights set around the back of the picture screen which provide a constant source of illumination for the screen surround. By positioning the cycloramic frame two feet behind the actual picture screen, none of the screen surround light is allowed to bounce back onto the picture screen and wash out the edges of the picture.

Giant Size RCA Synchro Screen Made Panoramic Debut Last Year

AMONG the many new developments in motion picture equipment that RCA came up with in 1952, perhaps its giant Synchro Screen is worthy of special note.

Featuring a width of 30 feet, 7 inches, with 12 foot wings on either side, the giant screen made its debut at the RKO 58th St. Theater in New York on Dec. 5.

The new screen at the RKO house was described as offering a marked gain in panoramic effectiveness by spanning the whole proscenium arch and occupying a large part of the patron's field of vision. In that respect it utilized the same theory that was so effectively presented by Cinerama.

New RCA Perforated Screen Offered Non-Clog Feature

A NEW type of motion picture screen whose construction prevents airborne dirt and dust from clogging the perforations was developed last year by RCA. Known as the RCA Air-Tight Sound Motion Picture Screen, it employs two layers of screen material. The layer facing the audience is made of conventional RCA Snowhite vinyl plastic material with perforations; behind it is a backing of a very thin sheet of unperforated vinyl plastic material which is slit during installation and peeled away in that area of the screen where the speaker baffle is placed. The area around the speaker is then sealed, and the total result is a screen that is perforated only in that area where the speaker is located. This new technique of limiting screen perforation to the location of the speaker minimizes the circulation of air between the auditorium and the backstage area, it was pointed out, and thereby removes one of the chief causes of screen discoloration and impairment of sound quality by dust obstructed perforations.

Da-Lite Restored Vinyl Mat White Screen to 1952 Line

THE Da-Lite Screen Co. restored to its line an item which it had dropped the preceding year, its vinyl mat white projection screen fabric, which is described as being resistant to mildew and flames.

Illusion of Depth Featured In Raytone's "Transcenic"

AMONG the new items unveiled in 1953 was the "Transcenic" Screen Surround developed by the Raytone Screen Corp. and formally introduced to the trade at the TESMA Trade Show in November. According to the company, the new product offers wide angle or panoramic vision that approaches normal viewing conditions and makes for greater viewing comfort. The "Transcenic" is said to maintain a pleasing, uniform level of illumination throughout the proscenium with no distracting fluctuation of light.

The company also developed a new formula for its Drive-in Screen Paint, consisting of a new resin that permits a larger amount of titanium pigment to be added to the paint without fear of chalking. The improved paint is said to permit a denser coat with corresponding longer life and greater covering usefulness.

PROJECTION EQUIPMENT

Slide Projector Attachment Developed by Strong Electric

A NEW slide projector attachment for use with the "Trouper" high intensity arc spotlamp was developed last year by the Strong Electric Corp. The slide projector was designed for projecting song slides, and advertising slides in theaters, drive-ins and other similar types of establishments. Using the "Trouper" lamp, the picture projected is clean, sharp, and clearly defined, even on the largest screens, with motion picture brilliance attained on screens up to 22 feet wide, according to the company.

Strong, also, early this year announced that it plans to expand its production facilities through the construction of a one-story warehouse addition to its plant, which will free space in its present plant and thereby make possible for the company to increase its production.

New Genarco Slide Projector Offered Big Image, Short Throw

IN 1952 Genarco Inc. developed a new model of slide projector with an optical system which is covered by U. S. Patent No. 2,586,436. This projector, which uses a 3000 Watts bulb, makes possible the projection of an image as large as 50 feet wide from a throw as short as 45 feet. It can be used for outdoor advertising, in or near drive-in theaters; or in advertising of future events (or products) in theatre lobbies.

The largest volume of sales in 1952 to the theater industry was for Metro-Lite spotlights, Model ME-4 which are 125 amperes units. These were bought mostly by very large theaters, auditoriums, or arenas. The Metro-Lite spotlights are sold in the United States, Canada, and Central America.

Genarco Inc.'s volume of sales for spotlights in 1952 was lower than previous years because of the Government ban on new construction. Since this regulation has been lifted it is expected that the volume for 1953 will be substantially higher.

Genarco Inc. is doing research work on high intensity carbon arc lamps in order to build an even brighter spotlight in a few years, and also slide projectors. A 200 amperes arc lamp is already being manufactured on a small scale and is being used for special applications where a tremendous amount of light is necessary.

RCA Marketed "Hy-Arc" Carbon Projection Lamp in 1952

WHAT was described as a very stable and economical new carbon-arc lamp engineered especially for indoor houses and medium-sized drive-ins was developed in 1952 by RCA Victor Div. of the Radio Corp. of America.

Designated as the RCA Hy-Arc, the new lamp has a light output of approximately 18,000 lumens. It operates with a 9mm-by-20-inch high-intensity positive carbon and a five-sixteenth-by-nine-inch negative carbon at currents from 70 to 90 amperes. Among its features are provisions for a magnetic stabilization of the arc flame; a water-cooled, non-rotating positive carbon; a large 15-inch high speed reflector; an extra large interior for cool operation and rapid dissipation of heat, and a construction affording maximum protection of all operating components from dirt.

The Hy-Arc lamp was said to operate within its amperage range with a very uniform stable white light.

Heyer-Schulz "52" Reflector Called "Natural" for Drive-ins

A REFLECTOR that was termed "15 per cent more efficient than the average reflector in use today" was marketed in 1952 by Heyer-Schulz Inc. Called the Heyer-Schulz "52" Aluminized Metal Reflector, it was said to be a "natural" for drive-ins and large houses.

Other additions to the company's line last year were two new reflectors for use in Strong lamps, and the model 1025-T for use in the Strong Trouper Spotlight.

B&H Process Put Sound Films Within Reach of Small Business

IN the 16mm field, Bell & Howell came up in 1952 with a new projector which records and plays back sound by means of a stripe of magnetic material on the edge of the film. It developed a process called "Soundstripe" to coat film for magnetic sound. According to President C. H. Percy, this new system enabled sound movies to be brought well within the reach of small business.

CARBONS

National Carbon Developed New 9mm "Suprex" Projector Carbon

A REPLACEMENT for National Carbon Co.'s former 9mm "Suprex" projector carbon was announced late in the summer of last year in the form of a new 9mm "Suprex" carbon for mirror-type lamps. This new 9mm "Suprex" carbon, according to the company, contains a composition "never before used in lighting carbons." Rated at 65-75 amperes in contrast with the former 9mm

"Suprex" carbon's 75-85 amperes, the new carbon was described as giving more light at less current consumption, unsurpassed arc stability as among its improved features. The arc voltage is lower than that used with the former 9mm "Suprex" carbon, being approximately 41 volts at 65 amperes and 45 volts at 75 amperes. Because of its stability and favorable current rating characteristics, the new 9mm carbon, said the company, can be used in place of the present 8mm "Suprex" carbon merely by employing the proper holder and guides to give equal light and better distribution at the same current and lower carbon consumption. It can also be used to give increased light and better distribution at higher current. The new 9mm "Suprex" carbon was designed for use with the National 8mm by 9 inch "Orotip" C negative carbon.

Closer Cooperation With Lamp Makers Cited by Lorraine

ALL through 1952 it was the aim of Lorraine Carbons, Inc., and its president, Edward Lachman, to work in closer cooperation with the lamp manufacturers, even to the point of working with certain lamp manufacturers who still had new designs on the drawing boards. This idea of constructing a carbon in anticipation of a manufacturer's lamp was said to be a new approach in the arc projection field. As a result of this cooperation, several new grades of carbons were placed on the market by Lorraine Carbons. These were: "Vertarc Carbons"—8mm x 18" Grade SNCD uncoppered Positive and 7mm x 12" Grade 545-01C Coppered Negative; 9mm x 18"-22" copper coated Positive Grade 544-01C; improved 9mm x 14" copper coated Positive Grade 544-C; improved 9mm x 20" uncoppered Positive Grade 552; and a 9mm x 20" uncoppered Positive Grade 552-09.

The company said that its policy would be to "continually improve our carbons, even though the carbon on the market is doing a good job. If the laboratory perfects a better performing carbon, we will introduce this carbon on the market immediately."

CARPETING

"Nystone," Blend of Nylon and Wool, Marketed by James Lees

A CARPET designed for hard wear, which utilizes a combination of wool and nylon material, was placed on the market in 1952 by James Lees and Sons. Called "Nystone," the new carpet was priced slightly higher than regular all-wool contract carpeting. The extra cost of the carpet was described as more than compensated for by the greater toughness and considerably longer wear that the nylon-wool blend gives to the new product.

Karagheusian Line Additions Followed Modernistic Trend

NOTING a trend on the part of many theaters to furnish their interiors along modern lines, the A&M Karagheusian Co. last year added several modern designs to its contract carpets. The company reported that "many theater owners are now seeking to create a relaxed, home-like atmosphere in formerly elaborate theaters or in the new theaters being built." To satisfy the changing demand for "softer colors," which the firm holds is a "definite change of pace" on the part of exhibitors, Karagheusian came up with several new contract carpet items.

Glamour Featured in Additions To Mohawk Line of Carpeting

MOHAWK CARPET MILLS created a new design in its line of contract carpets in 1953 in the form of its new Saxony (MS-233) carpet which the company says was "created to lend more drama, more glamour to theaters."

Among its contract carpets that have been found to be most popular with theaters are the heavier Wilton type carpets such as Mohawk's Saxony, Lobby and Saratoga qualities.

SEATING

International Doubled Sales of Indoor Seating to Drive-ins

INTERNATIONAL SEAT CORP. made several changes during the year in its line of theater seating, mainly in the method of padding the backs of the chairs in order to produce more comfortable and luxurious seats to theater patrons.

The company's sales for indoor enclosures to drive-ins and to foreign markets during the year were double that of 1952, although sales to conventional theaters generally fell 10% below the 1951 figure.

So far as 1953 is concerned, the company is "quite optimistic as to the future, and believes that with the general promotional activities that are going on in the industry, many theaters will improve their property."

Kroehler Optimistic on Outlook For Theater Sales in 1953

KROEHLER MFG. CO., one of the biggest producers of theater seating, looked forward to 1953 "with a feeling of optimism and the knowledge that existing theaters have to fix up to meet tougher competition than ever before. . . . With the building ban eased up, we believe that a lot of remodeling and some new building will occur. . . ."

Griggs Noted Trend Towards More Comfort, Greater Luxury

THE Griggs Equipment Co., manufacturers of theater seating, noted a pronounced trend in 1952 "towards better chairs to provide more comfort and luxury to the movie patrons."

Although sales of theater seating was generally "off" from the previous year, Griggs stated that the sale of seating for drive-in theaters for walk-in patrons was definitely over the 1951 figures.

LENSES

Long Range, High Speed Lens Put Out by Wollensak Optical Co.

A HIGH speed motion picture camera lens that can photograph an object one and one-half inches in diameter at a distance of four and a half miles was developed and marketed for the first time last year by the Wollensak Optical Co. of Rochester, N. Y.

The lens, described as a 40-inch mirror lens, does the same type of work as the "Big Bertha" telescopic lens but is much smaller and comes in a unit that weighs about 75 pounds.

Kollmorgen Revamps Plant Set-up To Increase Service, Efficiency

KOLLMORGEN OPTICAL CORP. carried out a program of consolidation and increase of efficiency in its new plant in Northampton, Mass. and consequently expects that it will be able to offer greatly improved service in production and delivery of its products in 1953.

LIGHTING EQUIPMENT

Century "Featherlite" Spots Featured Ease of Handling

EASE of handling was the keynote feature of a new "Featherlite" series of focusing spotlights introduced in 1952 by Century Lighting Co. The firm put out a 2 KW "spot" weighing nine-and-a-half pounds and a 5 KW version weighing 21 pounds. Provisions were made on both models for barn doors, diffusers, and color frames.

AIR CONDITIONING

Cory Corp. Entered Field of Air Conditioning Equipment

A NEW entry into the field of air-conditioner manufacturing was the Cory Corp. of Chicago. The firm during the year acquired an additional plant in Grayslake, Ill. to handle its expansion into the air-conditioning field. The equipment turned out by Cory was given the trade-name "Fresh'nd-Aire", and the firm's president, J. W. Alsdorf, announced the company's program would be "to effect immediate production sufficient to achieve complete national distribution and sale of Fresh'nd-Aire electric air conditioners and dehumidifiers prior to the 1953 Summer sales season." Alsdorf also stated that the Cory and Fresh'nd-Aire national sales staffs would be consolidated and that all Fresh'nd-Aire air conditioners would be sold by the Cory full-time national field-selling organization.

Frigidaire Marketed 7½ Ton Air Conditioning Unit

SUMMER theater-goers in 1952 had available a new seven-and-a-half ton capacity air conditioner unit that was introduced in the Spring by the Frigidaire division of General Motors.

The unit had the same Raymond Loewy design and stylings as the three and five ton models in Frigidaire's self-contained air conditioner line. In spite of its greater capacity, the new seven-and-a-half ton unit was not much larger than the average five ton conditioner. It delivered 2700 cubic feet of conditioned air per minute and boasted an air throw of 75 feet.

Tiny Electric Deodorizer Marketed by Better Life

AMONG the new deodorizers marketed in 1952 was an electric type model the size of a walnut produced by the Better Life

Products Co. in Fresno, Calif. The device plugs into any outlet and can be obtained with special medicated tablets said to be of aid to those suffering from allergies, colds or hay fever.

Abbeon Put Out Dehumidifier And Companion Control Unit

THE Abbeon Supply Co. developed a new dehumidifier, Model WA-5, which the company claimed effectively eases such theater problems as mold, rust, mildew, dripping pipes, wet walls, and furniture warping caused by high humidity.

As a companion piece to most standard electric humidifiers and dehumidifiers, Abbeon also marketed last year a new simplified humidity controller that is operated by merely plugging it into an ordinary 110 volt wall outlet. It works in much the same way as a room type thermostat by automatically turning the humidifier or dehumidifier on or off when the desired pre-set percentage of humidity is reached.

The company also offered during the year a free booklet entitled "A Few Facts About Humidification."

FILM EDITING MACHINES

Foreign-Made Editing Machine Marketed in U. S. by Editola

A FOREIGN- manufactured film editing machine made its entree into the American market during the year by way of the Editola Corp. of New York, which handles the American distribution of the new item. The machine, called the "Editola," features "everything desired in film editing," according to R. M. Savini, head of the firm. Obtainable in 35mm or 16mm models for two or three tracks, the "Editola" provides a continuous movement projection system with no pressure plate, intermittent sprocket, claw or shutter. Among the other advantages cited for the "Editola" were high-quality sound for photographic or magnetic sound tracks, noiseless operation, indefinite single-frame projection without overheating, and a new patented take-up system that prevents pulling or jerking at all speeds. The machine comes in desk form, automatically operating by foot pedal.

S.O.S. Sets Up American Sales of British Made "Acmiola"

SATISFYING a need for a film editing machine that meets American specifications and which can be delivered within three months of order, the Acmiola Distributing Co. division of S.O.S. Cinema Supply Corp. was set up in 1952 to handle American sales of an English-manufactured editing machine, the "Acmiola." The Acmiola was made available in 19 different models for 16mm or 35mm film viewing and sound reproducing.

According to Joseph A. Tanney, president of S.O.S., who arranged for the machine's American distribution last year, the Acmiola can be used by American film cutters without disturbing regular routine because the machine's design is of the familiar American type with straight up and down film threading standards.

The machines have reversible variable speed motors for picture head, controlled by feet or hand rheostats. Soundheads have reversible constant speed motors controlled by panel or footswitch, permitting sound and picture heads to be run in synchronization. The picture is projected by a powerful optical system which throws an image up to three feet wide if necessary. A unique feature on some models is a 6" x 8½" shadowbox screen which can project an even larger picture if desired.

FILM CLEANERS

Electro Chemical's New Cleaner Said to Offer Many Advantages

A NEW product that cleans motion picture film and renders it permanently anti-static was introduced during the year by the Electro-Chemical Products Corp. of East Orange, N. J. under the trade-name of "Ecco 1500." The company said that its new product, containing "properties never before found in film cleaners," eliminates the static attraction of dust and dirt to film surfaces, reduces film surface friction up to 80 percent, masks surface scratches during projection, lessens film chatter, lubricates film, keeps film pliable and non-brittle, does not contain carbon-tetrachloride, dries faster than carbon-tetrachloride, and is not affected by the heat of projector arc lamps. The product, available in quart, one-gallon and five-gallon tins, is applied by conventional film cleaning methods.

"Our new solvent," said Robert Walcutt, president of the company, "is completely non-inflammable. Unlike carbon tetrachloride, widely used as a film cleaner and recognized as a highly toxic poison whose fumes can cause death and permanent disability, our new film cleaners have by far the lowest toxicity rating of all fast-drying cleaners."

The company also put out a portable, light-weight machine, called the "Speedrol," which assertedly makes it possible to inspect and clean film simultaneously with the accompanying saving in time and personnel.

FILM SPLICERS

Simplified Magnetic Film Splicer Produced by Maurer

WHAT was termed to be the simplest type of magnetic film splicer on the market was produced for the first time last year by J. A. Maurer, Inc. The device was designed by the Bob Jones University in Greenville, S. C. and was described as small and compact and capable of being operated by people of little experience in handling and splicing film. It makes a diagonal splice said to be "extremely strong" and employs Minnesota Mining & Manufacturing Co. adhesive tape as the holding agent.

RCA Added Prestoseal Film Splicer to Its 1952 Line

RCA added a new piece of film-splicing equipment to its line in 1952. This was the Prestoseal film splicer designed for 35mm, 17½mm, and 16mm film.

According to RCA, the equipment will splice all types of safety and magnetic film with a butt-weld end-to-end splice, and without any overlap of film, loss of frame, or any audible effect on the sound track. The splice is claimed to be permanent in character as there is no cement to dry out.

FIRE-FIGHTING EQUIPMENT

Powerful Wheel-Based One-Man Operated Fire-Fighter Marketed

A NEW piece of fire-fighting apparatus—an extinguisher which comes on a wheeled base and can be operated by one man—was developed in the early part of 1953 and marketed by the American-La France-Foamite Corp.

Utilizing dry nitrogen as the fire-extinguishing chemical, the equipment has a discharge range of 20 to 25 feet and weighs 480 pounds. For identification purposes, the new unit is known as the Model 150.

CURTAINS AND CURTAIN CONTROLS

Automatic Came Up With New Drapery Track for Small Stages

A NEW drapery track said to be ideally suited for small stages was put out in 1952 by Automatic Devices Co. under the name of "Spanorama." Obtainable in either aluminum or magnesium, the track is recommended for light to medium weight curtains. For machine operation, "Spanorama," will support curtains up to 16 feet in length. For hand operation, lengths up to 20 feet can be accommodated. A novel characteristic of "Spanorama" track is its availability in 20-foot sections; a specially designed splicing clamp was perfected for any necessary extending or joining of track sections. The company claimed it is the only track of its kind which utilizes the ADC principle of two balanced rubber wheels rolling on two parallel treads to assure smooth, easy and noiseless operation.

Custom-Made Screen Curtains Produced by Knoxville Studios

A NEW product put on the market in 1952 by Knoxville Scenic Studios was the Hand-Dyed Mural Curtains, which are commonly used as screen curtains. Individually designed and hand-painted for each job, the curtains can be easily made to tie in with decorative motifs and layouts of an individual theater's furnishings.

For 1953, the company forecasts that its sale of motion picture theater equipment will be increased by 50% over its 1952 figure. "We expect an increase in the decorating and refurbishing of theaters generally," the company said.

AUTOMATIC DOOR-OPENERS

"Invisible Door-Man" Automatic Door Opener Marketed in 1952

THE end of 1952 brought with it a new automatic door opener, called "Invisible Dor-Man," which was produced by the Dor-O-Matic Division of Republic Industries Inc. and made available to theater owners.

The "Invisible Dor-Man" opens a door automatically as soon as a person approaches and steps on a control mechanism situated under the carpet leading to the door. The door remains open until the person walks through. It then closes by itself.

The device is electrically operated and consists mainly of a door control mechanism, which is concealed in the floor, and a hydraulic power unit, equipped with a General Electric form G ½ h.p. motor. The vinylite carpet, 80" long and 30" wide, under which the control mechanism is concealed, is supplied by the manufacturer. The power unit can be hidden from view at any distance from the door. It is operated by plugging in an electric cord into any standard 110 volt A.C. circuit.

GPL Theater Television Made Available to Canadian Markets

THE Canadian market was broken into for the first time last year by General Precision Laboratory's Simplex direct-projection theater television system. General Theater Supply Co. of Toronto was assigned Canadian distribution rights to the GPL equipment. It was also disclosed that the 20th-Fox Eidophor Swiss color theater TV system was being offered to Canadian theaters by Canadian General Electric.

Argus' New Ticket Dispensing Unit Offered Many Features

A NEW ticket issuing unit that dispenses tickets in an upright position in sets of from one to four was marketed last year by the Argus Mfg. Co.

Safety feature of the new unit is a device that assures the machine not issuing a second ticket until the appropriate key is pushed down again. This makes certain that no duplicate ticket will be dispensed if the key continues to be held down after the first ticket issuance.

Sales total of tickets sold is indicated on a tamper-proof, non-reversible counter and is always available by simply lifting the top plate.

Not more than one key can be operated at the same time, and according to the company, accidental pushing of tickets back into the delivery chute will not cause the machine to jam.

Fiber Film Cases Developed by Compco Available in 2 Versions

COMPCO CORP. came up during the year with a new fiber film case that stressed safety factors. Offered in two versions—the economy and deluxe—the new cases were available in the following sizes: 400, 600, 800, 1200, 1600 and 2000 feet. The economy cases, made of non-vulcanized fiber, offer the advantage of being light in weight and consequently save on postage. The deluxe cases are of hard vulcanized material, heavily varnished outside and inside for maximum protection, and come equipped with extra-strong straps and buckles. The cases have steel-reinforced corners, strong one-inch web straps riveted to the bottom, full telescope construction, sturdy carrying handle (except on the one-reel economy case), and address card holder four inches by six and a half.

Adler Expanded Facilities with Opening of New West Coast Plant

EXPANSION of production facilities and services by Adler Silhouette Letter Co. was accomplished during the year with the opening of a new factory and office in Los Angeles. The new West Coast branch will enable the company to serve its Western customers directly from Los Angeles rather than from Chicago alone as had been done in the past.

LaVezzi's 45th Year Expected To Be Busiest in Firm's History

THE year 1953 will be celebrated as the 45th Anniversary of the founding of LaVezzi Machine Works, and is expected to be the busiest year in the company's history.

During the year of 1952 sales of LaVezzi's basic product, parts for motion picture equipment, increased substantially over 1951. Based on this experience and reports from dealers and exhibitors in various sections of the country the trend seems to be toward a steadily increasing market.

The export market held up well during 1952 in most areas, and barring unforeseen international troubles 1953 is expected to be one of the highest in recent years in dollar volume, with new areas being developed and sales in other areas increased.

Trend Towards Greater Fire Protection Cited by Novelty

NOVELTY SCENIC STUDIOS, INC., most of whose business comes in decorating theaters and setting up its stage facilities, noted that of the work done in 1952 "interest centered on fabrics inherently flameproofed or non-combustible such as fibreglass or vinyl coated fibreglass materials. The safety factor has been emphasized, as well as the desire to avoid flameproofing fabrics periodically."

Although noting that decorating business was down in 1952, the company stated: "we are hopeful that neglected and run down theaters will decide to modernize and decorate their properties in 1953. In the past, those theaters that were clean, comfortable and up to date always received a greater share of the business. . . . Run down theaters discourage patronage."

LEGISLATIVE RESTRICTIONS IN FOREIGN FILM MARKETS

By NATHAN D. GOLDEN

Director, Motion Picture, Scientific and Photographic Products Division
National Production Authority, U. S. Department of Commerce

THE PROSPECTS FOR UNITED STATES film distribution throughout the world and for the transfer of film earnings to the United States are difficult to forecast. In 1952, the United States film industry was confronted with one major problem after another in its attempts to keep our films on the screens of the world. Probably the most significant problems faced during the year were the prolonged negotiations regarding a new French film agreement and new film legislation difficulties encountered in Brazil and Mexico.

Distribution of United Sttaes films on the world market during 1951, was comparatively free of restrictions and remittances of film earnings were generally regarded as better than they had been during the previous several years. However, reports on developments in some of the major foreign markets during 1952 indicate that the trend in motion picture legislation appears to be tightening and for the next few years it seems probable that United States film companies may expect increasing difficulty both in the distribution of their films abroad and also in the transmittal of earnings back to the United States.

GOLDEN

While estimates as to the importance of the foreign market to United States film companies vary, there is general agreement that revenue from abroad is playing an increasingly important role in the general economic stability of our industry. The department of Commerce estimated that United States film rentals in foreign markets totaled $160,000,000 in 1951. This figure included all income accruing to United States film companies from the showing of their films abroad whether held in blocked accounts or actually remitted to the United States.

American stars are well known everywhere and their pictures are preferred by moviegoers in most foreign markets. A number of films made in other countries also have done well at the box office in world markets. One thing is certain, however, and that is wherever the masses of people have a free choice in selecting their movies, the United States product will flourish.

There follows a country by country resume of the various legislative restrictions affecting the distribution and exhibition of United States films throughout the world:

EUROPE

ALBANIA—All motion picture theaters in Albania have been nationalized and the importation, distribution, and exhibition of films is entirely in the hands of the Albanian government which has shown no desire to import any films except those of Soviet production.

AUSTRIA—No quota or contingent measures are in effect in Austria which might reduce or prevent the distribution of United States motion pictures. Import licenses are required. Transfer of foreign exchange for motion pictures is prohibited except in occasional individual cases when limited transfers of foreign exchange may be obtained through the Austrian National Bank. An agreement has been reached between the United States and Soviet element in Austria whereby exhibition of United States films in the Soviet Zone of Austria, hitherto prohibited, will be permitted. The agreement provides that the same number of United States films are to be shown in the Soviet Zone as Soviet films in the United States Zone.

BELGIUM—At the end of 1951, the Belgian Government announced a program designed to reduce the imports of United States films and to increase Belgium's imports of films from other sources, in particular European countries. Belgium had been running a large export surplus with European countries and at the same time had been incurring a trade deficit with the United States. After a long period of negotiations, a satisfactory arrangement was worked out covering imports of U. S. films and remittance of film earnings for the year 1952. This agreement was reported to provide for imports of films at the same level as in 1951; remittances of current film earnings were not to exceed 50 per cent of the total receipts of the distributors from the exhibition of U. S. films in Belgium; and practically all prints of black and white films distributed in Belgium would be printed in Belgian film laboratories. Early in 1953, U. S. film companies began negotiations with Belgian authorities seeking to improve the terms of this agreement, however, as of the end of January 1953 no satisfactory agreement had been reached.

A Royal Decree of November 14, 1952, provides for the payment of a subsidy to producers of Belgian newsreels, short subjects, and full-length entertainment films. The subsidy to be paid to producers of full-length films is established as an amount equal to 70 per cent of the exhibition tax collected on the movie programs of which the domestic film forms a part. For documentary and short films this percentage is 25 per cent and for newsreels it is 5 per cent.

BULGARIA—All theaters in Bulgaria are nationalized and the importation and distribution of motion pictures is controlled by the state monopoly.

CZECHOSLOVAKIA—The Government of Czechoslovakia has established a State monopoly that controls the production, distribution, and exhibition of motion pictures. No imports may be made without a license; an allocation of foreign exchange automatically follows issuance of the import license. While there are no regulations restricting the distribution of foreign films, measures controlling the distribution of films are implied in the institution of the monopoly. No new United States films are known to have been released in Czechoslovakia in recent years.

DENMARK—Danish regulations covering importation of motion pictures in 1951 required distributors to deduct the costs of prints, titling, etc. from gross receipts before crediting the foreign supplier's account with 60 per cent of the revenue. Prior to this the payment of these expenses were permitted out of the 40 per cent balance credited to the Danish subsidiary. The Danish Government allotted a total of 3,500,000 crowns for dollar remittances for films in the calendar year 1951, a reduction of 300,000 crowns from the 1950 allocation. The allocation for 1952 covering dollar remittances is not known. (One Danish crown equals U. S. $0.1448). Film rental receipts due United States producers in excess of these dollar remittances will continue to be blocked to the account of the producer. No proposal has been made as yet for use of these blocked funds. Films can be imported only when an appropriate license has been issued by the Board of Supply.

In November 1949 legislation was passed providing financial assistance to Danish film producers. The law provides for 25 per cent of the entertainment tax receipts from exhibition of Danish films to be remitted to the producer of the film. In June 1951 ceiling prices on theater tickets were abolished and prices have increased by an estimated 12 to 15 per cent.

FINLAND—There are no quotas limiting the number of films which may be imported into Finland, however, restrictions on the transfer of foreign exchange may tend to reduce the distribution of imported films. Import licenses are required but carry no title to foreign exchange, for which a separate application is required.

FRANCE—After prolonged and somewhat fruitless negotiations, beginning in May 1952, it was suddenly announced in November 1952 that a new accord had been reached between the American film industry and the French Government. The Joint Franco-American Declaration on Motion Pictures, which authorized the annual importation of 121 dubbed United States features and provided for the annual transfer of $1,186,795 from current earnings and $2,438,205 to liquidate accumulated blocked earnings, expired on June 30, 1952. According to the trade papers, this new agreement provides for importation of approximately the same number of films as during the previous agreement. Remittances of current film earnings under the new accord are reported to be at the rate of $120,000 monthly at the official rate of exchange, with accumulated blocked film earnings remittable at the less favorable capital account rate. Under the terms of this new agreement distribution of United States films in France would continue at about the same level as during the life of the Joint Franco-American Declaration which expired on June 30, 1952.

Playing time regulations require French films to be exhibited five weeks out of each thirteen. In September 1948 the French Government created a fund for the subsidy of the French film industry. Revenue for the fund is supplied by taxes on theater admissions and on a meterage tax based on the length of the film. The bulk of the revenue for this subsidy is derived from taxes levied on United States films.

GERMANY—No import quota regulations are in effect which would reduce or prevent distribution of United States films in Western Germany. A draft screen quota bill which has been pending before the German Parliament for some time has been shelved and no action to enact it into law is expected in the near future. This bill would have required theater owners to reserve a certain percentage of screen time for German films. Import licenses are required for importation of films. All revenue earned by United States film companies in Western Germany is blocked. During the past several years an Informational Media Guaranty Program has been in operation whereby the United States Government guaranteed current expenses of United States producers for operations in Western Germany. In January 1953 it was reported that a total of $4,900,000 had been paid under this guaranty program to United States film companies for what would have otherwise been blocked earnings in Germany.

GIBRALTAR—All booking of films into Gibraltar is done through London. Applications for dollars are made to the Financial Secretary of the Colony, and dollars can be had for the purchase of United States films only if the British Financial Secretary in England approves. A Gibraltar Ordinance provides that all U. S. dollars acquired must be surrendered to the Government. It is unlikely that permit to import films and export currency from Gibraltar would be granted.

GREECE—The Bank of Greece issued a resolution dated July 31, 1952, authorizing an allocation of $500,000 for the importation of United States motion pictures during the year ending June 30, 1953, the same amount that has been allocated in the past several years. The $500,000 shall be made available in four quarterly installments of $125,000 each from free dollar holdings of the Bank of Greece. The amount authorized shall be used in the first place to cover print costs of motion pictures imported from the United States as well as the value of pertinent advertising materials and transportation charges to the port of destination for all types of United States films including short subjects and newsreels. Any balance left over after these initial payments shall be used for the payment of film royalties. Import licenses are required and are obtained from the Ministry of National Economy.

HUNGARY—Production, distribution, and exhibition of motion pictures in Hungary have been nationalized and are completely under Government control. A contract which was signed with the Motion Picture Export Association in 1948 was never honored and the films under the contract were never released in Hungary. No new U. S. films are known to have been released in Hungary in recent years. MPEA reported that in March 1950 the Hungarian Government issued an order requiring it to surrender all motion picture prints of member companies on hand in Hungary to the Ministry of Education.

ICELAND—Imports of motion pictures into Iceland have been curtailed since the beginning of 1948 because of shortage of foreign currencies, especially dollars. Import and currency licenses are required. The currency permit does not guarantee foreign exchange which is dependent upon exchange available and a priority determined by a foreign exchange committee.

IRELAND—The importation of motion pictures into Ireland continues to be handled from the United Kingdom. All United States films that are exhibited are obtained from the British subsidiaries of United States film companies and payment is made in sterling. No quotas or other import regulations are in effect in Ireland that restrict importation and exhibition of United States films.

ITALY—Under the terms of the agreement of June 30, 1951, between the Italian and United States motion picture industries, which was approved by the Italian Government, funds accruing to distributors from the exhibition of American pictures in Italy may be disposed of as follows: 37½ per cent to be remitted to the United States in dollars at the official rate of exchange; 12½ per cent to be paid to Italian Film Export, the newly established organization for promotion of exports of Italian films; and the remaining 50 per cent to remain in Italy in the so-called "Motion Picture Blocked Account" for uses specified in the agreement, such as production or co-production of films in Italy and the purchase of Italian films for distribution abroad. Import permits are required for motion picture films. This agreement appears to have operated to the satisfaction of both the Italian and United States film industries.

The Italian film law, effective January 1, 1950, required exhibitors to reserve a minimum of 20 days each quarter for the showing of Italian feature films, established a government contribution to feature film producers equal to 10 per cent of the gross receipts, and provided that exhibitors screening Italian feature films have the right to retain 20 per cent of the taxes payable by law on admissions. Italian exhibitors must include in each program the showing of at least one national short film, either documentary or newsreel. Effective September 1, 1952, a new decree published in the Official Gazette established provisions governing film rental contracts and is valid until June 15, 1953. Under this new decree, contracts for the rental of films must be drawn up under one of the following arrangements: At a fixed price; at a fixed price plus 25 per cent of net receipts for theaters which averaged not over 30,000 lire per day during 1951 and 30 per cent for theaters with net receipts higher than an average of 30,000 lire per day and at a fixed percentage not over 40 per cent of net receipts, this rate may be increased to 50 per cent in respect of films of exceptional artistic value.

LUXEMBOURG—There are no trade restrictions which might prevent, retard, or hinder United States films being shown in Luxembourg and no such measures are contemplated. Import permits are not required. Films rented by the Luxembourg theaters are paid for through Belgium and adequate foreign exchange has been available for this purpose.

MALTA—All United States and British films entering Malta are brought into the country through London and are distributed by the Malta United Film Corporation, a subsidiary of the Kinematograph Renters Society in London.

NETHERLANDS—An import license is required for the importation of motion pictures and is obtained from the Nederlandsche Bioscoop Bond (Netherlands Motion Picture Association). Regulations governing playing time of films provide that exhibitors should show for at least 12 weeks feature films that had not been made in the United States and for which no dollars were to be paid or from which no dollar debt would arise. The amount of foreign exchange made available for the importation of motion pictures from the United States in 1951 and 1952 was fixed at the dollar equivalent of 4,800,000 guilders for each year (one guilder equals about 26 cents in U. S. currency). The maximum percentage which may be paid from the net box-office income for film rentals in 1952 was again fixed at 32½ per cent, exclusive of newsreels. The Netherlands Bank has agreed to allow an increase of the film rental percentage to about 40 per cent for four or five special films each year. With respect to films payable in dollars a maximum of 65 per cent of the above 32½ per cent is transferable to the foreign producer. The conditions attached to the 1952 foreign exchange quota are virtually the same as in in the past several years.

NORWAY—There are no pertinent quota or contingent measures in effect in Norway for the importation of United States films. Import permits are required. Arrangements for the transfer of dolars remained the same during 1950 and 1951. Restrictions on the transfer of royalties and the estimated amount of crowns to be set aside for operating expenses out of 1951 earnings were as follows: A total of 4,000,000 crowns was allocated of which 35 per cent could be transferred in dollars, 35 per cent was to go into a blocked account for transfer in equal parts during the next four years (1951-55), and 30 per cent was to be made available to Norwegian distributors of United States films for operating expenses. Information on the transfer of film royalties in 1952 is not available, however, it is believed to have been about the same as in 1951. Late in 1952 U. S. film companies initiated negotiations in Norway seeking to obtain an increase in the 30 per cent film rental ceiling. However, as of the end of January 1953 no agreement had been reached. (7.135 Norwegian crowns equals U.S. $1.00)

POLAND—Government owned "Film Polski" has a monopoly of production, distribution, and exhibition of motion pictures for the entire country of Poland. All transfers of foreign exchange are subject to the approval of the Polish Government. Due to the serious shortage of foreign exchange in this country, the obtaining of such permits is extremely difficult. To date no foreign exchange has been secured for U. S. films. Import permits are required.

PORTUGAL—Remittances of accumulated royalties has been free of complications during recent years, however, from date of August 1947, they have become subject to prior sanction of the Bank of Portugal. Theaters must exhibit Portuguese films one week to every five weeks of foreign films, except when national productions are not available. Since February 9, 1948, licenses have been required for all imports. Distributors have not yet experienced difficulty in obtaining licenses for films. On August 6, 1948, distributors were officially notified that they would be permitted to remit in 1948 the same amount of dollars remitted in 1947 and that U. S. film imports could not exceed those of 1947. During the past several years a total of $600,000 annually has been allocated for motion picture films.

RUMANIA—On November 2, 1948, a decree was approved nationalizing all motion picture enterprises in Rumania, which covered all studios, laboratories, import, export, rental and marketing concerns with all their properties, equipment, furnishing and inventories. Foreign exchange may be transferred only upon approval by the National Bank of Rumania and as far as is known no transfers for U. S. films have been made during the past year.

SPAIN—After rather lengthy negotiations, representatives of the United States motion picture industry concluded an agreement with the Spanish authorities by the terms of which 100 United States films could be imported into Spain during the year beginning March 1, 1952. Of the total of 100 films to be imported, 60 import licenses were to be reserved for United States producers represented in Spain and the remaining 40 films could be imported by the unaffiliated Spanish distributors. In addition to the establishment of a fixed quota, which represented an increase of approximately 30 per cent over the number of U. S. films imported in recent years, the agreement provided for a fixed fee for the import license and dubbing permit of 638,000 pesetas, payable in pesetas to the Spanish Government. Heretofore, import licenses were acquired at a cost in excess of 1,000,000 pesetas by direct purchase from the Spanish producers who had been granted licenses as premiums for their productions. Although there have been delays and difficulties encountered in the implementation of this agreement, it is believed that should the provisions of this agreement be fully complied with there would be a wider distribution of U. S. films in Spain.

Spanish theaters must show Spanish films one week out of six unless the film industry cannot provide the exhibitor with a Spanish production in which case he may continue to show foreign films. This is often the case. A newsreel must be shown on each theater program and the only newsreel permitted in Spain is the nationally produced "NO-DO."

SWEDEN—The Swedish foreign exchange control regulations make no provision for the allocation of dollar exchange for the transfer of any amount of current film royalties. The transfer of film rentals and royalties is subject to a special agreement between the Swedish Riksbank and the United States film companies. In renewing the annual agreement in August 1952, it was reported that the Swedish Government somewhat liberalized its restrictions on the transfer of current film royalties. The present agreement expires in August 1953. Blocked film earnings may be liquidated by way of special compensation transactions. Import licenses are required for motion pictures films, but are readily granted with the notation that approval of the import license does not authorize allocation of foreign exchange. Up to the present time it has been possible to obtain raw stock film, negatives, and prints as have been needed to maintain normal distribution in Sweden of United States films.

SWITZERLAND—Imports of films are controlled by the quasi-official Swiss Film Chamber in Bern, which issues import permits to holders of quotas. Quotas for the importation of films into Switzerland are based on the Federal Decree of July 7, 1939, which granted distributors the right to import feature films to the same extent as imported during the 4-year period January 1935 through December 1938. The usual quota assigned to an importer is equal to at least 50 per cent and at most 70 per cent of the average number of 35 mm. features he imported during this four-year period. During 1949 and 1950, the import quota was fixed at 70 per cent of the base period, however, for 1951 and 1952 it was reduced to 60 per cent. Provision is made for special cases, both for extra quotas for established importers and for assignment of quotas to importers who did not exist in the market in 1938. Contingents are based on titles and are allotted to individual importers and not to countries. There are no restrictions on the transefr of foreign exchange.

TURKEY—No quota or contingent measures which might reduce or prevent the distribution of U. S. motion pictures are in effect in Turkey. An import and foreign exchange permit must be obtained from the Turkish authorities. This permit can be obtained only after the motion picture has been approved by the Turkish Censorship Board. Although the thransfer abroad of foreign exchange is strictly controlled, up to the present time, no difficulty has been encountered in obtaining dollars to pay for imported motion pictures. Because of the nature of exchange regulations, United States film companies are not operating in Turkey as distributors of their films. Copies of their films are sold outright to Turkish distributors rather than leasing them on a percentage basis as is done in practically every major market in the world.

Motion picture imports are subject to a transaction tax, which is assessed on most types of processed and semi-processed goods, imported into turkey at a rate of 18 per cent of landed cost (which is defined to include customs duties and various miscellaneous taxes). In March, 1948, the Turkish fiscal authorities ruled that not only was the motion picture films involved in imported copies subject to this tax but that the royalties or their equivalent were to be included in calculating the basis of the tax. In spite of strong protests by importers and distributors, since that date the 18 per cent transaction tax has been levied on the royalty as well as the cost of the films used in imported copies.

There is also a substantial admission tax differential in favor of Turkish films which gives a strong impetus to the domestic industry. All efforts to have this differential reduced or removed have failed.

U.S.S.R.—The Soviet film industry is a Government monopoly under the jurisdiction of the Ministry of the Motion Picture Industry, and both domestic production and importation of foreign films are subject to the regulations of this ministry. In September 1948 an agreement was negotiated providing for the purchase of United States feature films for showing in Russia with payment to be made in dollars. However, delays were encountered in obtaining final Soviet approval of the agreement and no United States films were released in Russia.

UNITED KINGDOM—The new Anglo-American film agreement to cover the year beginning October 1, 1952, again provides for the transfer of $17,000,000 annually and contains provisions permitting convertibility of certain amounts of United States production investments in Britain. Under an agreed upon modification, the United States industry will waive its rights to convert and remit the United States distributors' share of the Eady Tax Plan money, which provides for subsidies to producers, distributors, and exhibitors in the United Kingdom. Eady Plan remittances during the year ending September 30, 1952 were estimated to range from $4,000,000 to $6,000,000. It is, therefore, expected that the United States film companies will be able to remit approximately $20,000,000 during the current fiscal year as compared to about $25,000,000 during the preceding year.

Government trade restrictions on the showing of foreign films have been in effect in the United Kingdom since 1927. At present 30 per cent of the first feature films exhibited in British theaters and 25 per cent of the supporting films (second features and shorts) must be British productions. The so-called Eady Plan to assist the British Film industry was put into operation in September 1950, and has been extended until August 1954. This plan called for an increase in the entertainment tax to establish a subsidy to be used by the British film producers, distributors, and exhibitors.

Separate import licenses have been required for all motion picture films except newsreels since May 1948.

The National Film Finance Corporation was established in March 1949 with an initial grant of 5,000,000 pounds sterling as an operating fund from which loans could be made to assist British producers. In 1950 an additional 1,000,000 pounds sterling was made available to the Corporation. In its annual report for the year ending March 31, 1952, the Corporation reported that for the first time in its three years of life it had made a net profit amounting to 10,891 pounds compared with the previous year's deficit of 675,850 pounds. This encouraging trend is attributed to a considerable reduction in production costs, improved income to producers through the Eady Plan, and efficiency in selection of films to be financed. A total of 78 films were financed by the Corporation in the year ending March 31, 1952.

YUGOSLAVIA—The motion picture industry in Yugoslavia has been nationalized and all phases of the industry including production, distribution, and exhibition are entirely controlled by the Government. In October 1948 an agreement was signed with the Yugoslav Government providing for the purchase of a number of United States films with payment to be made in dollars. This agreement was significant in that U. S. films again entered this market and also it represented a reversal in the film policy of the Yugoslav Government. Prior to the agreement the official attitude was one of hostility to U. S. films and to encourage showing of Soviet pictures. There is an indication that the trend toward re-appearance of U. S. films has been accelerated and it may be accurate to state that U. S. films are now predominant in Yugoslavia. The chief problem in connection with the importation of United States films into Yugoslavia is that of transferring the growing balance of blocked funds.

It was announced in March 1952 that an Informational Media Guaranty Program in the amount of $300,000 had been established to enable Yugoslavs to purchase or lease U. S. motion pictures. U. S. distributors after signing contracts with the Mutual Security Agency, would accept payment in the currency of Yugoslavia with the Mutual Security Agency guaranteeing conversion to dollars where necessary.

CANADA

On December 14, 1951 the permit requirements for foreign exchange remittances were removed. Th Canadian distributor is permitted to remit, at the going, or current, rate of exchange, to the United States producer the net profits on rentals and royalties, less a withholding tax of 10 per cent. United States motion pictures enter and are distributed freely throughout Canada without quota or exhibition restrictions.

SOUTH AMERICA

ARGENTINA—After not granting import permits for the United States films since March 1949, the Argentine Government on June 29, 1951 suddenly invited American film distributors to apply for import permits in unlimited quantity and promised that in due course the Argentine Central Bank would consider authorization for pertinent remittances. Upon receiving the announcement United States film distributors immediately applied for import permits and the Central Bank approved in short order the import of some 480 feature pictures consisting largely of the finest United States productions of 1949, 1950, and 1951. United States films continued to enter Argentina regularly during 1952. There were delays in clearing films through the Argentina Censorship Board however, clearance was received on sufficient films to maintain distribution. Transfer of film earnings, however, has not as yet been authorized.

In March 1952 the Argentine Government announced that they would not allow the exhibition of newsreels originating in countries which do not show newsreels made in Argentina. No Argentine newsreels are at present being shown in the United States, however, any exhibitor in the United States is free to import such films if he so desires.

A five-year agreement signed in May 1950 provided that American films could be imported without restrictions and that film earnings were to be remitted at the rate of 100,000,000 pesos annually during the life of the agreement. Implementation of the agreement has not been wholly satisfactory, for although U. S. films are again permitted to be imported into the country no arrangements have been made for the transfer of film earnings. However, at the close of 1952 there were signs that indicated that the transfer of accumulated peso profits of United States film companies may be authorized.

The Argentine Government issued a decree, dated August 9, 1950, affording Argentine producers protection in the exhibition of their films. Under this decree, first-run theaters and other principal theaters of the suburbs, called intermediate theaters, must show Argentine pictures one week out of every month, while other theaters must exhibit Argentine pictures three weeks out of every six. The decree also states that should the receipts from the Argentine film be equal to 80 per cent of the "holdover requirement" for foreign films, the Argentine film will continue in the first-run theater for another and subsequent weeks. The decree augments the minimum percentage of gross receipts which the Argentine exhibitor must pay as a rental for Argentine films. First-run theaters must pay as rental at least 50 per cent, intermediate theaters 45 per cent, and other theaters 40 per cent during the first week of exhibition and 30 per cent during subsequent weeks.

BOLIVIA—Import permits are required for motion pictures and are granted on the basis of the amount of foreign exchange allocated by the Minister of Finance. An amount of $140,000 was allotted for the importation of 35-mm. entertainment films for the year 1950. The allotment is distributed among the three importers. Two of the importers bring in films on the basis of a fixed cost with payment made at the time of importation, the other imports films on a percentage basis. Because of the restrictions in the granting of foreign exchange fewer new pictures are being imported into Bolivia and theaters are maintaining their operations by using old films which have already been exhibited in Bolivia several times.

BRAZIL—United States film companies have encountered considerable difficulty throughout the year in their efforts to distribute American newsreels and feature films in Brazil. Early in 1952 U. S. film companies discontinued shipments of newsreels to Brazil when the Brazilian Government demanded compliance with a decree forcing them to acquire, for export, Brazilian short subjects in the proportion of 10 per cent of the U. S. footage imported during 1951. At the end of 1952 this suspension was still in effect. Playing time regulations require that Brazilian films must be shown in the ratio of one Brazilian film program to every 8 foreign film programs. The Brazilian press reported in October 1952 that the Bank of Brazil had issued new regulations which would require importers to have foreign films copied in Brazilian laboratories beginning January 1, 1953. These new regulations state that import licenses will be granted for only one copy of black and white 35 mm. pictures, either positive or negative. Remittances of film earnings have been delayed by exchange shortages, however, the trade reports that such delays are not discriminatory and are no longer than for other commercial transactions.

Of greater importance to distributors of U. S. films is a draft law, now pending in the Brazilian Congress, which would create a National Motion Picture Institute to regulate all phases of the industry and to aid the development of its own film industry. This draft law would provide for much higher censorship fees which, together with the import license fee, would bring the total cost of importing one U. S. feature film to about $2,800. A lower censorship fee would be charged if prints of the film were made in Brazilian laboratories. The new bill retains the 8 to 1 ratio for showing of Brazilian films and requires importers of newsreels to purchase short Brazilian films for export in the proportion of 10 per cent of imports. This draft law, if enacted, would seriously affect the distribution of foreign films in Brazil.

BRITISH GUIANA—Other than the regulation that 10 per cent British feature films and 50 per cent British newsreels must be shown annually, there are no quota measures which might reduce or prevent distribution of U. S. films. All film revenue from British Guiana is remitted to the film distributors who maintain head offices in Trinidad.

CHILE—No special restrictions are imposed on the entry of United States motion pictures into Chile. For the past several years United States film distributors in Chile have been encountering difficulties in obtaining foreign exchange to remit to their principals. Budget allocations for entertainment films from all sources (35 mm. and 16 mm.) in 1950 were fixed at $360,000 in U. S. currency and $110,000 in other currencies, which is practically the same amounts as allocated in 1948 and 1949. However, in 1951 there was no official allocation of dollars for motion pictures and all foreign exchange for payment of rental on motion pictures now has to be obtained at the free market rate of exchange which is considerably higher than the official rate. In December 1952 the free market rate was approximately 127 pesos to the dollar. Import permits are required. No measures make it mandatory to exhibit national films nor are there any laws which require that a percentage of domestic films be exhibited in each theater.

COLOMBIA—There are no quota contingent measures in effect at the present time which reduce or prevent distribution of United States pictures in Colombia. Import permits are required for all merchandise brought into the country. Distributors of United States films have encountered no difficulty in obtaining import permits. The problem of remittance of film royalties on foreign films has largely disappeared. Royalty remittances are almost up to date and there seems to be little reason to expect that remittances will again be held up.

ECUADOR—There are no trade restrictions which prevent or restrict distribution of United States films in Ecuador. Motion Picture films imported into Ecuador are included in the "C" or "luxury" list of imports and foreign exchange for film remittances must be obtained in the legal free market. It is reported that dollar exchange is available for such remittances.

PARAGUAY—The only restrictions imposed on the importation of foreign motion pictures into Paraguay are those arising from the severe shortage of foreign exchange available. Import permits are issued by the Bank of Paraguay on the basis of monetary expenditure per program. In 1951 the Bank of Paraguay permitted each of the three first-run theaters in Asuncion to import 52 film programs or a total of 156. Foreign exchange was made available for these imports at the rate of $1,000 per set for 81 programs from the United States and a total of 825,000 Argentine pesos for the other 75 programs. During 1952 there were four first-run theaters operating in Asuncion, however, no increase in the number of films imported has been reported.

PERU—Motion pictures may be entered without license or authorization of any kind. The status of remittances of film earnings remains unchanged. Applications for the revalidation of official exchange purchase permits granted through August 1948 are still pending action. Foreign exchange for remittance of film earnings since August 1948 must be obtained in the free market.

SURINAM—In Surinam each exhibitor of films is limited in his exhibition by currency exchange restrictions. Remittance of the film companies for showing of films is 32½ per cent of the gross receipts. Each exhibitor is allowed exchange for U. S. currency in proportion to his volume of business, 75 per cent of the allowed quota may be remitted in dollars and the remaining 25 per cent in pounds sterling. Import licenses will be granted for motion picture films only by special permission of the Foreign Exchange Control Board.

URUGUAY—Import permits are required and applications must be made to the office of the Contralor de Exportaciones e Importaciones for both an import license and the necessary foreign exchange. While no quantitative restrictions are imposed on the importation of motion pictures, United States distributors encounter difficulties on account of the strictness of the exchange control authorities in the allocation of dollars for imports. Film imports are included in the list of non-essential or luxury items (Category 3) for the purpose of allocation of exchange. This means that exchange will be granted after all items in Categories one and two are given full consideration. Remittances of film royalties is effected at the free market rate.

VENEZUELA—No permits are required for the importation of motion pictures nor the the purchase of exchange in payment of such imports. There are at present no import or foreign exchange restrictions which would serve to restrict the showing of U. S. films in Venezuela.

MEXICO AND CENTRAL AMERICA

MEXICO—Since February 1949, an import permit has been required for motion picture films. There are no quantitative restrictions on the importation of motion pictures and no difficulty has been encountered in the transfer of dollar exchange for film remittances. The distribution of United States films in Mexico during 1952, however, did not proceed altogether smoothly. The old bugbear of quotas on screen time of motion pictures reappeared in the guise of revisions to the Motion Picture Law which was passed by the Mexican Senate on October 14. Among other things, this law provides that in no theater will the exhibition time of Mexican films fall below 50 per cent of all films screened in that theater. A similar provision previously enacted by the Mexican Government is awaiting decision in the Mexican Supreme Court as to its constitutionality. Direct governmental control over the film industry is reinforced by the revised law and its provisions extend to films for television. Should the provisions of this law be put into force it would seriously affect the distribution of U. S. films in Mexico.

A new tariff rate, representing a 60 per cent increase on positive prints of motion pictures imported into Mexico was put into effect on October 11. The duty, which was formerly about $2.90 per legal kilogram, plus 10 per cent ad valorem, was raised to about $4.60 per legal kilogram plus 10 per cent ad valorem. United States distributors estimate that this impost will increase their costs about $85,000 annually.

COSTA RICA—No quota or contingent measures are in effect in Costa Rica that might interfere with the showing of United States films. There are no restrictions prohibiting or limiting the transfer of foreign exchange, however, all exchange required for the payment of rentals on films must be obtained in the free market. At the end of 1952 the official rate of exchange was 5.67 colones to the dollar while the free market rate was about 6.65 colones to the dollar.

EL SALVADOR—There are no trade restrictions designed to reduce or prevent the distribution of United States films in El Salvador. Import permits are not required and no difficulty has been encountered in the transfer of foreign exchange. All distribution of films is handled by the Circuito de Teatros Nacionales, a governmental monopoly.

GUATEMALA—Import permits are not required and there are no foreign exchange restrictions in Guatemala.

HONDURAS—Import permits are not required, and while foreign exchange for films, as well as all other foreign exchange transactions, must be cleared by the Foreign Exchange Control Commission, no difficulty has been encountered.

NICARAGUA—Importation of motion picture films into Nicaragua has remained unrestricted and import permits are not required. The banks, however, do not authorize foreign exchange at the official rate of 5 cordobas to the dollar for the importation of motion pictures. Distributors are forced to procure necessary dollars at the curb exchange rate which in December 1952 was about 7 to 7.40 cordobas to the dollar.

PANAMA—Import permits are not required. United States currency is the medium of exchange in Panama and there are no restrictions prohibiting or limiting the transfer of funds.

CUBA—There are no laws in effect in Cuba that restrict the importation of exhibition of United States motion pictures; neither are there any exchange controls or quota restrictions which might hamper the marketing of pictures. In November 1952 a decree-law authorized an Executive Commission for the Film Industry to advance producers up to 33 per cent of the production costs of a film against subsequent repayment from receipts. The law also empowered the Commission to acquire studios and production equipment, to lease these facilities to private producers at low cost, to hire studio personnel as necessary, and to promote the film industry's development in other respects with the funds at the Commission's disposal. The Government-owned "Film City" in the suburbs of Habana was completed in 1952 but the studios have not been put to use so far because of lack of production equipment and the hesitancy of Cuban producers to undertake feature-length production in the face of indifferent box-office returns of Cuban films.

DOMINICAN REPUBLIC — No restrictions on importation of films or transfer of foreign exchange.

AFRICA

ALGERIA—The agreement between the U. S. film industry and the French Government also applies to Algeria, and regulations concerning the importation of films are similar to those in France. The direct importation of films from foreign countries has practically ceased and normally all films are sent first to Paris for dubbing and then brought into Algeria. Import permits are not required for films imported from France but would be required for films coming in from all other countries. Playing time regulations are still in effect reserving four weeks out of each thirteen for the showing of French films. Film earnings are either deposited locally or remitted to Paris.

ANGOLA—There are no governmental regulations in Angola tending to restrict or even hinder the presentation of American motion pictures in favor of those of other countries. Films are brought in and shown throughout the country irrespective of origin, and while permits are required for the importation of films, the distributors state that no difficulties are encountered in obtaining permits for their requirements. Since the great majority of imported films are received from Lisbon film distributors, foreign exchange presents no problem, as all payments are made in Portuguesse escudos. A few films are received from South Africa.

BELGIAN CONGO—Import permits are not required for motion pictures and although licenses are required for the transfer of foreign exchange, no difficulties have been experienced in securing dollars to pay for U. S. films.

BRITISH EAST AFRICA—There are no legal restrictions placed on United States films entering British East Africa for exhibition. All films exhibited are received from South Africa for which sterling is paid and there is no problem of the shortage of dollars. United States films continue to dominate the market and it seems unlikely that any measures are contemplated to reduce the number of films imported. An estimate is made to the Government as to the number of films expected to be imported from South Africa and permits are freely granted by the imports controller.

EGYPT—The Egyptian Government has no quotas or contingent measures limiting the number of foreign films which may be imported and exhibited. Importers of United States films must apply to the Exchange Control for import permits and the necessary dollar allocation. No permits are required for films from soft currency countries. United States film companies are operating under a provisional agreement whereby 35 per cent of their film earnings are eligible for remittance in dollars and another 35 per cent may be remitted as transferable pounds sterling. Egyptian theaters have an agreement with the Government under which they reserve at least 4 weeks yearly for the showing of Egyptian films. There is no objection to United States films dubbed in Arabic, however, each company distributing American films has agreed not to dub more than three feature pictures per year.

ETHIOPIA—The only trade restrictions on the importation and distribution of United States films in Ethiopia are the customs duties levied on them. Although exchange control measures are in effect, all United States films are obtained from Middle East distributors and are paid for in pounds sterling and to date the Exchange Controller has granted all requests for exchange to finance their importation.

FRENCH MOROCCO—Import permits are required for all goods, including films, arriving from all countries except France. Since almost all U. S. film companies have their distribution offices in Paris, films usually enter without formalities. The transfer of foreign exchange is subject to approval of the Protectorate Government, which has not been inclined to make dollars available for film revenues. In actual practice, U. S. film companies send their franc profits to their head offices in Paris.

FRENCH WEST AFRICA—All imported films are brought in from France and may be freely imported into French West Africa without quota restrictions or import licenses. Film distributors handle their revenues in French francs. There is a requirement that French films must be shown for 6 out of each 13 weeks. During the other 7 weeks of each quarter foreign films may be shown.

GOLD COAST—An import permit must be secured before goods can be imported into the Gold Coast and imports from the United States are allowed only if the item is essential and cannot be secured from the sterling area. All films, including those originating in the United States, are imported from the United Kingdom or from Nigeria.

LIBERIA—Import permits are not required and there are no restrictions on the transfer of foreign exchange. No 35mm. films are exhibited in Liberia, only 16mm. films being shown in the three theaters in operation. There is one 35mm. theater in Sierra Leone which imports all of its films through the United Kingdom.

MADAGASCAR—Import licenses are required for motion pictures imported from countries other than France. Because of the dollar shortage and exchange restrictions, films are imported from France and are paid for in francs. This does not mean that all films are of French production, about 60 per cent of the films received are of United States origin, but all films are dubbed in the French language in France before being imported. Regulations require that one-third of the pictures shown must be French films.

MOZAMBIQUE—Import permits are required, but film exhibitors have not had any difficulty obtaining films since most South African distributors have found it possible to accept payment for their rental fees in South African pounds. In those few cases where dollar payments were required, the exchange has been made available.

NIGERIA—The Government of Nigeria and the Gold Coast have agreed to a consolidated dollar allocation for both colonies for the purchase of United States motion picture films. Films imported into one colony are also shown in the other. Practically all films exhibited are brought in from agents in the United Kingdom. Import permits are required.

TANGIER AND SPANISH MOROCCO—Import permits into Tangier are not required. Tangier is a free money market and foreign exchange is available, though expensive. Most Tangier exhibitors pay for film rental in either Moroccan francs or Spanish pesetas. In Spanish Morocco exhibitors customarily show only Spanish films, although there is no requirement to do so. Spanish Moroccan exhibitors obtain their films from Spain and import permits are not required and foreign exchange is made available only through Madrid.

TUNISIA—Import permits are required for all importations involving foreign currency. Practically all of the United States films shown in Tunisia are imported from France, generally via Algiers, and enter Tunisia without import permit. Foreign exchange offers no immediate problem since films, whether foreign or French are usually paid for in francs. Trade sources state that there are now no limitations on distribution of foreign films that have been dubbed into the French language. According to film distributors, each United States producer is limited to 14 films each year but this rule is not strictly enforced. The obligation for each theater in the country to show at least 12 French films yearly is still in effect, and in practice this quota is usually exceeded. Foreign films that have not been dubbed must have French sub-titles and the showing of such films is limited to two runs in Tunisia, irrespective of length of run, usually one or two weeks.

UNION OF SOUTH AFRICA—In November 1948 the South African Government announced new exchange and import controls which subsequently affected imports from the United States and other non-sterling countries. Importers of United States motion picture films were permitted to remit in dollars only 50 per cent of the total amount they remitted to the United States companies in the calendar year 1947. This exchange control scheme was replaced by a comprehensive import licensing system effective July 1, 1949, governing all imports from all countries including the sterling area. Under this new system, importers of United States films are permitted freely to import their product under open licenses, but are allowed to remit only a portion of their film earnings. Money which cannot be remitted is being held in blocked accounts and no indications have been given for its eventual release. There has been no notable decline in the number of United States films shown in South Africa since the introduction of these import controls.

SOUTH PACIFIC, ASIA, AND THE EAST

AUSTRALIA—The most serious restriction imposed on the distribution of United States films is that covering remittances to the United States of film royalties earned in Australia. From 1948 through 1950 payments of film royalties were restricted to 50 per cent of earnings returned in the base year 1946, however, the trade papers reported that in 1951 the Australian Government permitted the U. S. film companies to remit a larger percentage of their current earnings and permitted the transfer of some of the blocked funds. Import permits are required but there are no restrictions on the number of films to be imported. In the states of New South Wales and Victoria there are quota laws, determined yearly, which govern the percentage of Australian and British films to be shown. In New South Wales distributors are required to distribute a number of Australian films equal to three per cent of the total number of films distributed, and exhibitors are required to exhibit 2.5 per cent Australian films and 15 per cent British films. In Victoria the law provides a quota for Australian films which is the same as in New South Wales, but does not require the showing of British films. When it is not economically feasible to maintain this quota the restriction is waived and in practice the quotas are seldom adhered to.

BURMA—There are no quota or contingent measures which might restrict or prevent the distribution of United States films in Burma. Import licenses are required but are generally issued without much difficulty. The principal problems encountered in Burma are the scarcity of dollar exchange and the difficulty in remitting film earnings. In principle no importation of any article is permitted unless foreign exchange for the payment is available. However, while little restriction is imposed on the issuance of import licenses for motion pictures, earnings derived from the exhibition of these films are blocked.

CEYLON—On June 28, 1951, motion picture films were placed under open general license and the import restrictions on imports from dollar areas were withdrawn. Previously it was necessary to obtain an import license for films from dollar areas. Exchange controls which came into effect in June 1948 have not seriously hampered the importation of films. Transmission of foreign exchange is controlled by the Controller of Exchange. The annual quota for motion pictures is about $200,000 established on a historical basis, using the year 1946 as the base period.

CHINA—The communist regime has taken over over complete control of production, distribution, and exhibition of motion picture films in all areas of China under their control and so far as is known, United States films are not being exhibited.

FIJI ISLANDS—Most films shown in the Fiji Islands are imported from New Zealand and payments is made in New Zealand pounds. Films imported directly from the United States would be subject to license requirements applicable to imports from hard currency areas.

HONG KONG—Import permits are not required for motion pictures but after delivery has been taken the motion pictures must be declared to the government for censorship purposes. A quota has been set up whereby theaters are required to show 7 days of British films for every 70 days of United States pictures. This has not been strictly adhered to because of the insufficient supply of British films. There are no measures making it mandatory to show Hong Kong produced films. No limitations are placed on the amount of foreign exchange transferred for motion pictures.

INDIA—Imports of motion pictures into India are regulated by licenses issued by Governmental import control authorities. Licenses are granted against quotas prescribed for individual importers on the basis of their past imports. The ultimate object in restricting imports is to conserve foreign exchange. Transmission of foreign exchange is controlled by the Reserve Bank of India and is automatically limited by restricting imports.

INDOCHINA—Import permits are required for films brought into Indochina from all countries other than France. Because of Indochina's foreign exchange position import permits are not generally granted to dollar areas and practically all films are brought into the country from France, including those of United States production. The most popular method of obtaining United States films for distribution is by purchase since the question of dollar remittances on earnings is a very delicate one and exchange control authorities are endeavoring to curtail dollar expenditures. Films may be distributed only by firms authorized by the Government. Theaters must show French films five weeks out of each thirteen. French influence is expected to remain strong and every effort will be made to push French motion pictures.

INDONESIA—The principal difficulty encountered in distributing United States films in Indonesia is that of securing foreign exchange with which to remit film earnings. The film companies' already large blocked balances, which increase steadily as the bulk of their income cannot be remitted abroad, continued to be the major problem confronting distributors of U. S. films. Negotiations have been carried on during the past two years endeavoring to reach some solution for the disposition of at least a portion of these blocked earnings. There are no quantitative restrictions placed on the imports of films into Indonesia, such as import quotas or playing time restrictions, however, the difficulty encountered in remitting film earnings may have some influence on the number and quality of films imported.

Film censorship in Indonesia has become more severe and forecasts are that this trend will continue. It is reported that a much larger percentage of United States films are being rejected by the censors. The censors have received a number of letters from various parts of Indonesia, notably from educational organizations, urging them to be more strict in censoring films which might adversely affect the "moral reconstruction" of the Indonesian people.

JAPAN—Imports of United States motion pictures into Japan during the fiscal year beginning April 1, 1952 were limited to 152 feature films. During the previous year the import quota for U. S. films was 150 pictures. The Japanese Government permits foreign film companies to remit 30 per cent of their current film rentals, but insists that the remaining 70 per cent must be retained in Japan. The United States film industry throughout 1952 was in a most constant negotiations with the Japanese Government trying to liquidate frozen yen balances and to arrive at an equitable distribution of import licenses among the various U. S. film companies operating in Japan.

NEW CALEDONIA—Import permits for foreign films are not required, however, special authorization is needed to purchase foreign exchange. There is strict Government control of all transactions which require the transfer of foreign exchange. Permits for the use of foreign exchange are issued theoretically only for items considered of prime necessity. However, in actual practice it has been possible for film importers to obtain the foreign exchange required to fill most of their needs.

NEW ZEALAND—New Zealand law makes it mandatory for film distributors to acquire British films to the extent of not less than 20 per cent of the number of foreign feature films exhibited. There are no restrictions prohibiting or limiting the transfer of foreign exchange for films. Import permits are required but are freely granted. There is no customs duty, as such, on imported films, however, there is a Film Hire Tax which is assessed on the net receipts derived from the exhibition of foreign films in New Zealand. With respect to United States films imported into New Zealand the Film Hire Tax is levied at the rate of 25 per cent of such net receipts.

PAKISTAN—Import permits are required for individual films only if the motion pictures are imported directly from a foreign country in the hard currency area. United States films have been distributed in Pakistan from headquarters in Bombay and entered Pakistan on a general license. However, on July 1, 1951, applications for licenses to import motion picture films were "invited" from all areas, except the German Republic. The transfer of foreign exchange is limited by the Foreign Exchange Regulations Act of 1947. While severe restrictions are possible under the Act, the Government's dollar position has so far been such that the Act has been liberally administered. Receipts from the exhibition of U. S. films in Pakistan which are to be remitted to the producer are paid by the exhibitor in Pakistan rupees into accounts of the U. S. distributors who may draw the full amount in dollars. In September 1952 the Government of Pakistan announced that import duties on motion picture films were to be greatly increased. Distributors of U. S. films in Pakistan protested this action as it was felt it would result in serious damage to some producers and was much too high considering the size of the Pakistan market. While it was believed that a satisfactory solution to the problem could be reached, at the end of 1952 nothing definite had been reported.

PHILIPPINES—In June 1949 an Act was passed requiring theaters to exhibit pictures made in the Philippines to the extent of 10 per cent of their annual exhibitions. However, the playing time requirements of this Act have not been strictly enforced. The present Philippine import control law requires that all imports be licensed. There are no quantitative restrictions placed on the imports of motion pictures, however, there are limitations on the remittance of film earnings. Licenses are granted to remit an amount equivalent to 72 per cent of the producer's share of current earnings. Importers of films must pay a 17 per cent remittance tax on all dollar exchange transferred.

SINGAPORE AND MALAYA—An import permit is required for the purchase and importation of motion pictures into Singapore. In considering an application for an import permit the Controller of Imports and Exports is guided by the advice and recommendation of the Official Film Censor. According to the Foreign Exchange Regulations, the purchase of foreign exchange for outward remittances is prohibited except with special permission of the Controller of Foreign Exchange. Each of the major U. S. film companies operating in Singapore has its own agreement with the Controller of Foreign Exchange. Ten per cent of the playing time, specifically 7 days out of each 70-day period, must be devoted to British films.

THAILAND (SIAM)—Import permits are not required for films imported into Thailand. The Foreign Exchange Board which had authority over the transfer of foreign exchange was dissolved at the beginning of 1948. There are no restrictions on the transfer of foreign exchange covering importation of films, however, such exchange must be obtained at the open market rate.

ADEN—Import permits are required for all goods originating outside the sterling area. Aden, as a British Crown Colony, has regulations which state that no import permits will be granted for goods from Western Hemisphere countries except for articles which cannot be obtained from the sterling area or from European sources and the purchase of which cannot be deferred without serious loss to the community.

AFGHANISTAN—There are no trade restrictions of any type imposed by the Afghan Government on motion pictures, and no such measures appear to be contemplated for the future. No import or quota regulations are in force and, since there is no domestic production of films, no playing time restrictions. The problem of transferring foreign exchange does not arise because all films exhibited are obtained through distributors in India, Pakistan, and Egypt and are paid for in the currency of the country from which they are imported.

IRAN—The market for United States films is not restricted in Iran by any laws or regulations. The importation of films is subject to annual import quotas which are fixed in rials. The quota for the year ending March 20, 1953 is 9,000,000 rials, about 1,000,000 rials less than that of the previous year. However, the quota is not hard and fast and is frequently increased when exhausted. Films are classified as non-restricted goods and no import permit is needed. Foreign exchange may not be transferred abroad without the permission of the Foreign Exchange Commission. U. S. film companies usually sell the distribution rights to their films to an Iranian distributor for a specified period of time, the films to be destroyed at the end of that period. Films are classified as import goods of Category II which means that their importation may be effected by foreign exchange certificates which in December 1952 were at the rate of 80 rials to the dollar. The official rate of exchange is 32.50 rials to the dollar.

IRAQ—Since 1947, the Directorate General of Imports has allocated the sum of nearly $200,000 yearly for the importation of United States motion pictures. For the past few years this amount has been divided among 8 firms to purchase U. S. films and each firm was authorized to enter into a contract with one of eight specified United States producers. Permits are required to import films into Iraq, however, importers experience no difficulty in obtaining import licenses for any films covered by their exchange allocations.

ISRAEL—No quotas or contingent measures exist for the distribution and exhibition of motion pictures in Israel. The scarcity of dollar exchange may tend to restrict the volume of business of United States distributors. In principle, no importation of any article is granted unless foreign exchange for payment of such article is available. For U. S. motion pictures, however, an agreement was made in June 1949 whereby the importation of film prints was secured, leaving the question of dollar transfers for later negotiations. No dollar remittances are permitted for film royalties.

LEBANON—Import permits are required for motion picture films. Foreign exchange is available to remit film earnings, however, it must be obtained in the open or free market at rates considerably higher than the official rate of exchange.

SYRIA—The dissolution of the Syro-Lebanese Customs Union in March 1950 created some problems relative to film imports. Since the break, the Government's policy has been "Syrian trade by Syrians." To carry out this policy the Government generally grants import licenses only to firms established in Syria. In addition it requires foreign firms having a direct or agency representation in Syria, to be represented either by a Syrian or a national of the parent company. The result is that Lebanese distributors who were receiving films first and then distributing them in Syria, must now sell or distribute them directly to a Syrian firm or exhibitor which in turn distributes throughout Syria. It is believed that practically all U. S. film companies now have representation in Syria. Foreign exchange for the importation of films must be bought at import exchange rates.

EADY PLAN IN DISPUTE

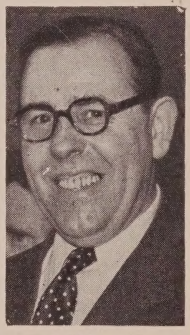
By BERNARD CHARMAN

Managing Editor, Daily Film Renter

LONDON

NEW PROBLEMS facing Britain in 1953 are those with which the United States is already well familiar—the impact of television and the approach of the three-dimensional film. Neither of these, however, has the force of a more domestic riddle, the future of the so-called Eady scheme which subsidizes British production from receipts at the box office.

Responsible exhibitors have all along the line conceded the claims of the producers for some special financial support. They do not like the Eady contribution which is, in effect, an added tax on takings from which the Treasury already takes a bite of something between 35 and 40 per cent of the gross, but are prepared to allow it if their own position can be secured.



CHARMAN

A great battle has been raging with the British Film Producers' Association on one side and the Cinematograph Exhibitors' Association on the other, involving the interrelated problems of the seat tax and the Eady levy. Both are equally anxious to obtain some relief from the former, because there is no disputing that it is an insuperable obstacle to the prosperity of both. They agree, in fact, that taxation of the box office has passed beyond the economic limit of what the industry can bear.

The Eady levy, or, to give it its official title, the British Film Production Fund, is rather a different matter. To many exhibitors it is an added irritant and is seen by them as a virtually compulsory subsidy to British producers. To the latter it is an absolutely vital means of guaranteeing the continuation of production, because the monies earned through the fund have, by and large, taken all reputable producers out of the red.

Naturally enough, the big exhibitor interests, directly related as they are to production and distribution, have no quarrel with the Production Fund. For their purposes, what it does is to divert a little more of the box office gross towards British films often made by associated companies, and giving them a bigger share of the pool than indeed they put into it. The independent exhibitor, on the other hand, is violently incensed because he claims that he merely pays into the pool, gets no benefit from it, and, in fact, sees his opposition extracting all the benefit.

Hundreds of small exhibitors steadfastly continue to honour their obligation to contribute to the Production Fund, which is, in fact, a voluntary levy in so far as there is no statutory force behind it. Alarm was caused last year, however, when it was discovered that several hundreds of them were contracting out of this obligation and refusing to hand over the money. Hard names were used about them, but in the analysis it was discovered that they had strong grievances which neither the producers nor the Treasury and Board of Trade could afford to ignore.

Their argument was twofold. In the first place they claimed they had no accurate knowledge of how the funds were distributed and that it seemed in many instances that cash drained off from their box office was in some cases merely going to enrich individuals instead of being ploughed back into production and so guaranteeing a steadier output of British films. Their second charge was that because in most cases their situations were in opposition to circuit theaters they had no opportunity of bidding for the British pictures which their contribution had helped to finance.

In a spirit of revolt many CEA men declared they would neither contribute to the Fund nor cast their vote in favor of its continuation beyond 1954 until these grievances had been adjusted. On the first point, the BFPA conceded the CEA demand and has since published details of payments out of the Fund. The second, however, is more difficult to reconcile and many independents are digging in their heels, refusing to co-operate unless means can be found of giving them a break with British films.

Responsible leaders of the CEA appreciate the demands of British producers. They know that the inability to recoup negative costs in the domestic market is not a by-product of studio extravagance but of hard economic facts. They know as a long term policy the CEA must support a continuation of the Production Fund without which the whole future of British films would be in jeopardy. In the early part of this year they still had not satisfied many of the rank and file whose uneasiness is manifest in attempts to break away and form an independent exhibitor organization in which the Rank and associated British groups with their production affiliations shall have no part.

Meanwhile, the American companies find themselves involved willynilly in the arguments. From the outset of the Eady scheme MPEA members conceded their support to a project which would nibble at their earnings and make them, in fact, subsidizers of their British opposition. That would have been enough, but now the exhibitors are clamouring for a further sacrifice.

They are claiming that the break figures on which distributors operate are bearing harshly on the theaters. Framed many years ago when the cash capacities of cinemas were much less than today, they operate at too low a level, say the exhibitors, and give the distributor an advantage which he has no right to expect.

The distributors, speaking this time through the Kinematograph Renters Society which embraces both British and American members, refuse to admit this latest claim. They point out with some justification that when the distributors as a whole anticipated the Eady scheme it was agreed on both sides that as regards rentals the status quo should be retained and that neither would the distributors demand increased rentals, nor would the exhibitors campaign for a decrease. In fact, says the KRS, this is what the CEA members are now doing. There seems little likelihood of an agreement on this knotty point which has done more to prevent settlement of the major Eady issue than anything else.

Broad effect of the position is that British producers are coming to a point when their 1954 programs must be laid down. Unless they have firm guarantees that the Production Fund will continue in one form or another they cannot plan with confidence and the effect might well be a serious decline in the output of British films within two years. With a National Budget looming and with both exhibitor and producers pressurising the Treasury to ease the entertainments tax position the outlook is far from clear.

Of some significance in the general situation was the refusal of the Board of Trade to register "Monsoon" and "Decameron Nights" as British. This decision deprives both of any right to Eady payments, and, while financially disastrous to the producers, the decision will mollify British film makers. Studio unions and exhibitors which declare that Eady bonuses to pictures so completely non-British in concept and production is wholly inequitable.

Turning back to other problems confronting the industry, the menace of television is more closely appreciated than it was only a few months ago. Parliamentary discussion has made quite clear that almost within months sponsored TV will burst on the British public, perhaps at first on a restricted scale, but certainly in sufficient force to offer challenging free entertainment to those eight million or more British people who today have access to TV sets.

At a recent sitting of its General Council the CEA debated a motion to set up a special committee of investigation to probe the video position and anticipate developments. The proposition was negatived but only because the powerful London branch had already decided to set up such machinery which could always co-opt other national members and act in the general interest of the entire Association.

But there is not the same fearful sense of urgency that animates the American market. The conditions are in no way parallel because whatever form of sponsored TV takes in Britain will be far less aggressive than it is in the United States. It is anticipated that at best there may be not more than two national channels for sponsored programs and that even these may broadcast intermittently rather than continuously.

Development of big screen TV in the theaters is going very slowly. The Government has given no indication as to whether it will concede the right to present theater shows either over a closed circuit or by other means and in consequence exhibitors, by and large, show little or no desire to install costly equipment while the future remains so uncertain. Only factor which is giving a fillip in this direction is the forthcoming Coronation which the Government and BBC have announced can freely be reproduced by anybody possessing the necessary facilities.

It does not appear that more than a handful of theaters will be able to use this medium on Coronation Day. The Rank Group will have installations in four theaters—Leicester Square, London, Manchester, Leeds and Doncaster, and Associated British will have one installation only at Hammersmith, London. Of interest is the fact that this equipment is the Cintel system controlled by Rank. One or two major independent theaters in London and elsewhere will possibly have big screen ready for the Coronation, but in the main cinemagoers will have to wait for the newsreel coverage and the special feature length color versions of the entire pageantry which will be available several days after the event.

Because video has yet to make any major impact on the industry in Britain 3-D films have likewise so far failed to create any violent excitement. The British Stereo Techniques system demonstrated at the 1951 Festival of Britain has played in art theaters throughout the United Kingdom with considerable success. But it has been regarded more as a novelty than as a revolution.

Similarly, CinemaScope and other systems do not represent themselves as anything of a challenge to this market. The stories which broke in the trade papers immediately after Spyros Skouras's dramatic announcement in February created no more than polite interest. This may appear as a policy of burying heads in the sand, but, in fact, there is little signs of imminent danger to the British market. It is true that the world decline in theater business has been reflected here, but this is regarded as a result of the times which can be countered with strong satisfying two-dimensional films in color rather than by a wholesale transfer to stereoscopic or quasi-stereoscopic systems.

Nevertheless, keen interest in developments is being evinced by British producers. Both Rank and Associated British have sent observers to the U. S. this year, and there is evidence of hesitation in production planning pending clarity of the confused situation.

ENGLAND - A SURVEY

HIGHLIGHTS

ASIDE FROM THE EADY SUBSIDY, dealt with extensively elsewhere, 1952 again proved a year of great concern to the British industry, leaving as legacies numerous problems to which easy solutions are difficult to find. In general the world decline in attendances has been reflected in a drastic downward trend of the graph during the latter part of the year and the early months of 1953. While it is considered that this effect is partly due to increasing competition from television, the fact that the UK is in a state of economic stress is probably the chief contributory factor.

From the American viewpoint, an important item was a renewal of the Anglo-US agreement after the briefest of negotiations between Sir Frank Lee and the late Joyce O'Hara. These left the companies in a slightly improved position and it is not anticipated that when Eric Johnston renews negotiations with the Board of Trade, probably during the second half of this year, any great difficulty will be experienced in renewing the deal on terms equally as favorable. In fact, the problems of unremittables appears to have been largely amortized and the majors are mostly able to realize their earnings in one manner or another.

Domestically considerable industry effort has been concentrated on attempts to alleviate the entertainments tax. The slight concessions grudgingly granted by the Chancellor of the Exchequer in the 1952 Budget did little to relieve an industry which today certainly appears to be taxed beyond its capacity. Exhibitors point out with all the force they can muster that while receipts have steadily declined since the peak of 1946, the tax has continued to climb. Out of diminished revenues cinemas have been forced to pay higher rates of wages and materials, and while the gap between the gross and outgoings on film hire, overheads and taxation has not narrowed to the point of no profit, the overall effect has been deadening on the industry in general, because with the seat tax draining off something between 35 and 40 per cent of the gross, there is insufficient left to satisfy the producer and distributor, apart from the exhibitor himself.

This factor was, indeed, largely responsible for the introduction of the Eady levy which, regarded on the broadcast basis, is a device for returning to the British producer a proportion of the amount claimed by the Treasury in tax. By this means it has been found possible in average circumstances to recoup the costs of a British film in the home market for the first time in several years.

BBC nationalized television continued to expand last year and five major transmitters now service eighty per cent of the UK based on the population density. License figures published by the General Postoffice indicate two million sets in home use with an estimated maximum viewing public of, perhaps, eight milion people. Prospects of sponsored TV loomed during the year, following publication of a Government report, and were given an impetus early in 1953 by a debate in the House of Commons in which the Government spokesman clearly expressed the administration's sympathy with commercial video and its intention to assist it to become reality this year.

Already the appeal of TV has had its share in diminishing cinema attendance in a somewhat similar manner to that with which America is thoroughly familiar, though possibly not on the same scale. It is widely feared that sponsored programs in whatever form they arrive will greatly heighten that competition. In consequence the Cinema Exhibitors' Association has, through its London branch, set up a committee which is investigating and observing all developments in this field.

With the coming of commercial TV and consequent breach of the BBC monopolistic charter, cinemas, particularly the major circuits, are pressing forward with plans for using big screen installations to hypo the box-office. The forthcoming Coronation will be the greatest opportunity and test for them and only shortage of equipment will limit installations ready to present the occasion to the public via cinema screens to a maximum of a possible dozen spread over the various parts of Britain.

But it is the emergence of 3-D which is likely to provide the greatest challenge to existing concepts. Last year this new manifestation was not even a speck on the horizon. Today it has almost in a matter of days created an agitation which will produce feverish activity to keep the UK in line with advances in the US. By the publication of this Year Book first demonstration of some of the new systems wil already have taken place. Britain, of course, gave a lead in true stereoscopy in 1951 with successful presentation of the Stereo Techniques system, which is technically in the first flight. This system, first presented during the Festival of Britain, has since been seen in hundreds of theaters throughout the UK. Now we have four Rank circuit houses in London and other key cities equipped for Natural Vision, leading off with "Bwanna Devil," and the Warner Theater in the heart of London using the same system for "The House Of Wax."

Spyros Skouras promises early demonstrations of Cinemascope on which the industry here is inclined to reserve judgment. Some knowledge of Cinerama has reached this country via the trickle of people, both American and British, who have brought back reports of its sensational appeal, and, of course, Sir Alexander Korda was among those who formerly expressed an interest in the latter system. Both Cinerama and Cinemascope will, however, be handicapped in this market by Government restrictions on import of essential equipment, unless, of course, they can devise methods of manufacturing lenses and other parts within the sterling area.

COMPETITION

WHILE FOR THE life time of most people in the industry competition in the UK film market has been virtually restricted to that between British and American films, the position changed in 1952. It became obvious that with the assistance of a number of specialized distributors French and Italian producers were making a determined onslaught.

They have had considerable success and some hundreds of independent theaters which previously rarely, if ever, played Continental films, are now taking a selection of them into their programs. Some of these products have attracted exceptional grosses, but the inevitable exception can be quoted, the case of "La Ronde," which has played up to 1,500 dates involving return engagements in some instances running to three or four repeats at the cinema.

A Festival presented in London by Unitalia, representing the combined Italian producers, created an intense interest in their stars last year, if not necessarily in the films, some of which proved indigestible for British audiences. Greater success, however, met the efforts of Unifrance, the French equivalent which organized a similar Festival in February this year. They showed five choice pictures and brought over a flock of stars from Paris, creating immense national publicity.

Part of the spread of these foreign pictures is due to a readiness of British audiences to accept dubbed versions. There is now quite a lively industry in London engaged in producing English language sound tracks which are lip-synchronized with a remarkable degree of skill. That this treatment has aroused considerable press controversy, with those on one side violently opposed to what they consider to be a mutilation of the originals, opposed to those who hold that the translated versions bring new entertainments to millions of people, in no way harms the chances of these films at the box-office.

It must not be suggested that the encroachment of foreign films represents any menace to British and American product because the market is proving itself well able to absorb the entire output of British and Hollywood studios which, of course, are much diminished from the aggregates of previous years. If 3-D and wide vision films advance as rapidly as many people expect obviously, then, the position will return to one in which American and domestic product will find little challenge from other sources.

CENSORSHIP

AN ORGANIZATION established by the trade years ago, the British Board of Film Censors, deals with the censorship of films in Great Britain. It is not a statutory body, and whether a film is accepted or rejected, the final decision rests with the local licensing authorities throughout the country —about 1,000 in number—but almost universal acceptance is given to the decisions and control exercised by the Board, and generally the situation is considered satisfactory.

In connection with the power of local authorities, it should be noted that when a film is rejected by the Board of Film Censors, an application for special review can be made to local authorities, and a few notable instances have occured where the procedure has resulted in local exhibition of the rejected film.

It might be mentioned that there are three grades of certificates issued; "U" relating to a film which has been passed for universal exhibition; "A" is recommended more especially for adult audiences, and under most licensing authorities, children must be accompanied by adults when attending.

The third category, formerly known as "H" (meaning horrific), was replaced in 1951 by a new "X" certificate. This legally limits the showing of pictures so labelled to persons of over 16 years old. Neither an "adults only" or "horrific" classification, it serves for both, but also permits exhibition of sophisticated, adult entertainment, chiefly French, which a grandmotherly Censor Board formerly rejected. The "X" certificate has servived the early danger of being regarded by patrons as the hallmark of lurid entertainment, but has caused concern to American distributors who have found their more brutal pictures put into this group instead of the more acceptable "A" category.

EDUCATION

IN 1946 EDUCATION AUTHORITIES and teachers, in conjunction with the Ministry of Education, set up an organization named the National Committee for Visual Aids in Education. One of the Committee's main functions is to collate the views of education authorities, teachers and bodies concerned with education. Other functions include the consideration of the production, assessment and distribution of visual material.

An important link in the organization of production is the Scrutiny Committee, which views the completed film and has the power to accept it on behalf of the National Committee. The Educational Foundation for Visual Aids then receives the film. This organization was set up to ensure the production of the films planned by the National Committee and their distribution throughout the schools. Where local authorities are considering setting up a visual aids library a local joint visual aids committee is usually also set up to advise on the choice of material.

TAXES

IN ADDITION to the national Entertainments Tax which is specific in amount for each price category of tickets, there are income taxes and local rates which are applicable to kinemas.

While not considered in the direct category of taxation there is a special related feature worthy of note under the Sunday Entertainment Act, 1932, which gave local authorities permission to open and regulate cinematograph theaters on Sunday. The local authorities alone have the power to give such permission and it is estimated that nearly 70 per cent of the approximate 5,000 theaters in England are now permitted Sunday opening.

It is provided under this Act that the local authority shall demand from the theater a proportion of the profits for that day, part of which sums collected shall be used for local charitable purposes and another proportion paid into the Cinematograph Fund. Under the direction and control of the Privy Council for the purpose of encouraging the use and development of the cinematograph as a means of entertainment and instruction. Something like nine or 10 thousand pounds sterling is now received into this central fund annually and the principal use for it has been in supporting the British Film Institute, which is active in the promotion of the use of motion pictures for educational purposes.

The amount paid into the national "Cinematograph Fund" is only equal to about five per cent of the total collected by the various local authorities, the balance collected under the Sunday Entertainment Act, 1932, being devoted to local charitable purposes. Last year £438,900 was paid in Sunday tax by theaters.

In order to provide facilities for the troops to see films on Sundays, an emergency law regulation was passed in 1939 whereby, on application from local councils, licenses to open on Sundays were granted to 290 kinemas which ordinarily did not open on that day. The Act empowering this came to an end in February, 1946, but it was open to local councils to put in force the Sunday Entertainments Act of 1932, or apply for a draft order, so that the Sunday opening of kinemas can continue without interruption. Most of the local authorities of areas where Sunday opening was permitted have now applied for permanent powers to grant Sunday opening.

An attempt in Parliament early this year to modify and modernize laws relating to Sunday entertainments was defeated.

An important point in regard to Sunday kinema performances, was brought into prominence by a High Court decision that licensing authorities could impose a condition excluding children under 16. Later it was decided not to ban children under 16.

COPYRIGHT RELATIONS

UNDER BRITISH LAW and practice the interest of the author and producer are fully protected. The ordinary legal reference is the Copyright Act of 1911 as amended. Great Britain entered into copyright relations with the United States on July 1, 1891; extended April 9, 1910; further extended January 1, 1915. Great Britain is a member of the International Copyright Union at Berne.

Remittances to America in respect to films before the war were estimated at about £7,000,000 annually. During the war they had been; to October, 1940 — 4.8 millions sterling; 1941—5.7 millions sterling; 1943—26.5 millions; 1944—15.6 millions; for the five months to July, 1945—13.3 millions. Estimated remittance in 1951 under the Anglo-U.S. agreement was between eight and nine million pounds.

CANADA IN 1952

By CLARE J. APPEL

Executive-Director, Canadian Motion Picture Distributors Association

ALL OF THE ROSY HUES in which the picture of Canada was portrayed in 1951 and the prosperous predictions made for it, came true in 1952, which can go down in history as the year Canada rose in stature in the eyes of its own citizens and in the eyes of the world. Canada's dollar had climbed from a discount to sweep past parity at a Dec. 31 level of $1.03 U. S. to become the world's highest currency.

Retail sales had jumped ahead of its 1951 record by more than seven per cent mainly because the Government lifted credit restrictions. Labor income soared to almost 10 per cent higher than 1951 and with the consumer price index at a slightly lower figure than in the previous year, buying went on a spree.

New capital investment was almost five and one-half billion dollars of which 90 per cent was invested by Canadians. National production hit a new high of nearly 28 billion dollars to improve on its 1951 record by five per cent.

Oil, iron, nickle, paper, copper and aluminum set the industrial pace in a year that saw few new projects. The momentum of Canadian business is a powerful factor in the continuing prosperity of the country. Experts believe that Canada's boom will continue its present high level of activity and a bright, prosperous 1953 is forecast by high ranking economists.

Recently, the economic adviser to the Federal Trade Department predicted that Canada's population, now 14½ million would rise to more than 23 million in the next quarter century. Some base their reasons for present national wealth on defense spending, but it is pointed out that there are many economic forces operating in Canada that have little or nothing to do with defense. As to Canada's economic strength being dependent on industrial conditions in the U. S. it is emphasized that Canada has grown into a sturdy economy and that at three different periods since 1900 Canada has been able to avoid most of the consequences of economic disturbances in the U. S.

In 1951 Canada's export of goods and services amounted to 24 per cent of all production. Canada is, however, a great trading country. Ranking fourth as an exporter and importer she is by far the greatest trading nation in the world where trade is calculated on a per capita basis. Canada's foreign trade in 1951 represented $577 per capita whereas that of the United States was $168 per capita.

THEATER CONSTRUCTION

The bans placed in 1951 on the use of steel for a theater construction remained in force during most of 1952 with the result that theater construction did not keep pace with the expansion of industry and new home communities as it might have done with other conditions prevailing. Theater chains and independents appear to be hesitant to build until the results of television's rapid expansion in the late months of 1952 are definitely known.

There were 42 newly constructed theaters in 1952, one re-opened after repairs and six converted from 16 mm. to 35 mm. making 49 new standard houses opened. Twenty-three drive-ins were built during the year making a total of 72 new standard operations, compared with 79 in 1951 and 118 in 1950. New drive-in construction is rapidly progressing throughout the country with work on many getting underway late in 1952. With restrictions on steel now lifted there may be considerable theater building in 1953 in new areas into which power, paper and metal projects have made industrial entry into virgin territory.

THEATERS

The economy of the country was reflected in the 10 per cent gain in receipts in Canadian theaters during 1951 over the 1950 record figure as reported by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics whose compilations are about one year behind. Forecasts are that 1952 will be as good as 1951 but rising costs of labor, materials used, etc. will take a deep bite into earnings of both the exhibitor and the distributor.

The 1,808 standard theaters listed in 1951 by the D.B.S. had receipts totalling almost 91 million dollars. 82 drive-ins with car capacity of 40 thousand are shown as having had receipts of $3,347,670. Additional revenue came from a number of community enterprises which operate one or two days a week.

There were more than 239 million paid admissions to the 1,808 standard theaters as listed which was a three per cent increase over the figure received in 1950.

TELEVISION

A report issued in October, 1951 stated there were about 135,000 TV sets in Canadian homes. The figure estimated at the end of 1952 is more than one-half million. Sales reported in October, 1952 were running more than four times as high as the year previous. Regional breakdown shows Montreal emerging as an important market for TV with sales in 1952 of about 25 thousand sets. Toronto-Hamilton continues to be the top-market with close to 50,000 sets sold in 1952 accounting for approximately 40 per cent of the Canadian market.

TV broadcasts at Toronto and Montreal began in October 1952. Prior to that date Toronto, the Niagara Penninsula and the Windsor-Lake Erie districts were the only receiving areas in Canada of programs from the U. S. The year end saw about 225,000 sets in operation in these receiving areas but with the Government planning to open stations at Ottawa, Winnipeg and Vancouver, Canada's television audience may grow to one-tenth of its population by the end of 1953.

Observers among theater men believe that because television has been introduced in Canada in gradual steps it has had no marked effect on theater attendance. Windsor, seriously effected a few years back is showing signs of increased theater attendance and the general feeling is that after a period of time the majority of avid TV viewers find their way back into the theater while the really good pictures do business under any conditions.

DISTRIBUTION

Distribution of films continues from six exchange centers namely: St. John, N. B., Montreal, Que., Toronto, Ont., Winnipeg, Man., Calgary, Alta., and Vancouver, B. C. The Dominion Bureau of Statistics does not break down income from film rentals according to the exchange center. Based on theater receipts from the various provinces it may be said that each distribution point can be rated percentagewise approximately as follows: St. John, 7.1 per cent; Montreal, 26 per cent; Ontario, 41 per cent; Winnipeg, nine per cent; Calgary, 7.9 per cent, and Vancouver, nine per cent.

SAINT JOHN

Saint John in New Brunswick supplies theaters in the four Maritime provinces of New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island and Newfoundland. Theater receipts, excluding taxes, in each province for 1951 were: New Brunswick, $2,307,605 for 63 theaters; Nova Scotia, $3,454,965 for 80 theaters; Prince Edward Island, $313,090 for 13 theaters, and $1,098,611 from 39 theaters in Newfoundland. Three new drive-ins operated only a portion of the season and income was not disclosed.

MONTREAL

The exchange center of Montreal serves the predominately French-speaking province of Quebec which had 412 theaters operating in 1951 with total theater admissions of $22,629,851, exclusive of tax. This represents approximately 26 per cent of the national income from standard theaters.

As reported previously, Quebec theaters operate seven days weekly but no children under 16 years of age are permitted to attend. Many youngsters throughout the province see motion pictures in parish halls.

Less than one-half of Quebec's theaters use an entire program of English dialogue pictures. The dubbed version usually follows the exhibition of the English film by a year and more than a third of all theaters use French dubbed features after the run of the English version.

There are about 70 theaters in the province which use an all French movie program. Many of these films are made in France. Government regulations prohibit drive-ins in Quebec.

TORONTO

Ontario's 531 standard theaters reported receipts of $38,052,587 excluding taxes in 1951. Toronto is the busiest of all exchange centers. Ontario theaters provide 37 per cent of the total seating capacity of all Canada's standard theaters and they supplied 42 per cent of the total box office receipts in such theaters; 46 of the total of 82 drive-ins in Canada operated in Ontario in 1951.

No changes have effected the distribution of films in any center except that new regulations replacing the present Cinematographs Act of Ontario are to be presented for Government approval some time this year. It is believed that the new act will bring relief to theater construction inasmuch as expensive fire proofing of the projection booth is concerned and that film exchanges will no longer be required to be of solid concrete and steel or that specially ventilated vaults will be required. The new regulations are being introduced because of the present use of safety film which Canadian distributors hope to have in distribution 100 per cent by 1954.

WINNIPEG

Winnipeg in Manitoba serves all of the theaters in that province, 174 in 1951, 10 in North Western Ontario and the balance in South and Eastern Saskatchewan for a total of 377, which includes many community enterprises that operate one or two days a week only.

Both Manitoba and Saskatchewan censor boards function at Winnipeg.

Manitoba's 134 standard theaters had admissions of $4,604,683 in 1951. The province's community enterprises reported receipts of $92,440. Inasmuch as theater receipts are reported provincially, it is impossible to give an accurate break-down of the theater receipts that might be credited to the exchange centers of Winnipeg or Calgary because both offices supply films to theaters in Saskatchewan.

CALGARY

Calgary serves 241 theaters located in Alberta, 12 in Eastern British Columbia and 48 in Western Saskatchewan. Its chief market is Alberta where 178 theaters reported revenue of $6,044,996 in 1951. Alberta is Canada's wealthiest province with its oil boom and boundless quantity of natural gas attracting new industry. Its areas are only partially tested for oil which with other minerals presage a fabulous future for it.

VANCOUVER

Vancouver, Canada's gateway to the Pacific, some 3,700 miles from the easternmost exchange center of Saint John, gives a faint idea of the vast stretch of territory six exchange centers cover. There are 164 standard theaters in British Columbia which are serviced by the Vancouver exchanges. These theaters provided receipts of $8,740,857 exclusive of taxes in 1951; 12 drive-ins operated in 1951 and 10 more were added in 1952.

Canadian trade papers have headlined record film rentals in Canada of more than 29 and one-quarter million dollars in 1951. The figure is misleading. The Dominion Bureau of Statistics listed 33 film exchange companies doing business through 123 offices in 1951. This figure includes 8 mm., 16 mm., and 35 mm. films and includes all films imported from U. S. (853), Great Britain (82), France (287) and 37 from other countries. The 287 imports from France include U. S. features dubbed in French.

Of the 29 and one-quarter million dollars reported as revenue in 1951, $1,889,461 was from 16 mm. and $4,647 from 8 mm., leaving an actual 35 mm. total rental revenue of $27,331,759 on films from all sources.

D.B.S. reports salaries and wages paid out in all film exchanges as $3,071,545 in 1951 to 1,120 employees. The motion picture theaters of Canada gave employment to 15,758 persons in 1951 who received more than 17 million dollars for their services.

It is always a curious fact that when the economy of a nation is rolling along at a high pace, there are those who peer gloomily at things ahead. It was so at the beginning of 1952—fears of unemployment, housing, retail sales and slackening of industry were expressed by some but by the end of the year the boom was still on and Canadian workmen had reached the highest peak in wages in all history—$55.63 weekly average in November, 1952 compared with $52.05 in 1951. As 1953 enters its first month there are those who take a super-cautious view of the months ahead. They are greatly outnumbered though by those who see another record year for Canadian industry with its resultant benefits to its growing number of workers.

ITALY IN 1952

By EITEL MONACO

President of ANICA and of Italian Film Export

WHILE PRODUCERS, distributors, and exhibitors of motion pictures in almost every other country are presently unable, at the best, to equal their business figures of previous years, the Italian film industry has, during 1952, continued to progress steadily. This has been due to a wider audience appeal for the home product, to the increased popularity abroad of Italian films, and to the fact that a good deal more Italians are going to the movies.

The following statistics demonstrate the achievements of the Italian motion picture industry during the year:

Increase in the volume of production in comparison to 1951: 30 per cent

Increase in total box office receipts in comparison to 1951: 12 per cent

Increase in attendances in comparison to 1951: 6.5 per cent

Export data is as yet incomplete but it is safe to assume on the basis of material already collected that as compared to 1951, Italian pictures have obtained abroad the same results in percentages as they have been able to show for the home market.

The reason for the industry's successes lies principally in the solid hold it has attained at home, as well as the firmer establishment of its relations with foreign countries.

Of great influence and interest particularly to producers of full-length feature films, are the existing agreement with France, promising to unite two important Latin film markets, and the operation of Italian Film Export, formed with the understanding cooperation of the MPAA, and which is in readiness of offering to audiences of the vast U. S. market the more typical and important product of the Italian motion picture industry.

EXHIBITION

THE NUMBER of theaters has further swelled during 1952, topping a figure of 14,000. Of these 8,896 have full playing time all the year round ,and the remainder are seasonal, religious society, occasional theaters, etc. Paying entries as compared to former years, and for the same class of houses, have been as follows:

	Tickets Sold
1947	525,300,000
1948	579,400,000
1949	607,300,000
1950	653,800,000
1951	696,700,000
1952	740,000,000

	Lira
1946	13,600,000,000
1947	28,400,000,000
1948	41,900,000,000
1949	53,300,000,000
1950	62,400,000,000
1951	72,000,000,000
1952	80,000,000,000

The general situation, while being highly satisfactory both from attendances and box office viewpoints, is unfortunately overshadowed by the heavy entertainment tax which added to the other fiscal levies amounts to about one third of the gross receipts.

IMPORT AND DISTRIBUTION

FIRST PLACE in the foreign import of films into Italy, which is unrestricted, is kept by the U. S. In 1952 American films have earned in this country as much as they netted in 1951. In fact the notable increase in the overall figure of receipts has been absorbed by the home product leaving unchanged the quota earned by U. S. films during the previous year. Next on the import list are the French, followed by British films. Other countries are also present with minor quotas. On the whole, however, the total imports for this year, have not exceeded those of 1951 which numbered 390 films.

PRODUCTION

AS ALREADY mentioned, Italian producers have scored heavily in 1952. The increased volume of production compares favorably with the figures for recent years.

	Features
1948	54
1949	76
1950	104
1952	132

Quality as much as quantity has been the golden rule for 1952, and the money invested in films has soared to 13 billions lira. In 1951 the home product had to be satisfied with 24 per cent of the market's gross receipts; this year more than 30 per cent of the nation's takings has gone to Italian films.

Besides full-length feature films, achievements in 1952 include 329 shorts and 380 newsreels marking a 26 per cent increase in respect of 1951.

During the year the industry has employed 18,000 workers which do not include those belonging to the exhibition sector. The company manufacturing film raw-stock in Italy, Ferrania, employs 3,000 of the industry workers. Year ago the company produced a new color process called Ferraniacolor which was latter perfected. Today Ferraniancolor stock is manufactured on an industrial scale, and is giving excellent results.

The satisfactory development of the Italian motion picture industry and its present-day standing have resulted from the atmosphere of cordiality and of mutual cooperation which has been established between our industry and the other important industries in the world, first among which stands the motion picture industry of the United States, represented by the MPAA, and in Europe especially.

To this cooperation the Italian film industry is proud of having particularly contributed in the common interest of all those who take an active part in matters of world cinematography.

FRANCE IN 1952

By P. A. HARLE

WHILE THE COST of movie tickets in France has increased only 15 times the 1938 rate, as compared to 30 times for other expenditures, theater attendance last year reverted to the 1938 figure after having been double that total in 1946.

Situation cannot be blamed on television, which is not yet fully developed. Transmitting stations exist only in Paris and Lille, with Government-sponsored programs for but 30 hours a week, and only 100,000 receiving sets in the nation.

On the other hand, competition of non-commercial film screenings by private clubs, public education offices and institutions for moral and religious culture is constantly increasing. Patrons do not pay the 30 per cent ticket tax at these "theaters," and the development is seen as accounting for the decrease in commercial exhibitors operating in small towns.

Production in Paris and co-production abroad, notably Italy, is maintained at a proportion of 110 for 200 features annually imported and dubbed into French.

The French have high hopes for the French-American motion picture agreement, with the expectation that French films will find a larger audience in the U. S., while American distributors will receive a steady flow of receipts from this country.

As of the end of 1952 the Law of Fonds d'Aide (financing aid) had not been renewed, although it had been debated in Parliament for over a year. Statute calls for from five to 10 francs of the tax on each ticket, plus a levy on each film edited, to be handed over to exhibitors who renovate their theaters, and to producers who make new films. If the Fonds d'Aide plan is not renewed, financing of French production would be difficult.

On the whole, it can be said that the French industry is slowly improving. Exhibitors still suffer from the "lack of money" in patrons' pockets, but this might also be called "lack of appeal" in programs offered.

AUSTRALIA IN 1952

By J. GRIFFEN-FOLEY
Staff Correspondent, The Film Daily

TWO ECONOMIC AND POLITICAL DEVELOPMENTS, and an hiatus over television, were the most notable occurrences of 1952. Their bearing on Australia as a motion picture market was largely potential, and the box office itself fared well enough through the year; but the effects now gestating are important to the near and further future.

First came a dramatic change in the economic climate. Hitherto heedlessly wealthy, with an expanding economy and prospering from phenomenal demand for wool and wheat, Australia early last year suddenly became aware that on overseas accounts the nation had drifted into the red. Particularly did wool prices decline from the unreal peak-scarcity level. Australia, in short, was spending more for imports than she earned by exports. Consequently her large sterling credit balances abroad were shrinking alarmingly.

Deciding it must arrest what had become a buying spree on overseas goods, the Commonwealth Government of Prime Minister Robert Gordon Menzies slapped on import restrictions. Trade with the United States and Canada was already held to a trickle because of a chronic dollar deficit. Now numerous imports from Britain and Europe were slashed by one-third, many others by two-thirds.

The Government was also tackling domestically what was variously described as a boom and as inflation. Tightening the economic belt, it curtailed bank credit and restricted capital issues.

The results of this unpalatable physic were still being argued this year. Whereas wages had continued to rise by large jumps all through 1952—keyed to quarterly adjustment of the basic wage by Arbitration Court machinery—the January, 1953 basic wage determination produced only a fractional rise in two capitals and actually a small fall (for the first time in years) in some other parts. Menzies hailed this as justification of his administration's financial policies, claiming the inflation malady checked. Also, a favorable overseas trade balance reasserted itself.

What direct effects did the contracting economy have on film concerns? Shocked by the drastic action on bank credit and imports, the public took fright sufficiently to make the box office feel a chill blast for a time. Commerce slackened. Overtime pay disappeared. Presently disemployment (during redistribution of labor in certain sectors) and unemployment (statistically 42,000 jobless at the year's end) occurred in places, especially in industrial areas.

The equipment industry felt the import cuts. Denied dollar sources, Westrex and RCA ordinarily obtained supplies from their UK organizations, apart from what they had made locally. The new restrictions (which also affected GB Kalee) slashed their imports and caused inroads into inventories; but in due course the import control authorities proved reasonable enough where needed vital components were not procurable here or could not be made economically.

The impact on 16 mm. and 8 mm. hit hard where the non-theatrical field had been expanding.

Despite business hesitancy, labor-market uncertainty and high taxation; despite rival amusements and sports claiming a formidable share of the spending money, the box office survived satisfactorily with overall good results for the year.

Unfortunately, official statistics are a couple of years behind hand. As some yardstick, latest available figures show £A3, 280,652 entertainment tax paid on 133,958,840 picture-theater admissions for fiscal 1950-51—nearly five million admissions up on the previous year.

Attendances declined during 1952. Trade sources put the drop at around 20 per cent compared with fiscal 1944-45, the peak box office year, when 151,144,831 taxable admissions were reported. Also the population has increased since then, up 17 per cent by 1952. Nevertheless the attendance drop was offset by price increases: piecemeal action has been lifting admission price levels over several years. The year also resulted in improved remittances for the distributors, notwithstanding higher operating costs locally.

First runs shortened appreciably for everything below top product. Monday became generally a bad day for city and neighborhood houses. Theaters in bigger suburban centers finding it unprofitable to run two a day, most cut out matinees except for Saturday afternoons. Certainly (and the pattern was more pronounced) there was less money about for run-of-the-mill product, and equally certainly for great attractions as much as ever—even more. And it was still the ability of big pictures to earn big money that was the industry's chief encouragement.

Another political-economic development of potential concern to the picture business came with the Commonwealth Government's intention to return certain taxing powers to the six States, ending the uniform taxation system introduced during the 1939-45 war. It was likely that entertainment (taxed only by some States prewar, and then lightly) would be one of the tax fields handed back to the States.

Since paying more in the total of separate Federal and State taxes would antagonize the electorate—and press pundits thought that inevitable—budget-casters would prefer to increase indirect rather than direct taxes. Hence entertainment taking would be an obvious temptation to squeeze for extra revenue.

At time of writing this the prospect was obscure. The States were suspected of delaying tactics, and unless the Commonwealth could legislate in time for the changeover to operate for fiscal 1953-54 it might not eventuate within the life of the present Government, which has to face a general election before June next year.

Suddenly television loomed closer, when its advent seemed likely by or before early 1955, but the situation changed.

The history of it is this: The previous Labor Government in amending the Broadcasting Act in 1948 reserved TV as a Government monopoly. The non-Labor parties, pledged to private enterprise, undertook to repeal that and (elected to govern in 1949) were about to do so. Both the Labor and Menzies Governments made cautious plans, equipment tenders were twice called, and a start was expected "experimentally" with a station in Sydney and one in Melbourne. The waiting lengthened; and then in March last year the Government shelved TV, deciding that the country could not afford it.

The Postmaster-General, Representative H. L. Anthony, in November returned from abroad convinced that Australia could not afford to lag behind other countries. He wanted private enterprise given an important part in developing TV (no doubt aware too that it would help bear the cost), urged a quick green light, and favored having both a national service and commercial stations (a dual system already existing in audio broadcasting). Unexpectedly, his recommendations encountered disagreement among his Government colleagues and in Cabinet.

Labor opinion was divided too. Deputy-Leader of the Opposition, Representative A. A. Calwell threatened that any commercial participation would be revoked by cancelling licences when his party returned to power. He said Labor had made TV a Government monopoly and would keep it that way, being opposed to any legislation "to allow private companies to debauch the minds of grown-ups and children in the way American television companies do."

Next day Opposition Leader Dr. H. V. Evatt said that constitutional rulings of the Courts would not permit a monopoly of TV by a Government instrumentality, and he expected a dual system as with audio broadcasting. Calwell and supporters said they were unaware of any High Court ruling preventing future nationalization by Labor, and declared Labor policy was to nationalize all broadcasting, including TV. Evatt said his comment still stood, and then the two leaders ceased bickering publically, tacitly leaving it to a Labor Party convention to decide the party line.

Simultaneously public controversy broke out, churchmen, educationists, radio, press and the electronics industry arguing particularly on the inimical influence of TV and whether it should be restricted to Government ownership to minimize the evil. The picture business kept out of it, except for some behind-scenes lobbying, mindful of Spyros Skouras's adjuration to keep TV in Government hands, because it would be less competition to pictures that way.

The upshot was that Cabinet, overruling the PMG, in February this year appointed a Royal Commission to inquire widely into TV before the Government makes up its mind how and when it should be introduced. Meanwhile it would amend the law to remove the legal barrier to participation by private enterprise.

The delay occasioned by even an expeditious inquiry leaves little doubt that no real start will be made on TV within the life of the present Government. And if Labor should be returned at the next election it would revise or scrap previous plans.

The Labor Party convention in January failed to produce the expected directive. Theoretically its standing policy was to socialize TV, but actually so ambiguous that, with its two Parliamentary leaders' views in conflict, it was presumed that the caucus would have to decide an attitude when the subject should come up in the legislature.

Trade observers, both film and radio, consider that TV has been pushed back at least to 1956, and probably two or three lears later.

At the end of the year the box office blithely weathered what used to be a dull pre-Christmas period and went on to a lush holiday season. "Greatest Show on Earth" was proving itself the greatest film attraction ever to hit this country, and sustained pressure suggested no public reluctance to pay legit-level prices for "Quo Vadis." The box office generated a velocity that carried into January and continued a splendid pace well into the early part of the year, a highly impressive opening to 1953.

This should prove a good year for films. Ample product supply is assured, even if a tendency to use up pictures at a faster rate should increase; though there is a certain shortage of supports. And the quality looks good.

The country itself is fundamentally strong in economy, and is probably improved in economic health. The pills swallowed last year, though unpalatable, should produce beneficial effects this year in stabilizing the economy.

Credit restrictions had been removed, money became freerer, industries that had setbacks last year were starting up again early in the year, unemployment appeared to be lessening. The basic wage declared in January suggested that at long last this component of the costs of prices spiral was leveling off. Consumer goods were in good supply but at better-value prices. With workers no longer enjoying a seller's market, the labor position became more stable for the first time in some 12 years.

If labor-supply and wages continued steadier there was prospect of stabilizing costs of operation—important to industry and to the cost-harassed picture business.

The Commonwealth Government seemed certain to ease the import restrictions early in the year, which would give a further lift to business.

NEW ZEALAND IN 1952

THE DOMINION'S CONTINUED PROSPERITY, which encountered a setback at one stage but quickly recovered, was reflected in a prosperous box office in 1952. It was a good movie year for New Zealand. There were depressing stretches alongside brilliant results for phenomenal moneymakers, but overall the industry produced an improved take to be shared by its members.

The improvement was not only in money but in attendances. Trade sources confidently report that attendances were higher than the previous year's, though figures are not available to support it. Indeed, some tradesters believe that attendances reached a new high. If so, that would mean they topped the 38,300,000 admissions that made 1943-44 the highest year on record.

Full benefit of improved attendances was gained from the price increase (of about 3d net per seat) secured in October, 1951, and a further slight increase last year. Nevertheless New Zealand is still accounted a country of low admission prices.

New Zealand felt a breath of adverse economic winds, albeit mildly, when world prices of foodstuffs and wool fell away. At one stage the Government caused imports to be reduced, including diminution of British goods. But that was temporary. New Zealand felt the pinch for about three months, and then with the resilience of a country whose extraordinary fertility yields primary-production exports out of proportion to the size of the population, the economy quickly regained stability.

The population passed the two-million mark in September; but the country's whole population is not much more than Sydney's (something more than 1,600,000). According to Government statistics for 1949-50, New Zealanders went to the theater on an average of 19.2 times a year. That was likely bettered in last year's improved attendance, though of course the population increase—largely from imigration — contributed. Incidentally the Government collects film-industry figures every second year, and a new statistical report was awaited early this year, covering the year ended March, 1952.

According to careful calculation on trade information, New Zealand in 1952 had 487 regular theaters and halls, with 253,716 seats. That works out at 130.8 seats per thousand population. In addition there were some itinerant showmen, 80 licensed 16 mm. commercial shows and a few 16 mm. itinerants, whose seating is not included in the figuring. It is to be noted that marked differences appear between official statistics and trade figures, evidently because of the inclusion of occasional halls and various situations not qualifying as theaters by trade conception.

Bob Kerridge's Kerridge-Odeon circuit and Mike Moodabe's Amalgamated Theaters, with an obvious KOG, in 1952 made a new distribution of product sources between them. This was followed by long, bitter delay in deals for RKO, Columbia and United Artists while Amalgamated forced them to terms. Contracts were eventually agreed to, Amalgamated no doubt succeeding materially in its design.

Kerridge (who has Rank in partnership) took the whole of the JARO product, which previously the two big circuits had shared half-and-half; but he handed Moodabe the London Films product. Amalgamated (of which 20th-Fox owns 75 per cent.) also had what Associated British and other UK product Fox handles.

While Hollywood product is still the backbone of exhibition, British pictures rate highly. Compared with Australia, where they also do well, British pictures are worth from 10 per cent to 25 per cent more at the NZ box office in comparable situations.

The Film Censor sought increased powers, when he proposed amendments and new regulations. Results would have been onerous and costly to the industry. The Government asked the views of the Film Industry Board, a statutory body, which does not seem to have been impressed. The proposal appears to have lapsed.

New Zealand's few laboratories asked the Board of Trade for a per-foot duty on imported 16 mm. prints, in hope of fostering local processing. The big distributors claimed that would make it uneconomic to service 16 mm. situations with entertainment films. No decision has been made, but the move is expected to fail.

On the labor front, the Theatrical Workers' Union gained increases, but the Arbitration Court refused its claim for time-and-a half rates for Saturday work (no Sunday trading in this country). The projectionists had won the principle of Saturday penalty rates in 1950 when they gained time-and-a quarter pay.

The Federation of Labor applied for a substantial wage rise, which as a general order would have included the effect of raising operating costs in exhibition and the other branches of film business. Instead, new standard minimum rates were fixed which enable workers under various awards to obtain small increases.

With no signs of economic disorder and expectation of nature's bounty continuing, New Zealand should make good use of the product's potential to show impressive box office results in 1953.

JAPAN IN 1952

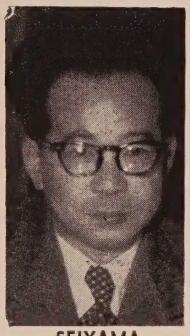
THE FILM DAILY

ON DECEMBER 31, 1952, the motion picture industry in Japan completed its first 12-months of autonomous operations after nearly seven years of occupation. In objective retrospect and for the record, SCAP avoided undue and discriminatory controls; rather, consistent with overall policy, the lot of domestic companies was immensely improved and relatively easy ingress for in-quota product from Allied countries was afforded.

While it is a case difficult to prove conclusively, many local quarters hold that American motion pictures have materially assisted in the democratization of Japan.



SEIYAMA

In its 1952 year-end review, Rengo Tsushin put it, in part, this way:

"In our estimation, the American concept of government of the people, by the people and for the people, implemented by respect for human dignity and rights of the individual, is powerfully preached in some manner or other in most every Hollywood motion picture.

"The fact that some billion Japanese citizens have paid their money to see U. S. product during the past seven years must mean that they have received this democratic import, which is so naturally infused in American films, that audiences are likely to be quite unware of its presence and influence. We are all for our self-coined axiom that U. S. pictures never made good people bad and often make bad people better."

From 1945-52, an overall quota was based on the recipe that the total number of imports should not exceed total domestic production. Incoming American product was allocated to majors and independents according to an 80-20 formula (80 per cent of the total for the former, 20 per cent for the latter). Other foreign films were selected by country as result of a plan informally developed by the Finance Ministry. Latter product accounted on the average for about 30 per cent of total imports.

American films were pooled and distributed by the Central Motion Picture Exchange, a specially-created subsidiary of the Motion Picture Export Association.

CMPE ceased to function on Dec. 31, 1951, roughly five months ahead of the effective date of the Treaty (April 28), through the cooperation of occupation authorities and the Japanese Government, and normal procedures took over at the start of 1952.

Anticipating this changeover, seven of the major U. S. companies (Columbia, 20th-Fox, Metro, Paramount, RKO, Universal-International and Warners) in late '51 had established head offices in Tokyo and branches in Osaka, Nagoya, Fukuoka and Sapporo. Subsequently, all except U-I entered into cooperative erection of office buildings in Nagoya and Fukuoka and vault-distribution establishments in Osaka and Nagoya, while various combinations of the six participated jointly in both types of facilities in Tokyo, as well as in the former Osaka and the latter in Fukuoka.

At press time, this building program was essentially completed at a cost of about $2 million. The show spot is the ultra-modern six-story Tokyo office building by Fox, Metro and Warners. Present plans allow for the possible construction of penthouse quarters at this location for MPAA's Far Eastern head office.

The other three American companies (Allied Artists, Republic and United Artists) also set up headquarters in Tokyo, but made arrangements for physical distribution with domestic companies.

This period further saw the birth of one new domestic distribution firm, Obei. Most of the other companies listed below under Importer-Distributors had come into being during the late 1940s, and now moved more aggressively into bidding for foreign product.

During the past year, the principal trade developments affecting the international scene have been:

1—Attempts to arrive at an equitable quota, consistent with Japan's depressed economic condition and acceptable alike to native and foreign trade circles;

2—Release of accumulated yen;

3—Efforts to create an advisory council (screening panel) for foreign films and,

4—Reduction of admissions tax from 100 per cent to 50 per cent.

The last-mentioned was resolved successfully on Jan. 1, 1953, when the 100 per cent tax was halved. Present consensus is that not more than a 10 per cent reduction will be made in ticket prices in early '53 as a result, chief reason being that exhibitors say they cannot stay in business and give up a greater amount. In fact, the drive to lower the tax was spearheaded by the Exhibitors' Association, and it is believed that official recognition of their claims to red-ledger operations constituted the principal cause for the cut. It has been reliably estimated that the slash may enable the major American companies to up their annual take by some 820 million yen (approx. $2.3 million).

The idea of an advisory council started out as a joint endeavor on the local level of all foreign and domestic importers. The concept was to create a self-regulatory organ for reviewing foreign product, with non-industry personnel manning the Council, in lieu of governmental censorship, which is disallowed by Japan's new constitution.

However, reference of the project to the home offices of the American companies revealed that they were prevented by industry ordinances from participating on the basis originally proposed. Faced with this impasse, domestic promoters of the scheme utilized the Japanese Embassy in Washington to relay a petition to MPAA urging member cooperation. This put the matter on a governmental basis, where MPEA representative Irving A. Maas took it up locally during his fact-finding visit here in late '52. However, Gaimusho (Foreign Office) felt restrained from offering other than informal direction during meetings between Maas and industry supporters. These conferences resulted in both parties submitting draft proposals, but nothing was finalized.

In the meantime, a move was understood to have been made whereby the project would become identified administratively with the Motion Picture Association of Japan, and its Ethics Board (see "Domestic" below). No official comment has been made by MPEA on this development.

At press time, another submission has reportedly been made to MPAA through the Japanese Embassy. This is where we came in, and forces the filing of this item under "unfinished business for 1952."

Release of blocked yen provided the rosiest hue in the international trade sky during '52. In July, special MPAA emissary Col. Richard T. McDonnell's efforts to dislodge frozen assets of American companies were rewarded by Japanese government authorization of $6.6 million in remittances. Of this $5.1 million was charged against 2.9 billion yen (roughly $8.2 million) which represented the CMPE credit balance on deposit as of March 31, 1952. The remaining $1.5 million represented the U. S. companies' accumulated yen, as result of earnings between Jan. 1 to March 31, 1952.

The total remitted equalled 70 per cent of the entire amount of accumulated yen. Early release of the remainder, about $3.2 million, is said to be part and parcel of the McDonnell agreement, but, if you read this here, it means that such action did not occur in time to catch final galley proofs of this report.

The quota question is the thorniest of the four issues. Principal reasons are dollar paucity and fear that a large quota (or, a free market) would ruin domestic producers.

The present fiscal year (ending Mar. 31, 1953) will have seen 122 American films allowed entry by the major U. S. companies, and 30 by independents, a total of 152, while 63 were earmarked for licenses from other countries. For comparison, the 1951 fiscal quota permitted 150 American films (120 to majors, 30 to independents) and 64 to other countries.

Majors were given 63 permits for the first half of 1952, 59 for the second; independents were alloted 15 each half; and other countries were given 63 for the fiscal year.

The Finance Ministry has shown a ready willingness to invite trade comment and opinion in coping with the quota problem, and called an open meeting on Nov. 19, 1952, at which affected parties were given opportunity to air their views. However, the conference revealed nothing previously unknown. Lack of foreign exchange and domestic producers' fears were merely underscored, and certain importers of European product pitched hard for higher allocations, which obviously would have to come out of Uncle Sam's portion.

At press time, the quota for the new fiscal year, starting April 1, had not been announced, but it had been prophesied that sterling countries would get a better break in 1953 due to greater reserves of this specie in government coffers. There was a 50-50 chance that import of American product would be further pared.

During the 1952 calendar year, the 10 major American companies released 149 features (including 12 re-issues), earning 4,962,384,367 yen (about $13.5 million). Eight independents (six of them indigenous companies) handled 22 U. S. films, receiving 643,561,885 yen (just under $2 million). Thus, American product (171 pix) returned approximately the yen equivalent of $15.5 million. ($15 million estimate for the current fiscal year was carried by THE FILM DAILY on Dec. 22.)

Over the same period, 41 other foreign films from 14 countries were released to gross 867,170,918 yen (roughly $2.4 million).

Thus, the grand total of 1952 foreign earnings was 6,473,117,176 yen (approx. $18 million) up from 1951's 4.2 billion yen (roughly $11.6 million). With 30 per cent qualifying for remittances that makes about $5.4 million available for homegoing, some half million less than the top of $6 million which the Japanese government claims its present fiscal position allows.

A 20 per cent royalty tax on the New York share is assessed against the unremittable balance retained in Japan.

Addenda for the year include notation that: 1—five foreign newsreels (Fox Movietone News, MGM's News of the Day, Paramount News, Warner Pathe and the British product, World News) are regularly released; 2—Narrow gauge commercial product is stocked by MGM, RKO and Warners; and, 3—Japanese producers earned some $1.3 million with their exports.

THE DOMESTIC SCENE

THE FIVE MAJOR Japanese producers and 13 independents, together releasing 261 features (up from 1951's 228), earned a whopping 10,982,820,000 yen income (over $30.5 million) during the 1952 calendar period, not including the income of some 11 short subject and newsreel concerns. This creates approximately a 63-37 split between income from domestic and foreign product.

In 1952, domestic studios produced 257 new pix, up from the 1951 total of 208. Last year, domestic product grossed 7.2 billion yen ($20 million).

At present, Japan has approximately 3,800 theaters (up about 500 from last year), with 1.84 million seats (1951—1.62 million), according to the Exhibitors' Association. Thus, there are approximately 21 seats per 1,000 population (total roughly 85 million).

Weekly attendance during 1952 was reckoned at slightly over 12.7 million persons, topping the previous postwar high of 12.6 million in 1948, and the 1951 figure by one-half million.

Average ticket prices for roadshow engagements of foreign product was 200 yen, first run, 125 yen; Japanese films 120 yen, first run; both 80-100 yen, subsequent runs. (Above respectively in U. S. specie; 54 cents, 34 cents, and 22-27 cents.)

One co-production feature, "Itsu-Itsu Ademo" ("Forever, My Love") was made by Daiei with partial American financing and a mixed cast. Another, "Anathan Island" is currently being filmed by Josef von Sternberg under the banner of Daiwa Productions, principals being domestic film leader Nagamasa Kawakita, industrialist Yoshio Osawa and the writer-director. Release is expected in April, 1953.

Hollywood's Margaret O'Brien was co-starred in Daiei's "Futari no Hitomi" ("Girls Hand in Hand"), produced for domestic playoff.

The industry generally considers that the country is overseated. However, there are not more than a dozen modern theaters in the entire country. Generally, there is much to be desired in sanitation, cleanliness and customer-comfort (hot in Summer, unheated in Winter).

About 10 houses in keys present stage shows along with domestic film fare.

An average of four to five screen performances are run off daily, seven days each week, with Saturday and Sunday the best stanzas. Most first-runs open at 10 a.m. and are dark at 9:30 p.m. Advertising slides are used extensively in even the best houses, and 10-15 minute intermissions between shows constitute common practices.

Distributors estimate that a successful film may play from 600 to 800 situations. Practically all key situations (about 250 houses in 20 cities) play percentage, the remainder flat. Double features are the rule in all except roadshow and first-run houses. The major chains are Shochiku (57), Toho (36), and Nikkatsu (38).

Black and white rentals for foreign product is generally 50 per cent, color 60-70 per cent. Deals on Japanese product are usually 50-50.

Shochiku has experimented with one Fuji color feature (1951) plans three others during 1953. Metro is using Konishi color experimentally to print its 16mm. cartoons.

Domestic black-and-white raw stock used during the past 12 months was about 175 million feet; while total production ran 25 million feet additional.

The only overseas award given Japan product during the year was the St. Marco Silver Lion Statuette prize to Shintoho's "Saikaku Ichidai Onna" ("Life of Oharu"), at the 13th Venice International Film Festival. However, this feature did not enjoy the world-acclaim garnered by Daiei's "Rashomon" (first prize at Venice and an Academy Award as the best foreign film, both in 1951).

The Japanese press has commented lengthily during the past half-year on present and future productions of five independent producers, recently banded together for distribution purposes under Hokusei Eiga, previously the principal purveyor of Soviet product.

Various of these companies have so far delivered one feature and one short on the Hiroshima A-bomb theme, two "anti-war" features ("Vacuum Area" and "Tower of the Red Lillies"—the second described in reviews as a "leftish" film with political implications and considered in many quarters as subtlely unfriendly to the U. S.). Another, "A Woman Walks Alone on the Earth" (the Japanese title, "Onna Hitori Daichio Yuku," is the same as the Japanese title of the autobiography of Agnes Smedley, Russian master-spy Sorge's chief Shanghai contact) is scheduled for release in early '53. It is reported to underscore the futility of mining coal in Hokkaido, Japan's northernmost island, when such activity helps the UN forces in Korea. Several so-called "proletarian" themes have also been announced for early production.

Newspaper articles describe the personnel connected with these companies as dissident elements, several of whom were disowned by the major producers in the Red purge of 1950.

An Ethics Board, an occupation innovation, operating under the wing of the Japan Motion Picture Association, was patterned, in part, after the Production Code Administration, and reviews scripts and finished product.

Gishin Ikeda, secretary-general of the Association and vice-chairman of the board, explained to THE FILM DAILY the latter's policy toward the such films in these words:

"Our aim is to try to walk a middle road. That means that we cannot avoid appearing to favor one side or the other (meaning Communist or Western nations) from time to time. Often, the line is rather vague between the two. Presently, our nation is obtaining assistance from the United States, but one day that situation may be changed, and we feel that in the meantime, we want to be as fair as possible to both sides.

"One of our regulations is not to approve a film which may offend another nation. Until we receive protests against particular motion pictures, we will assume that our efforts to discharge a hard assignment are meeting with general approval."

MEXICO IN 1952

By EMIL ZUBRYN

Staff Correspondent, The Film Daily

THE MEXICAN FILM INDUSTRY hit lowest ebb in 1952, with producer-exhibitor-Government bickering accomplishing nothing but increased chaos and dissension. Even the most optimistically minded leaders in the producing-distribution-exhibition fields had to admit that "something was definitely wrong" with the industry. But so contrary is the state of affairs in Mexico that in a January review of accomplishments for the year 1952, a feature writer talked about the "increased importance" of the Mexican industry, comparing it with Hollywood as far as studio facilities and products were concerned. Nothing could be further from the truth.

Discounting the Mexican over-exaggeration and over-statement, the hard facts are that the industry now does represent a total investment of somewhat over 700,000,000 pesos (over $81,000,000 dollars), with over 600,000,000 pesos ($69,440,000) represented by film house investments in the more than 1,650 motion picture theaters operating throughout the country, not including about 500 open air theaters in warm tropical areas.

Despite the constant fighting: producers against distributors; distributors against producers; both against the Government, and so on in a thousand different combinations, yet more movie houses are being constructed, and at this writing there are plans for at least six more first-run and deluxe neighborhood houses for Mexico City alone.

As near as one can check in a country where statistics are never authentic, there are over 15,000 persons directly connected with the industry while an estimated 60,000 to 70,000 more are indirectly earning a living from activities allied with films.

The movies are the major relaxation of Mexicans, even more important than soccer and bullfights. Not everyone can afford the price of admission to the latter two, but every Jose and Maria can and do afford the one peso admission in dubious fourth grade movie houses which offer two or more features for this money in the capital and provincial towns. In the small villages that boast a local cine emporium the fans go each night, or every other night, to see films that are anywhere from five to 12 and 15 years old. This is quite revealing and surprising when employment statistics show that the majority of the campesinos (rural workers) earn five or six pesos (58 to 70 cents) daily, to feed anywhere from four to 10 mouths.

Unofficial estimates place the box office gross in the Federal District (Mexico City and its environs) at around 116,000,000 pesos ($13,425,000), with this increased by another 150,000,000 pesos ($17,315,400) from theaters throughout the Republic. About 2,800,000 persons go to the movies each week in Mexico.

On the surface this would appear as a healthy situation, if one were to take as gospel the producer-distributor figures that another $9,000,000 dollars or so is received from Mexican films abroad. In view of the constant loss of foreign markets in Central and South America—due to poor quality films and objectionable themes—these statistics should be taken with a strong grain of salt. As for European markets, Mexico just does not have a strong enough distribution set-up there, although tentative essays in this direction were made in 1952, and are being followed through now. The U. S. market was seriously disturbed by the withdrawal of the major U. S. distributor of Mexican films, on the grounds that the product was "inferior."

Actually the financial structure of the producing end of the Mexican industry is anything but sound. Outside of about eight major producing units (and these allegedly knit into a secret monopolistic combine) their are hordes of independent outfits who are unimportant from financial or artistic standpoints. Actually there may be about a dozen independents who, properly financed, might be able to produce passable products. Production figures for 1952 at latest official count showed 99 films canned, at a cost of 60,000,000 pesos ($6,944,700), or roughly an investment of 600,000 pesos ($69,360) per picture.

With low budgets, Mexican films are "quickie" products, often shot in one or two weeks—and showing it. Favorite themes are gangsters, hammy tear jerkers, off-color musicals and once in a while a film with a true Mexican theme. Typical of low production quality is the fact that "El Rebozo de Soledad," which won an honorable mention in the Venice Film Festival, is also the only good film produced for the entire year. This starred Arturo de Cordoba, Estela Inda and Pedro Armendariz—all seasoned actors and good box office draws.

Perhaps about a half-dozen other films could be classed as "passable entertainment," including the long-drawn-out, over-acted, underlighted and thoroughly hammed up "El Derecho de Nacer" (The Right to be Born) which featured Spaniard Jorge Mistral, Martha Roth, Gloria Marin and Jose Barbiera, with the latter giving a splendid characterization for at least the first half of the film. However, despite its technical and artistic faults, this film has broken all box office records previously established in Mexico and South America.

Artistically Mexican films, with few exceptions, have never had any high merit. Such high-ranking directors as Emillio Fernandez, Roberto Gavaldon, Alfredo Crevanna, Julio Bracho and Tito Davidson and outstanding cameramen as Gabriel Figuero, Victor Herrera, Alex Phillips and Gilberto Martinez Solares have been able, despite restrictive financial limitations and orders from higher ups, to produce excellent films such as "Los Olvidades," (The Forgotten Ones), "Pueblerina," "Dona Barbara," and last year's "El Rebozo de Soledad."

While producers and exhibitors dealing in national product have wailed about the "Hollywood invasion," the fact of the matter is that aside from a little more than a dozen stars, the Mexican screen lacks strong box office talent. This, added to the uniformly low quality of production, makes the fans prefer foreign—predominantly U. S.—films. In 1952, as compared with the 96 Mexican features shown in Mexico City first run houses, there were 252 U. S. films presented and 57 from other countries including French, Spanish, English and Italian.

Highest box office draws in Mexico today are Jorge Negrete, his newly acquired wife Maria Felix; Pedro Armendariz, Arturo de Cordova, Maria Elena Marques, Katy Jurado, Raphael Baledon, Rita Macedo, Gustavo Rojo, Dolores del Rio, Robert Canedo and Cantinflas as top comic draw with Tin Tan now coming up as a close second.

One of the final acts of the retiring administration of ex-President Aleman, was to propose sweeping reforms of the movie industry to improve quality and insure more efficient distribution. Basically, the plan called for the reduction of studios to three: Tepeyac, San Angel and Churubusco. Independents were to suspend operations and ally themselves with these studios. This move would permit the rehabilitation of the remaining studios into efficiently operated modern units.

Distribution units were also to be overhauled and consolidated, production limited to about 80 films a year with these receiving a higher budget than the average of 600,000 pesos of the past, and a strict censorship control imposed and enforced. Furthermore, the proposed bill, which was passed with very little opposition in both Chamber of Deputies and Senate gave greater powers to the Department of the Interior in the control of distribution, production, exportation and exhibition of films in the Republic—Mexican and foreign. The disputed 50 per cent rule was also pushed through, requiring exhibitors to allot an equal amount of screening time to Mexican products.

Ballyhooed through with a great deal of fiery Latin pyrotechnics, and with a lot of talk about a "new deal" in Mexican motion pictures, it was only a matter of weeks before the 50 per cent rule crumbled, with Federal Judge Ignacio Burgoa granting exhibitors an injunction against the "oppressive" ruling. Strict State control still remains and at year's end far-seeing producers and exhibitors were gloomily predicting the final downfall of the industry through showing of "whitewashed" Government-approved films which would be "thinly disguised propaganda" or historical epics of doubtful artistic and box office value.

First open attempts to fight the powerful film combine supposedly ruled by William Jenkins were made in late 1952, with this struggle gathering momentum in the opening weeks of the New Year. In the muddled state of affairs that now exist in the industry it is difficult to tell whether this is a legitimate fight against alleged "monopoly" or just another maneuver to revitalize the 50 per cent ruling which would have drastically affected exhibition of U. S. and other foreign films in the country.

William Jenkins, Manuel Espinosa Iglesias and Gabriel Alarcon and other executives of Theater Operating Co. and the Gold Chain straddle the distributor-exhibitor set-up in Mexico, controlling all but approximately 6 to 7 hundred independent operators who, until now, have been forced to toe the line or face boycotts. This group also has its fingers in the producing end through such major outfits as Mier and Brooks, J. Grovas & Co.; Filmadora Mexicana, Rodriguez Brothers and Pedro Galindo. An octopus-like structure does exist but no one actually knows the extent of its operations, although undeniably it is the power in the Mexican industry today.

Whatever the ills of the Mexican industry, and they are legion, they have been self-imposed. Mexican films had a chance at becoming a major factor in the international market during and after World War II, when European movies collapsed. But they muffed the chance though for a time they did enjoy a virtual monopoly of the Spanish language market, since lost because of weak stories, poor acting and faulty techniques. Alarmed at the steady loss of foreign markets, the industry has attempted a comeback through importation of famous producers and actors from Europe, Hollywood and South America, and late in 1952 collaborative production deals such as the French-Mexican arrangement to produce a Jean Paul Sartre story were arranged.

Mexico is still exporting to the U. S., Guatemala, Panama, Cuba and Colombia, as well as an inconsequential sprinkling to Europe, but energetic efforts will be needed, and a greatly improved product, if plans for worldwide expansion are to become a reality.

Internally, Mexican theaters operate in the capital on a three-shows-a-day basis, from four in the afternoon to around midnight, although there are a few continuous houses that open at noon; these being principally neighborhood theaters. Operations are on a seven-day week basis in cities and six-day week in smaller towns and villages. Management is expert in urban centers and goes down to sub-standard levels in the interior. However, even in Mexico City, most of the neighborhood theaters, which charge no more than a peso admission (12 cents), are sloppily run and showmanship and ballyhoo, outside of the deluxe houses, is non-existant throughout the Republic.

Popcorn machines are a fixture in all capital theaters but candy is sold by special concessionaires having stands inside the theaters, and there are even coffee shops which sell light snacks, soft drinks and ice cream. Open air theaters are chiefly popular in hot sections of the country where they are standard fixtures although the capital does have one, as well as a drive-in theater as well.

About the only ray of sunshine in the otherwise blue 1952 Mexican picture was the increased interest of Hollywood producers in making films in Mexico. The National Commission of Cinematography fostered this movement which gave work to Mexican technicians and stars in such pictures as "The Brave Bulls," "Plunder in the Sun," "Sombrero," etc., made by top Hollywood producer-director teams. The favorable rate of exchange, Mexican sunlight and wealth of outdoor locations, as well as Mexico City studio facilities has been the magnet for Hollywood producing talent. But there may be a drastic curb on these activities, not from Mexico, but from Hollywood itself. If successful, it would cut not unimportant revenues for Mexican industry and workers.

Actors and technicians in Mexico have strong union backing and these constantly fight to improve salaries and working conditions, both low. Stars, especially the top dozen or so, do command fat fees for acting chores (although far, far below those received by their Hollywood confreres) and live high, wide and handsome, fending off the "autograph menace" at every personal appearance.

Whether the new legislation will improve Mexican films in 1953 remains to be seen. But whether or not product quality is upped the theater building boom appears to continue ever forward. Before the war Mexico only had some 1,000 theaters throughout the Republic—and if all exhibition mediums are counted, this has doubled today and more theaters are in the building or planning stages despite "difficulties" and "differences of opinion" and "Governmental interference."

THE MOTION PICTURE ASSOCIATION

THE MOTION PICTURE ASSOCIATION in 1953 is expected to play an increasingly vital role in furthering the interests of the film industry at home and abroad.

Under the leadership of President Eric A. Johnston, the association has greatly widened the scope of its activities. In the foreign field, this has meant the expansion and streamlining of the association's International division to meet the growing economic and political problems which threaten the free flow of films overseas.

On the domestic front, the association is placing greater accent on programs designed to bolster the box office and better the industry's public relations. Increased activities are expected in the fields of economic and technical research, as well as in self-regulation and community-exhibitor relations programs of the association. A long-time fighter for freedom of the screen, Johnston is also expected to intensify association activities designed to bring motion pictures under the full protection of the Constitution.

Expansion of the association's visual education program is also expected during the year. The association has worked closely with leading educators to develop the maximum usefulness of motion pictures in education. In the theatrical entertainment field, Johnston has strengthened the Children's Film Library program, which has had a wide measure of success in assuring the availability of films specifically suitable for children.

PRODUCTION CODE ADMINISTRATION

SELF-REGULATION of motion picture production evolved gradually from early beginnings in 1922 when the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America was founded. Several progressive steps to establish higher standards of distribution culminated in the adoption on March 31, 1930, of the Production Code, which continues as the basic document in the industry's policy of self-regulation.

This Code, a voluntary agreement entered into by the member companies, acknowledges the producers' responsibility to the public and asks in return "a sympathetic understanding of their purposes and problems and a spirit of cooperation that will allow them the freedom and opportunity necessary to bring the motion picture to a still higher level of wholesome entertainment for all the people."

The Code machinery of self-regulation operates at four points:

1. The original story or play is submitted to the Production Code Administration for suggestion and criticism before the first screen adaptation is written.
2. When the script is completed, it is submitted for a check with Code requirements.
3. In the early stages of production, members of the Production Code Administration staff are often called in to discuss sequences that present problems.
4. After this careful reviewing all along the way, the finished picture is reviewed and, if it meets Code requirements, a certificate of approval is issued.

The Code machinery is available to all producers, foreign or domestic, whether or not they are members of the Association, a service increasingly utilized.

How well the Production Code Administration has performed its functions in maintaining both Code Standards and the integrity and vigor of the screen as a medium of entertainment is evidenced by the steady stream of high quality pictures that continues to flow from the studios.

ADVERTISING CODE ADMINISTRATION

AS WITH all forms of self-regulation in the motion picture industry, the efforts of the member companies of the Association, through the provisions of the Advertising Code (adopted June 10, 1930), are directed toward promoting and maintaining a high standard of advertising throughout the industry. This cooperative effort brings into conformity with the requirements of good taste all press books, newspaper advertising, trailers, outdoor displays, novelties and other forms of publicity and exploitation.

All motion picture producers, whether or not they are members of the Motion Picture Association, who accept the Production Code seal on their product thereby agree to conform also to the Advertising Code.

To insure uniform interpretation of the Code, all advertising material is submitted in advance to the Advertising Code Administration at the Association's office in New York or its branch in Hollywood.

INTERNATIONAL DIVISION

AMERICAN motion pictures constitute one of this country's leading export commodities. They are widely exhibited in every country of the world with the exception of the Soviet Union and most of the countries now under Communist domination.

Monetary returns from motion pictures in foreign markets account for a substantial portion of the American film industry's total revenue. Few other American industries rely on foreign markets to such an extent.

In addition to their commercial importance, American films—more than any other medium of mass communication—are recognized as a powerful influence in fostering democratic attitudes and in conveying to peoples abroad an understanding of American life, customs and institutions. While American movies are popular primarily because of their superior entertainment values, the social and ideological by-products which they carry have had a tremendous impact on film-goers of every nation in which American films are exhibited.

The heavy reliance of the American film industry on revenues from abroad and the increasingly vital role its product is playing as ambassadors of democracy have invested the Motion Picture Association's International Division with important responsibilities.

Constant objective of the Division's efforts is to hold down to a minimum, through negotiation, the restraints officially imposed by many foreign governments on the free distribution of American films, and to eliminate these curbs wherever possible. Typical of the barriers placed in the path of American films abroad are limitations on film imports, screen quotas, excessive import duties, dubbing taxes, and substantial levies on theaters, admissions and earnings.

Gains in the box office volume of American films and monetary returns from overseas markets paralleled the recovery of Europe and Asia from the economic and political disruptions of the post-war years.

By the end of 1951, a resurgence in the popularity of American films abroad increased aggregate business volume enough to neutralize the serious monetary losses that ensued from the spate of currency devaluations which jolted the American film companies in 1949-50.

Even though there has been little abatement in the obstacles that impede American film operations overseas, business volume and remittances from foreign markets showed further gains in 1952. Revenues from abroad last year are estimated to have reached a record total.

Through International Division efforts and negotiations, increases in dollar remittances in 1952 were realized from a number of overseas markets, notably from Japan where a substantial portion of blocked yen earnings, accumulated since 1945, were unfrozen.

Other noteworthy international developments last year included renegotiation of the Anglo-American film agreement; conclusion of new one-year film pacts with France, Spain and Belgium; and the extension in Germany of unrestricted American film imports and remittances.

Following his return from the Paris negotiations in November, 1952, Eric A. Johnston, MPAA-MPEA president, flew to South America on a four-week mission. Primary purpose of the trip was to seek relief from a mounting array of officially-imposed obstacles which beset the U. S. film companies in several of the southern hemisphere countries. Successful conferences were held at the highest levels with government officials in Brazil, Uruguay, Argentina, Peru and Chile.

To deal more efficiently and effectively with the growing problems of the industry's overseas business, Johnston in December reorganized MPAA's International Division. Taking personal charge of all international affairs, Johnston set up three geographical divisions—Europe and Africa, the Western hemisphere, and Asia—with the responsibility for each division assigned to representatives in the New York office.

At the same time, Johnston indicated that the International Division's representation in the field will also be bolstered as the need arises. The establishment of an MPAA office in Tokyo in the summer of 1952 to cover the Asian market brought to eight the number of key outposts now operated by the Association. The others are located in London, Paris, Madrid, Rome, Frankfurt, Stockholm and Rio de Janeiro.

The International Division's field representatives serve as liaison with foreign film distributors and with member company distributors and report to MPAA headquarters on all matters relating to motion picture interests in their respective areas. Presence of these men in the field enables the International Division to take prompt action on matters requiring remedial attention. Not infrequently, when adverse legislation is anticipated, speedy appeal and negotiation by the International Division has been successful in delaying and discouraging enactment.

Film Boards of Trade composed of local representatives of American motion picture distributors are maintained in 16 foreign countries. They operate under the general guidance of the Association and their activities, reported regularly and in detail, are shared with member companies.

The Advisory Unit for Foreign Films, created by Johnston in 1950 as an integral part of the International Division, continued its program of assistance to foreign film producers who seek its services.

The unit was set up for the purpose of making available to foreign producers or their representatives the information, knowledge and merchandising experience needed to help them market their product in the United States. Its basic objective is to encourage the importation of more good foreign films in this country, thereby helping to stimulate the flow of dollars to film-producing countries abroad.

The Advisory Unit is essentially consultative in character. Statitsics on the American film market compiled specially by the Unit for foreign film producers are readily available. The Unit gives information on the clearance of films through U.S. customs; on standard distribution and exhibition practices; the operation of the Production Code; state and local censorship regulations, and other items—all calculated to smooth the path of the overseas producer who has a film to sell here.

COMMUNITY RELATIONS DEPARTMENT

THE Community Relations Department provides information and assistance to civic, cultural and educational community leaders who are interested in directing the attention of the public to worthwhile current motion pictures presented in theatres. The department also assists theatre managers to adjust their entertainment programs to the needs of the entire family and the interests of important groups in their communities. Among the activities to which the department gives its cooperation, or sponsors, are the following:

Preview Services

The department, through the cooperation of motion picture distributors, provides previewing facilities affording the following national groups opportunity for early screenings of pictures:

American Association of University Women
American Jewish Committee
American Library Association
Children's Film Library Committee
National Society Daughters of the American Revolution
National Federation of Music Clubs
General Federation of Womens Clubs
Girl Scouts of the U.S.A.
Protestant Motion Picture Council
United Church Women
National Congress of Parents and Teachers
Schools Motion Picture Committee

Each of these national organizations designates a national motion picture chairman who in turn appoints a preview chairman and an editorial chairman. The preview committees vary in size, having from ten to fifty reviewers.

Each national organization distributes its own preview reports directly to its members, either through mimeographed or printed bulletins or in their national house organs or magazines.

The preview chairmen also make their reports available to the Fox West Coast Theatres Corporation where they are compiled in a four-page printed bulletin titled "Unbiased Opinions." "Unbiased Opinions" are mailed largely to exhibitors but in addition reach a large number of special contacts interested in the points of view of the different national organizations.

Joint Estimates of Current Motion Pictures

For the larger national distribution, concerned rather with a joint estimate of motion pictures than with the point of view of the individual organization, the preview chairmen, sitting as an editorial board, compile reviews published as the JOINT ESTIMATES OF CURRENT MOTION PICTURES. This semi-monthly report is popularly known as the "Green Sheet." JOINT ESTIMATES OF CURRENT MOTION PICTURES provides three basic appraisals:

Audience suitability classifications:
F—Family.
A-YP—Adults and Young People.
A—Adults.

In addition, the "Green Sheet" provides an appraisal of each picture's content as to entertainment value, moral acceptability, and educational merit.

As the audience classifications are not to be interpreted as merit classifications, the reviews of the pictures undertake to express the editorial board's judgment. Photoplays held to have outstanding merit are awarded the distinction of a star. Where the opinions of the editorial chairmen are not in agreement, the estimate of the majority is reflected in the appraisal, and the exceptions, either in audience classification or general ratings, are noted.

The Motion Picture Association prints and distributes JOINT ESTIMATES OF CUR-RENT MOTION PICTURES for the national groups doing the previewing.

Subscriptions to JOINT ESTIMATES are available to individuals identified with some organized group in their community and to interested exhibitors. Requests to obtain the "Green Sheet" should be addressed to the Joint Estimates of Current Motion Pictures, 28 West 44th Street, New York 36, N. Y. Upon receipt of such request, a questionnaire will be mailed to the applicant asking what type of materials is desired, and what affiliations with public activities each applicant has in his or her community. Upon receipt of the questionnaire, the applicant will be placed on the mailing list to receive not only the JOINT ESTIMATES but other material related to specialized phases of motion picture art or industry applicable to the indicated interest or activity of the recipient.

Children's Film Library

In the brochure—available on request—explaining the Children's Film Library, Eric Johnston placed this introduction:

"The Children's Film Library has but one aim and purpose: to keep constantly available for Saturday showings the finest possible films for the children of America.

"Ageless stories by Mark Twain, Robert Louis Stevenson, Lewis Carroll, James Fenimore Cooper and Booth Tarkington take their place in the Library beside modern tales of stirring historical happenings—life in foreign lands—diverting situations that lead to laughter.

"In undertaking this project, the motion picture industry is proud to have a part in preserving for younger audiences the photoplays which the children love and have made their own.

"If parents will encourage the screening of these pictures at their neighborhood theatres on Saturday shows, their children, I believe, will be enriched in literature, advanture, fantasy and fun. We present the CHILDREN'S FILM LIBRARY with that in mind."

In the Children's Film Library, there are now fifty-three pictures; many additional photoplays in current release are available to exhibitors for children's programs; the key to these pictures are ratings which appear in the semi-monthly JOINT ESTIMATES OF CURRENT MOTION PICTURES. Two ratings are made: CPR (Recommended for the Children's Film Library) and CPA (Acceptable for Children's Programs).

All the films in the Children's Film Library are previewed by groups of children as well as by the National Children's Film Library Committee; this dual appraisal and selection guarantees both the moral and age classification suitability and the entertainment acceptability of these pictures for special children's programs.

Protestant Motion Picture Council.
American Library Association.
National Congress of Parents and Teachers
National Society, Daughters of the American Revolution.
Parents' Magazine.
National Federation of Music Clubs.
Schools Motion Picture Com.
American Association of University Women.
American Jewish Committee.
General Federation of Women's Clubs.
International Federation of Catholic Alumnae.
Girl Scouts of America.

For advice and guidance in the initiation of special children's programs or cooperation from exhibitors, address Marjorie Granger Dawson, director, National Children's Film Library, 28 West 44th Street, New York 18, N. Y.

Providing ideal entertainment for children, ages eight to twelve, is the primary objective of the Children's Film Library; because the pictures in the Children's Film Library were designed for general audiences, these age limits are not arbitrary.

Photoplay Appreciation

IT is estimated that not less than 6,000,000 students in elementary and secondary schools, colleges and universities receive more or less detailed guidance from their teachers in the appreciative study of appropriate motion picture feature and short subjects currently offered in the theaters. This technique is rapidly spreading, especially in high schools and junior high schools. These progressive teachers use the local motion picture theater for illustrative material just as they use the public library for collateral reading. Also, they have found it practical to mould the taste of their pupils toward the development of discriminating habits of choice in the selection of motion picture entertainment. In these activities teachers use study guides, a number of which are published during each school year, classroom bulletins mailed by the Community Relations Department, selected still pictures chosen with special reference to their educational value and research photograph exhibits which are regularly displayed in about 6,500 public libraries and school libraries. Interested teachers are usually able to obtain this material through local exhibitors who secure it from the distributors of the pictures; where this is not possible, teachers may contact Motion Picture Association Inc., 28 W. 44th St., New York 36, N. Y., direct.

Exhibits Available to Schools and Libraries

DISPLAYS of various types, research exhibits, and brochures featuring the historical background, literary antecedents and technical data concerning production are available from the Department of Community Relations without cost. The research exhibits —approximately 20"x30" and including from three to 12 posters—present source materials utilized in designing costumes, sets, properties, story sources and other collaterals used in the process of translating fiction, biography, history, etc., to motion pictures. The brochures covering much the same field are usable for intimate classroom study as well as display.

The Community Relations Department, in cooperation with educational groups and librarians, selects the pictures to receive this treatment. The cultural, social and educational as well as entertainment values of the pictures are the determining factors. The interest in and desire for mutual collaboration on the part of the producer-members of the Association makes this service possible.

Exhibitors, where it is known that these materials are not locally used, should feel no hesitancy in approaching school administrators or librarians concerning their value. They are now regularly in use by more than 6,000 high schools and 4,000 libraries. While many schools and libraries have limitations and restrictions inherent in the public character of their institutions, once they have realized that these display materials have been designed with a knowledge of their problems, welcome them. Only mutual respect can grow from the realization that many current photoplays have great educational value and that filming of the classics greatly extends the public's reading of them. These materials enhance the value of both and attract the public to those photoplays which, because they contribute constructive ideas and ideals as well as entertain, should be universally seen.

Speakers Bureau

The Community Relations Department does not maintain a formal Speakers Bureau but is prepared to cooperate wherever possible in providing speakers for programs concerned with the moral, social or entertainment value of motion pictures. Requests for speakers should be made as far in advance as possible to the Community Relations Department, Motion Picture Association of America, Inc., 28 West 44th Street, New York 36, N. Y.

The MPAA Library

The MPAA Library was established six years ago, to serve as repository and reference for information on matters pertaining to film industry activities.

The informational services of the Library are available not only to MPAA staff members and member companies, but as well to non-members, exhibitors, educational institutions, civic groups, etc. The MPAA librarian each year answers by mail and phone hundreds of individual requests for information from industry as well as non-industry sources.

Compactly set up along institutional lines, the Library today has on its shelves some 1,500 texts on practically every phase and aspect of the film business. Supplementing these are thousands of pamphlets and clippings which have been carefully catalogued and cross-referenced. In addition, the Library keeps a running file of nearly every periodical in the film field and maintains bound volumes of the more important motion picture trade publications.

Another important service of the Library is to keep industry executives abreast of current comment on the motion picture business through the preparation of resumes and digests of significant new texts and published materials.

From its vast store of information the Library supplies, on request, basic materials for speeches and articles on motion picture topics to people within and without the industry. Scores of such requests during the past year have come from teachers and students.

EDUCATIONAL SERVICES

THE EDUCATIONAL SERVICES DEPARTMENT, established in 1946, functions as the liaison between the motion picture industry and educational agencies and organizations.

This is a two-way program, through which

1. The industry makes contacts with educational leaders for cooperation in the exploitation of feature films and shorts which have educational application, and
2. Extends to educational agencies such services of the industry as will contribute to educational objectives.

Through this Department, the industry is able to render a variety of services to education. These services greatly expand the use of the motion picture in schools and colleges, and give to the motion picture an increasing acceptability within the educational world.

This program of educational services is based largely on the program of Teaching Film Custodians, Inc., the non-profit distribution affiliate of the industry, organized 15 years ago to make short subjects available to schools. These short subjects, not available from other sources, were selected by groups of subject matter specialists, and are licensed on a long-term basis to educational film libraries maintained by state, county and city school systems.

The program is carried on without compensation to the producing companies and without profit to any education institution responsible for implementing this service. This program implements the statement, "developing the educatioal, as well as the entertainment values and general usefulness of the motion picture," which was included in the purposes for which the Motion Picture Association was formed in 1922.

Under this program, nearly 500 non-current theatrical short subjects were made available in 1939. These were selected from about 15,000 short subjects, then in the vaults of the member companies, for use in educational institutions in strictly classroom work.

The selections were made under the supervision of the Advisory Committee on the Use of Motion Pictures in Education.

For the purpose of handling the physical distribution of the films, the educators who were members of this Advisory Committee formed themselves into a non-profit corporation known as Teaching Film Custodians, Inc.

In 1943 the member companies of the Motion Picture Association of America authorized Teaching Film Custodians, Inc. to excerpt non-current feature pictures in the interests of making classroom verions for study in classes of English Literature, social science and other curriculum areas. The excerpted versions of feature photoplays are distributed for classroom use under the same licensing terms which govern the distribution of short subjects.

Under the terms and conditions of the contracts with the producing companies, the trustees of Teaching Film Custodians, Inc. are permitted to license non-current short subjects and excerpted versions of feature pictures to schools for limited periods with stated limitations as follows:

> "Prints will be furnished only to bonafide educational institutions and agencies; the exhibitions shall be before classroom or kindred groups composed only of bonafide students or enrolled members of such educational institutions or agencies, and such exhibitions shall be an integral factor of class or group study and discussion.
> "Admission fees, directly or indrectly, shall never be charged or permitted to be paid for admission at the door or otherwise in advance or afterwards, for the right to attend either single exhibitions or a series of such exhibitions."

Under the contract, these classroom pictures must be projected without change or alteration. The unauthorized copying of these films is a violation of the United States copyright law. Any unauthorized exhibition of these pictures would also be a violation of the copyright law.

The advisory committee has prepared a Handbook of Films for Classroom Use, listing and describing the short subjects and excerpted versions of feature pictures which, under this plan, are made available for educational purposes.

The Advisory Committee wishes to emphasize the expermiental nature of this work and invites the cooperation of all teachers who use these films. It is hoped that records of the responses of pupils will be kept and that copies will be sent to the office of the Managing Trustee. These reports will be used as guides to the selection of additional pictures which are not now available. Schools of education and other research agencies are invited to send in the results of any investigations that they may make on the educational value of these pictures.

All funds over and above actual handling and distribution costs which accrue from rental fees for Teaching Film Custodians pictures are devoted to the further development of audio-visual education. Among the experimental and research projects to which Teaching Film Custodians has contributed are the following: The Motion Picture Research Project, Institute of Human Relations, Yale University; the Commission on Motion Pictures, American Council on Education; The Visual Education Division, National Education Association; and the Research Project in Film Evaluation, University of Wisconsin. In conjunction with the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching, Teaching Film Custodians has been co-sponsor of the Curriculum Enrichment Program in Rural High Schools, State Department of Education, Nebraska, and The Evaluation of Teacher Training Activities in Audio-Visual Education, State College of Washington.

The authorization by the member companies of the Motion Picture Association to excerpt non-current feature pictures has resulted in the expansion of the educational services program in the preparation of films to meet specific educational objectives. Natural organizations of teachers in specialized subject-matter areas seek the cooperation of the Educational Services Department, and appoint collaborating committees to assist in preparing useful materials excerpted from feature picture footage.

In 1946, the National Council for the Social Studies appointed the following committee:

Dr. William H. Hartley, Chairman, Associate Editor for Social Education; Dr. W. Kenneth Fulkerson, Director of Social Studies, Rochester City Schools; Dr. Frederick H. Stutz, Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y.; Dr. Lewis Paul Todd, Editor, "Social Education," Washington, D. C.; and Dr. Richard E. Thursfield, Chairman of the Department of Education, University of Rochester.

This committee, working closely with the staff of Teaching Film Custodians, and with the Educational Services Department of the Motion Picture Association, has prepared six subjects for use in world history classes, a similar series of five subjects for use in classes on the problems on democracy and six subjects on United States history.

The costs of this excerpting program are paid by Teaching Film Custodians, and the films when completed and approved are distributed by Teaching Film Custodians.

Teaching Film Custodians also sponsors and collaborates with audio-visual committees representing national associations of educators in preparing excerpted versions of feature pictures for classroom use. Among the organizations participating in this program are the Music Educators National Conference, the National Council for the Social Studies, the National Council of Teachers of English, National Science Teachers Association, American Vocational Association, American Home Economics Associations, Department of Home Economics of the N. E. A., and American Association for Health, Physical Education, and Recreation.

A committee of the National Council of Teachers of English is now in the process of developing a program to expand the series of excerpted films in the field of English literature. A 17-minute motion picture, "Understanding Movies," has been completed for use in English, speech, dramatics and motion picture appreciation.

Other subject matter area interests are in the process of negotiation with the Educational Services Department for participation in the excerpting program.

This program has made the motion picture industry a very useful ally to education, and has developed common interests between the industry and educational leaders which results in a clearer understanding of the problems of both groups.

The series of informational and vocational films on the motion picture industry is distributed by Teaching Film Custodians, as produced by the member companies of MPAA: Let's Go to the Movie (RKO); The Art Director (20CF); The Soundman (COL); This Theater and You (WB); History Brought to Life (PARA); Screen Actors (MGM); Movies are Adventure (U-I); The Costume Designer (RKO); The Screen Writer (20CF); Moments in Music (MGM); The Cinematographer (PARA); The Screen Director (WB).

The Educational Services Department is active also in cooperating with various national and international groups in developing the educational usefulness of motion pictures and particularly those which are produced by the member companies of the Motion Picture Association of America. These cooperative agencies include many cooperative projects with Government agencies, with professional organizations in the visual education field throughout the United States, and with such international organizations as UNESCO, the American Friends Service Committee, and the Departments of Education of various foreign countries.

Since its inception, the services of the board members of Teaching Film Custodians and each of the cooperating committees have been rendered on a volunteer basis.

The negatives from which the prints are made have been made available by the members of the Motion Picture Association without compensation.

Sets of stills have been assembled, suitably selected for school and library display, from about 100 photoplays which are based on standard works of literature and other similarly important productions. These stills are provided at $1.00 per set on request of librarians and teachers of photoplay appreciation classes. A list of pictures on which sets of stills are available may be had on request to the Educational Services Department, MPAA.

TITLE REGISTRATION BUREAU

IT IS GENERALLY BELIEVED by motion picture executives and theater managers that an appropriate and intriguing title that arouses public curiosity, or a title that has achieved fame and wide popularity as a book or play, has a profound influence on the success or popularity of a motion picture. Numerous examples of distinctive and unusual titles on widely popular pictures support the theory. For this reason more and more attention is being given to titles by the producers and distributors of modern motion pictures.

The difficulty of protecting valuable property rights in motion picture titles in the absence of copyright protection on the title itself and the expense and delays of litigation, to establish usage rights brought about the gradual development of a voluntary method of title registration in a central agency by the members of the Association. The present procedure for the registration of titles was established by the Association in 1936 for its members and such non-member producing and distributing companies as desire to use the service.

In all the years the title registration service has been operating few companies once using the registration service for its titles have ever requested it be discontinued for them. Now 202 motion picture companies use the services of Title Registration Bureau, submitting for registration an aggregate average of 4,600 titles a year. Each company using the Bureau receives a daily report of all title registrations.

The registration of motion picture titles to prevent duplication and harmful similarities serves a dual purpose: first, it enables the theater going public to readily identify the motion pictures it wants to see without confusion or misleading similarity between titles; and second, it protects the valuable titles of published books and plays acquired for motion picture production, and original titles with popular appeal, against the use of identical or unfairly similar titles by any producer or distributor that is a party to the title registration voluntary agreement. By such agreement each participating company undertakes to refrain from using such registered title until the prior registration is terminated or otherwise released for use.

Titles that are considered to be salacious, indecent, obscene or otherwise offensive are not accepted for registration. Differences of opinion on similarities and other title controversies are adjusted first by direct negotiation and discussion between the registrants involved, but may be referred to the Association for possible mediation.

If this fails to adjust the dispute it is then referred to arbitration for a final decision. In the past year 901 formal protests were filed with the Bureau against the registration of titles deemed to be too similar to a title already registered. All but 20 of these protests were adjusted by friendly negotiation between the companies and by mutual agreement without resorting to an arbitration of the dispute.

By agreement the producers and distributors who participate in title registration limit the number of original titles which any company may have in registration at one time, so that an unreasonable number of titles will not be reserved indefinitely but not used on a produced picture. Of course as the pictures are produced and released the titles are taken off the "priority registration" and placed on the release index or list of produced motion pictures.

Whenever movies are produced under titles based on a copyrighted work, such titles are automatically placed on a permanently protected list. In addition to these, any studio may ask permanent protection for up to 250 original titles. Beyond these, all titles registered and used for released pictures are protected for a four-year period. During the period of such protection, no other company may use the title unless it obtains clearance from the prior registrant.

Titles of pictures intended for production are granted indefinite protection if affixed to copyrighted material. Otherwise, if in an original title classification, a one-year period of protection is afforded. Each registrant is limited to one hundred original feature titles and 200 original short-subject titles at any one time. If an original title is not used within the year and the registrant cannot show evidence of intention to produce the subject within the succeeding six months, the title becomes available to any other company which has expressed interest in the identical title.

The indexes of titles of motion pictures produced and released by member companies keeps growing every year. In 1937 there were 36,000 titles of feature pictures and short subjects registered on the release index, today there are over 50,000 titles registered, and the index file used to call attention to similarities with titles previously registered, based upon the use of key words, now has over 150,000 cards in it.

For those companies who do not register titles with the Bureau, titles are considered and approved for suitability in connection with the Code of Production Standards. Last year 95 titles were thus approved, and since 1937 over 4,775 such titles have been considered by the Bureau for use on pictures that have received Code approval.

TECHNICAL SERVICES DEPARTMENT

THIS department of the Association was organized primarily for maintaining adequate fire and personnel safety in domestic film exchange operation. In recent years, its functions have been steadily expanding. They now include the supervision of logistical problems that occur in the distribution of films to the nation's theaters and providing technical services that pertain to the servicing, handling and storage of films, particularly of original negative material and film subjects archival in character.

The Association's safety program, developed along self-regulatory lines, has served ably to minimize losses by fire in domestic film distribution facilities. Evidence of the close adherence to the program by the Association's members is the steadily decreasing annual fire loss record, which now totals less than $200.00 per annum for the past 27 years.

In large measure, the striking success of this program is attributable to the thoroughness of the department's field work. This phase of its activities has as its goal the instilling of fire prevention consciousness among film exchange personnel, perfection in maintenance and housekeeping standards and the surveillance of regularly scheduled exchange inspections. Integrated with the field service is the continuing program of employee education in film methods required by new film basis, and practices developed toward absolute safety.

Other functions of the department include:

1. Maintaining close liaison with the national and international bodies interested in reducing fire waste. These groups consist of the National Fire Protection Association, Fire Protection Association of England, National Board of Fire Underwriters, National Fire Waste Council, National Safety Council, Bureau of Explosives, the National Association of Fire Chiefs and the various Federal departments similarly interested.

2. Providing technical assistance and encouragement toward the erection and maintenance of adequate facilities for the distribution and storage of motion picture films.

3. Extending cooperation to film groups outside of the United States for the purpose of acquainting them with the latest methods perfected for film servicing and handling efficiency and sharing the most recent thoughts for the protection of films held in storage.

Under the self-regulatory system, each of the nation's exchanges are inspected on a strictly adhered to monthly basis by a rotating group of area branch managers in each distribution center. These men are appointed for a period of six months service and are assisted in this work by the Conservation Department's director, who travels regularly to all of the various domestic exchange areas. During 1951, in excess of 4,800 exchange inspections were made of distribution facilities in this country.

Another phase of the protective activities of the Conservation Department is its continued survey of all non-theatrical institutions to obtain information on:

(a) Type of equipment used for the exhibition of motion pictures.

(b) Type and construction of projection booths.

(c) Experience and qualifications of projectionists.

(d) Whether or not the institution has the approval of a recognized public or state fire official.

Purpose of these investigations is to assure motion picture distributors that the service of films to these places of exhibition will be in conformity with local law and in accord with the industry's desire for maximum audience safety at all times.

THE MOTION PICTURE EXPORT ASSOCIATION

THE MOTION PICTURE EXPORT ASSOCIATION was set up in 1945 under the Webb-Pomerene Act to represent member company distributors in countries devastated by the war and to deal with state-controlled film monopolies.

Originally MPEA was licensed to export member company product as a unified operation in the following thirteen countries: Germany, Austria, Holland, Hungary, Rumania, Czechoslovakia, Bulgaria, Poland, the Soviet Union, Yugoslavia, Indonesia, Japan and Korea.

By the end of 1952, member companies had resumed individual operation in Germany, Holland, Indonesia, Japan and Korea. In Austria, MPEA is at present operating on a temporary basis for four of its member companies who, however, control their own sales policies.

Until about the middle of 1948, American films were released in the Soviet satellite countries through distribution deals negotiated by MPEA with the respective film monopolies. Since then, commercial relationships with these countries have deteriorated to the point where today MPEA exports no films to Iron Curtain territory.

Shortly after Tito broke away from Soviet influence in 1949, MPEA signed an agreement with the Yugoslav film monopoly under which film-goers of that country saw American motion pictures for the first time since pre-World War II days. The film pact with Yugoslavia has been renewed annually since then. The agreement now in force calls for the release of 40 American pictures during the current 12-month period.

While MPEA has largely fulfilled the active merchandising objectives for which it was created in 1945, it continues to be the medium through which its member companies meets their common problems in the exporting of American motion pictures to all foreign nations.

CODE OF PRODUCTION STANDARDS

As Enforced by the Motion Picture Association

MOTION picture producers recognize the high trust and confidence which have been placed in them by the people of the world and which have made motion pictures a universal form of entertainment.

They recognize their responsibility to the public because of this trust and because entertainment and art are important influences in the life of a nation.

Hence, though regarding motion pictures primarily as entertainment without any explicit purpose of teaching or propaganda, they know that the motion picture within its own field of entertainment may be directly responsible for spiritual or moral progress, for higher types of social life, and for much correct thinking.

During the rapid transition from silent to talking pictures they have realized the necessity and the opportunity of subscribing to a Code to govern the production of talking pictures and of reacknowledging this responsibility.

On their part, they ask from the public and from public leaders a sympathetic understanding of their purposes and problems and a spirit of cooperation that will allow them the freedom and opportunity necessary to bring the motion picture to a still higher level of wholesome entertainment for all the people.

Special Regulations on Crime in Motion Pictures

Resolved, that the Board of Directors of the Motion Picture Association of America, Inc., hereby ratifies, approves and confirms the interpretations of The Production Code, the practices thereunder, and the resolutions indicating and confirming such interpretations heretofore adopted by the Association of Motion Picture Producers, Inc., all effectuating regulations relative to the treatment of crime in motion pictures as follows:

1. "Details of crime" must never be shown and care should be exercised at all times discussing such details.

2. Action suggestive of wholesale slaughter of human beings, either by criminals, in conflict with police, or as between warring factions of criminals, or in public disorder of any kind, will not be allowed.

3. There must be no suggestion, at any time, of excessive brutality.

4. Because of the increase in the number of films in which murder is frequently committed, action showing the taking of human life, even in the mystery stories, is to be cut to a minimum. These frequent presentations of murder tend to lessen regard for the sacredness of life.

5. Suicide, as a solution of problems occurring in the development of screen drama, is to be discouraged as morally questionable and as bad theater—unless absolutely necessary for the development of the plot. It should never be justified or glorified or used to defeat the due process of law.

6. There must be no display, at any time, of machine guns, sub-machine guns, or other weapons generally classified as illegal weapons in the hands of gangsters, or other criminals, and there are to be no off-stage sounds of the repercussion of these guns.

7. There must be no new, unique or trick methods shown for concealing guns.

8. The flaunting of weapons by gangsters, or other criminals, will not be allowed.

9. All discussions and dialogue on the part of gangsters, regarding guns should be cut to the minimum.

10. There must be no scenes, at any time, showing law-enforcing officers dying at the hands of criminals unless such scenes are absolutely necessary to the development of the plot. This includes private detectives and guards for banks, motor trucks, etc.

11. With special reference to the crime of kidnapping—or illegal abduction is: (a) not the main theme of the story (b) the person kidnapped is not a child; (c) there are no details of the crime of kidnapping; (d) no profit accrues to the abductors or kidnappers; and (e) where the kidnappers are punished.

It is understood and agreed that the word kidnapping as used in paragraph (11) of these Regulations is intended to mean abduction, or illegal detention, in modern times, by criminals for ransom.

12. Pictures dealing with criminal activities in which minors participate, or to which minors are related, shall not be approved if they incite demoralizing imitations on the part of the youth.

13. No picture shall be approved dealing with the life of a notorious criminal of current or recent times which uses the name, nickname, or alias of such notorious criminal in the film, nor shall a picture be approved if based upon the life of such a notorious criminal unless the character shown in the film be punished for crimes shown in the film as committed by him.

Resolution for Uniform Interpretation

1. When requested by production managers, the Motion Picture Association, Incorporated, shall secure any facts, information or suggestions concerning the probable reception of stories or the manner in which in its opinion they may best be treated.

2. That each production manager shall submit in confidence a copy of each or any script to the Production Code Administration of the Motion Picture Association, Incorporated (and of the Association of Motion Picture Producers, Inc., California). Such Production Code Administration will give the production manager for his guidance such confidential advice and suggestions as experience, research, and information indicate, designating wherein in its judgment the script departs from the provisions of the Code, or wherein from experience or knowledge it is believed that exception will be taken to the story or treatment.

3. Each production manager of a company belonging to the Motion Picture Association, Incorporated, and any producer proposing to through the facilities of any member of the Motion Picture Association, Incorporated, shall submit to such Production Code Administration every picture he produces before the negative goes to the laboratory for printing. Said Production Code Administration, having seen the picture, shall inform the production manager in writing whether in its opinion the picture conforms or does not conform to the Code, stating specifically wherein either by theme, treatment or incident, the picture violates the provisions of the Code. In such latter event, the picture shall not be released until the changes indicated by the Production Code Administration have been made; provided, however, that the production manager may appeal from such opinion of said Production Code Administration, so indicated in writing, to the Board of Directors of the Motion Picture Association, Incorporated, whose findings shall be final, and such production manager and company shall be governed accordingly.

6. The history, institutions and nationals of all countries shall be represented with fairness.
7. Profanity and vulgarity shall be avoided.
8. Pictorial and copy treatment of officers of the law shall not be of such a nature as to undermine their authority.
9. Specific details of crime, inciting imitation, shall not be used.
10. Motion picture advertisers shall be guided by the provision of the Production Code that the use of liquor in American life shall be restricted to the necessities of characterization and plot.
11. Nudity with meretricious purpose and salacious postures shall not be used; and clothed figures shall not be represented in such manner as to be offensive or contrary to good taste or morals.
12. Court actions relating to censoring of pictures, or other censorship disputes, are not to be capitalized in advertising or publicity.
13. Titles of source materials or occupations or names of characters on which motion pictures may be based should not be exploited in advertising or upon the screen if such titles or names are in conflict with the provisions of the Production Code affecting titles.

REGULATIONS FOR ADMINISTRATION

(The following regulations were adopted by the Board of Directors of the Motion Picture Association of America, Inc., April 22, 1948, and amended June 21, 1950.)

1. These regulations are applicable to all members of the Motion Picture Association of America, Inc. (hereinafter referred to as the "Association"), subsidiaries of a member producing or distributing motion pictures, and to all producers and distributors of motion pictures with respect to each picture for which the Association has granted its Certificate of Approval, pursuant to an application therefor.

2. The term "advertising" as used herein shall be deemed to mean all forms of motion picture advertising and exploitation, and ideas therefor, including, among other things, but without limitation thereto, the following: press books; still photographs; newspaper, magazine and trade paper advertising; publicity copy and are intended for use in press books or otherwise intended for general distribution in printed form or for theater use; trailers; posters, lobby displays and other outdoor displays; advertising accessories, including heralds, throwaways, etc.; novelties; copy for exploitation tie-ups; radio and television copy.

The term "Company" as used herein shall be deemed to mean any person, firm or corporation.

3. All advertising shall be submitted to the Advertising Code Administration of the Association for approval before use, and shall not be used in any way until so submitted and approved as hereinafter set forth. All advertising shall be submitted in duplicate with the exception of press books, which shall be submitted in triplicate.

4. The Advertising Code Administration shall proceed as promptly as it finds feasible to approve or disapprove the advertising submitted on the basis of whether it complies with the Advertising Code.

The Advertising Code Administration shall stamp its approval on one copy of all advertising approved and return such stamped copy to the company submitting the same. If the Advertising Code Administration disapproves of any advertising, there shall be stamped the word "Disapproved" on one copy thereof, which shall be returned to the company submitting the same; or, if the Advertising Code Administration so desires, it may return the same with suggestions for such changes or corrections in the advertising as will cause it to be approved.

5. After advertising (as defined in Section 2 above) for a motion picture shall have been approved by the Advertising Code Administration, if circumstances arise, either before or after the picture's release, which in the judgment of the Administrator seem to require the withdrawal of all, or any portion of such previously approved advertising, then, after consultation with the Advertising Advisory Council, he shall immediately file a written report with the President and Secretary of the Association (a) setting forth the situation existing at the time such prior approval was granted for such advertising, (b) reciting the intervening circumstances with resultant changes in the situation, (c) listing the reasons why in the opinion of the Administrator all or a designated portion of the advertising previously approved should be withdrawn and (d) certifying that if such advertising were then being presented to him for the first time, it would not be approved by him under the Advertising Code for stated reasons.

If the President of the Association (or a Vice-President of the Association in the absence of the President), upon receipt of such report from the Advertising Code Administration, is of the opinion that the situation presented is sufficiently serious to justify consideration by the Board of Directors, the Secretary of the Association shall be instructed to call immediately an emergency meeting of the Board, at which meeting the Board shall sit as a Board of Appeal with adequate opportunity for the producer and/or distributor of the motion picture to appear in person or through a duly authorized representative and present reasons orally or in writing, or both, as to why the prior approval of the advertising should be affirmed, and with adequate opportunity for the Administrator of the Advertising Code to appear and present reasons, either orally or in writing, or both, as to why in his judgment all or a designated portion of such previously approved advertising should be withdrawn.

Thereafter, the Board, meeting in executive session with the producer and/or distributor of the picture not voting, shall determine by vote of a majority of the Directors present and voting, whether all or any portion of the previously approved advertising shall be withheld from use and/or withdrawn, and such action of the Board of Directors shall be final and binding upon the producer and/or distributor of said film.

When any previously approved advertising for a motion picture is withdrawn pursuant to action of the Board hereunder, the company withdrawing same shall be reimbursed the unrecoverable portion of its out-of-pocket expenditures for such advertising to the extent deemed equitable and proper under all the circumstances by the Board. The amount of such reimbursement shall be prorated among all members of the Association including the company affected on the same basis as dues to the Association are currently paid.

If neither the producer nor the distributor of said film is a member of the Association, then the non-member withdrawing such advertising shall be reimbursed the unrecoverable portion of its out-of-pocket expenditures for such advertising by the members of the Association to the extent deemed equitable and proper under all the circumstances by the Board.

6. Appeals. Any company whose advertising has been disapproved may appeal from the decision of the Advertising Code Administration, as follows:

Within 10 days after its advertising has been disapproved it shall serve notice of such appeal in writing on the Director of the Advertising Code Administration and on the Secretary of the Association. Said notice of appeal shall set forth the grounds upon which the appeal is taken. Within a reasonable time after the receipt of such notice by the Director of the Advertising Code Administration and the Secretary of the Association, the President or, in the event of his absence from the country or his inability to act, a board consisting of three members of the Executive Committee of the Board of Directors of the Association appointed by him, shall hold a hearing to pass upon the appeal. Oral and written evidence may be introduced by the company and the Advertising Code Administration. Oral argument shall be had at the hearing and written memoranda or briefs may be submitted by the company and the Advertising Code Administration. The President or said board, as the case may be, may admit such evidence as is deemed relevant, material and competent, and may determine the nature and length of the oral argument and of the written memoranda or briefs to be submitted. The President, or said board, as the case may be, shall decide the appeal as expeditiously as possible and shall notify the company and the Director of the Advertising Code Administration in writing of the decision. Such decision shall be final.

A company appealing from a decision of the Advertising Code Administration under Section 14 of the Advertising Code shall have the right, by written notice to the Secretary of the Association, to appeal directly to the Board of Directors of the Association, whose decision shall be final. The provisions relating to evidence, argument and written memoranda or briefs, set forth in these Regulations, shall apply to such appeals.

7. Any company to which these regulations are applicable, which publishes, or makes available for sale or lease, or which in any way uses advertising without prior approval as hereinabove provided, may be brought up on charges before the Board of Directors by the Director of the Advertising Code Administration, or by any of the following officers of the Association, viz.: the President, a Vice-President, the Secretary or the Treasurer. The company shall be entitled to receive a written statement of the charges and to a hearing before the Board of Directors. Within a reasonable time after the receipt of said statement of charges by the company, the Board of Directors of the Associaiton shall meet in a Special Meeting to hear and pass upon such charges. Oral and written evidence may be introduced by the company and by the Advertising Code Administration. Oral argument shall be had and written memoranda or briefs may be submitted by the company and by the Advertising Code

Administration. The Board of Directors may admit such evidence as it deems relevant, material and competent, and may determine the nature and length of the oral argument and of the written memoranda or briefs to be submitted. The Board of Directors, by a majority vote of those present, shall decide the matter as expeditiously as possible.

If the Board of Directors finds that the company has published, or made available for sale or lease or in any way used advertising without prior approval as hereinabove set forth, the Board may take one or more of the following actions:

a) Direct the Production Code Administration to void and revoke the Certificate of Approval granted by the Association for the picture so advertised and require the removal of the Association's seal from all prints of said picture, and the Production Code Administration shall thereupon do so;

b) Require the company, if a member of the Association, to pay to the Association as and for liquidated damages, not more than $100 for each publication, lease, sale or use of an unapproved item of advertising which has been published, made available for lease or sale or used, provided, however, that the total sum assessed for advertising relative to one motion picture may not exceed the sum of $25,000. The amount so assessed and collected shall be used by the Association for expenses incurred in the administration of the Advertising Code. It is recognized that any violation of the Advertising Code will disrupt the stability of the industry and cause serious damage to the Association and its members which cannot be definitively computed.

The decision of the Board of Directors shall be final.

8. Each company shall assume responsibility for seeing that all its employees and agents comply with these regulations.

THE ACADEMY IN '52

By CHARLES BRACKETT

President

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO, the motion picture industry, then in its 25th year and constantly referred to as "the infant industry," conceived and brought forth the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences. Its purpose in so doing was "to advance the arts and sciences . . . to represent to the public the point of view of the actual creators . . . to focus wide public attention on the best in motion pictures."

Among our many duties is the preservation and cataloguing of memorabilia which once seemed worthless, but which with the passing of years are becoming priceless relics. The motion picture industry, struggling to remain a money-making business and at the same time keep its standing as one of the arts, had little time for keeping its annals or collecting its souvenirs. The Academy has set about repairing this oversight and is constantly on the lookout for further material pertinent to the development of our business.

BRACKETT

Another of the Academy's tasks is to act as a kind of information bureau, furnishing data for universities and colleges. To this end we have established a research library which is regarded as the most comprehensive one of its sort in the nation. It is a treasure trove of books, magazines and original documents of value to any person or group seriously interested in the growth of the cinema.

We are the possessors and custodians of another sort of library—a collection of important films of the past. These great moving pictures are screened periodically for the Academy members and are of intense interest not only to members of our industry, but to student body groups, who may make special arrangements to view them. From year to year we are adding outstanding pictures to this collection.

The Film Forums, inaugurated in 1951 under the direction of a special committee headed by George Seaton, were continued in 1952. They have been highly interesting. Another important activity of the past year was the continued showing on the nation's screens of the series of industry documentary films, which were made under the sponsorship of the Academy.

During the year, the Academy played host to the distinguished group of motion picture personalities and executives from India who visited Hollywood, at a special screening of the first all-color film made in India. A delegation of educators from Germany who toured the United States under the auspices of the State Department, were guests of the Academy to inspect the contents of its library. The foyer of the Academy Awards Theater also housed a number of interesting exhibits during the year, notably one dealing with the work of the Teaching Film Custodians.

The high point of the Academy's year, of course, is the annual presentation of Awards. For one night a year our organization gets the breathless and respectful attention of a world-wide audience—an audience estimated at 90,000,000 listeners. And for weeks preceding that night, the lists of nominations are accorded column after column of speculation and comment.

Nothing short of a Presidential election is fed so much newsprint. The winning of an "Oscar" is estimated at being worth a million dollars to a picture, to be of incalculable value to an actor, a director, a producer, or a writer. But most of all, the spotlighting of the best the industry has produced in the entire preceding year is of extraordinary benefit to this business we love.

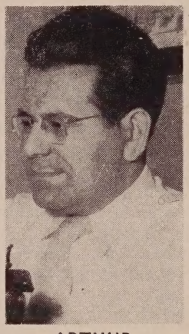
MPIC OF HOLLYWOOD—1952

By ART ARTHUR

Executive Secretary, Motion Picture Industry Council of Hollywood

THE MOTION PICTURE INDUSTRY COUNCIL of Hollywood has passed through another fruitful and eventful year—meeting many challenges and surviving several severe tests of the principles of unity upon which it was founded.

In the course of 1951 its wide ranging program reflected additional progress in areas of activity such as cooperation with government film agencies; steps to improve aspects of international relations; action to cope with the trying problems created by Communist attempts to infiltrate the screen; challenging unwarrented and irresponsible attacks in the press and in other areas of American life; making consistent efforts to present the constructive and affirmative picture of Hollywood; steadily expanding a Library of Information as an indispensable base for public relations activities and in general pursuing the purposes for which it was founded in 1949.



ARTHUR

As part of the cooperation extended to government film agencies the MPIC served as a channel between its member organizations and the State Department International Information Administration in meeting personnel needs calling for writers and other special consultants. Similar services were extended to various branches of the armed forces which conduct film operations.

Cooperation on the government level included special articles and other material in liaison with Washington offices of the Motion Picture Association, to Voice of America agencies desiring Hollywood stories for dissemination abroad, designed to correct misconceptions about the film capital. Among those contributing special articles as part of the program were Walter Pidgeon and Dore Schary.

In the field of international public relations other activities embraced arrangements to have Valentine Davies, Oscar winner and former president of the Screen Writers Guild, attend the First International Conference of Artists at Venice, Italy, as a U. S. Government representative for the motion picture industry; supplying constructive material about Hollywood to permanent industry representatives stationed overseas and developing a section of the Library of Information designed especially to illustrate how effectively American films serve the cause of Democracy abroad and refuting the ill-founded criticisms that Hollywood films do not present a balanced picture of America to other countries.

The problems forced upon Hollywood by the Communist plot against it continued to be among the most difficult the industry faced. Members of the MPIC took much satisfaction from activities during the past year which further reflected how vigorously and effectively the loyal Americans of Hollywood met the challenge. Individuals who were unfairly accused of Communist sympathies found avenues through which to clear their names. Other individuals who had mistakenly allied themselves with Communist causes in the past were assisted in correcting earlier errors.

As in the past, full support was given the House Committee on Un-American Activities by the MPIC as part of the drive to oust the last remnant of subversive elements from the Hollywood scene, including a public statement reprinted in trade paper ads headed "Once and For All" which repudiated a Communist effort to make it appear that Hollywood was opposed to the objectives of the committee.

In numerous other ways the influence of the MPIC resulted in policies and actions throughout Hollywood which struck blows against the last-gasp efforts of Communist plotters and reflected to the American people the genuine loyalty and Americanism of the real Hollywood.

It was with pride that the MPIC found itself being honored at the annual convention of the Theater Owners of America in a resolution which declared in part: "Resolved, that the Theater Owners of America acknowledge their debt and express their profound appreciation to the Motion Picture Industry Council of Hollywood for its successful battle to rid Hollywood of Communist infiltration and for the courageous support in the anti-Communist campaign by all the member organizations of the MIPC and their representatives."

Further reflecting the gains made in better acquainting the general public with Hollywood's opposition to Communism—and providing another encouraging note for the MPIC activities in this field—was a resolution passed by the Veterans of Foreign Wars at their 53rd National Encampment saluting the industry for having 'by its own acts placed itself in the forefront of the fight against Communism in the United States . . . for defeating the objectives of the Communist party of Hollywood" and commending the motion picture industry "for its example in fighting Communism."

Within the industry itself the MPIC forged ahead in its consistent program of working closely with COMPO; various exhibitor organizations and with individual exhibitors to strengthen ties between production and exhibition.

At the request of United Paramount Theaters the MPIC made available the material in its Library of Information for a highly-successful public relations program undertaken by UPT affiliates which resulted in editorials and news stories in leading newspapers all over the country with headings such as: "Hollywood Scores High in Number of Movie Hits," "Hollywood Setting New High for Number of Hit Films," "Hollywood Batting Average of Hits is Higher Than Ever," "Hollywood Hit Average Reaches All-Time High," "Hollywood Leads Entertainment Field With Record Number of Box Office Hits," "Hits Come Thick and Fast," "Hollywood Batting Average Tops Stage, Books, Music," "Movies Seen Best Relaxation Form."

Another typical set of headings in newspapers in all parts of the nation read as follows: "Hollywood Planning Banner Year, Survey Shows," "Vast Program is Launched by Movie Industry," "Notable Movies Coming —Partial List of Features on Which Hollywood Is Spending $350 Million Dollars," "Many Big Films Coming," "Hollywood Goes All Out To Combat Television Spread," "What The Movies Have That TV Hasn't— "Match These Films Against TV Programs," "City Theater Men List New $350,000,000 Film Schedule," "San Francisco Patrons To See Fine Film Array," "Theater Chain Claims Better Movies Coming," $350,000,000 in Budgets for Coming Screenplays—Producers Planning 340 Feature Films, 200 in Color, for Ambitious New Season."

Another typical press release in the same program, designed to show the importance of films in the war effort, resulted in impressive headings like: "Movies Get Early Korea Showing; Men Love Them," "Pre-Release Film Showings Boost GI's Morale in Korea," "Local Committee Reports on Films Shown in Korea," "Important As Hot Chow—Movies Vital Morale Factor For U. N. Forces in Korea," "GI's in Korea See Tops in New Films," "Fighting Men In Korea See Pictures First."

As in the past the MPIC continued to lend assistance to local exhibitors seeking to solve individual public relations problems in their own localities. An exhibitor in Pittsfield, Mass., who asked for and received material enabling him to challenge an unfair editorial wrote, "Enclosed please find tear sheet of the published reply which was used in its entirety. I wish to express my thanks for the wonderful help." An exhibitor in Texas who had utilized facts supplied via the MPIC to provide more-accurate information for a local columnist who had misjudged an industry problem, subsequently wrote, "This is just exactly what I was hoping would be done. I want to compliment the MPIC highly on the manner in which it was handled."

An exhibitor in Arkansas who had sought material illustrating the screen's constructive influence in order to answer criticisms from a local pastor reported his belief he was "making headway" and expressing thanks for "the wonderful help." An exhibitor in Nebraska who faced a similar problem with his local minister reported that the material had made it much easier for him to win the pastor over and that, after an hour long visit together, "a friendly understanding" had been reached.

In numerous other ways similar encouraging results were obtained through this form of exhibitor-MPIC collaboration. In addition, worthwhile facts and material were forwarded by the MPIC from time to time to various exhibitor bulletins and trade organization publications — an operation which merited considerable expansion, but which was handicapped by a lack of budget and facilities. Based on the conviction that the good results could be multiplied a thousand times over by making the same services available to every exhibitor in the country who desired them, the MPIC offered its full assistance in any similar program undertaken through and with COMPO, of which the MPIC is a charter member.

This resulted in approval of a resolution at the Dec. 10, 1952 meeting of the COMPO executive board that the board "do hereby accept and adopt the plan of the MPIC for the inauguration of a nation wide public relations program which shall utilize the proven abilities of the MPIC in the preparation of appropriate material based on its Library of Information; utilize the staff of COMPO for the dissemination of the material and coordination of the program in the field and utilize the unique contacts of exhibitors on the local level throughout the United States for final implementation." The matter of providing funds to get the program started was left in the hands of the COMPO Finance Committee.

Along with the activities outlined above, and others too numerous to be detailed within this limited space, the MPIC continued to provide speakers bureau services to the best of its limited resources—typical of which activity was the talk given by Richard Carlson before the annual convention of the National Association of Travel Organizations when the motion picture industry was presented with a special award of merit for its many valuable services.

Attention was also given toward assuring steady growth of the Library of Information —with particular emphasis placed upon preparation of key speeches dealing with vital topics and upon constant accumulation as well as dissemination of general material in an affirmative vein. Scarcely a day passed without the Library of Information being tapped for indispensible and indisputable facts which helped to solve problem after problem.

The assistance provided by the availability of the Library of Information files was further illustrated when the MPIC was requested to aid in supplying material covering the industry's public service record in connection with the presentation to the FCC by the National Theater Television Committee. Data furnished from the MPIC Library of Information brought comments like, "As always, this is a life saver—and a prompt one. Thanks a million for the material. It looks invaluable."

Similarly the resources of the Library of Information were drawn upon in Hollywood to provide some of the essential background needed to facilitate production of a short subject designed for showing before the House Ways and Means Committee urging repeal of the unfair 20 per cent admissions tax.

Within Hollywood itself the MPIC addressed itself to another vital area of its activities—that of providing a channel through which problems common to all of its member organizations could be explored. The virtually-unanimous stand of Hollywood organizations against the unjustified suit by the Department of Justice, designed to force the sale of films to television, was another reflection of the benefits obtained from availability of accurate information which member organizations could profitably study prior to shaping individual policies.

Even matters upon which member-organizations disagreed nevertheless benefitted from a basic policy reflected in the comment of Ronald Reagan, "You always gain when you find yourself talking to each other, instead of about each other."

On a dozen other fronts and in scores of other spheres the MPIC found itself increasingly being called upon for specialized services which gave satisfaction to its founders.

During 1952 Bill Thomas replaced Dore Schary as chairman of the MPIC Public Relations Committee, the latter having contributed three years of outstanding service in the post. Gunther Lessing made several striking contributions to MPIC progress in rounding out his term in office as president and was succeeded by Steve Broidy, with Arthur Freed next in line for the presidency.

The Screen Story Analysts' Guild joined the membership of the MPIC. The Screen Directors' Guild and the Artists Managers' Guild withdrew as members.

At the end of the year the membership of the MPIC consisted of the following: Association of Motion Picture Producers, Hollywood AFL Film Council, Independent Motion Picture Producers Association, Independent Office Workers, Screen Actors' Guild, Screen Producers' Guild, Screen Story Analysts' Guild, Screen Writers' Guild, Society of Independent Motion Picture Producers, Society of Motion Picture Art Directors, Unit Production Managers' Guild.

Despite the strain of operating under a budget which necessarily precluded many desirable activities and operational expansions, the MPIC had cause to feel, as it entered 1953, that it had successfully tested and proven much that could work toward the benefit of the industry as a whole. This was the feeling reflected in the resolution passed by the COMPO executive board and awaiting implementation by the COMPO finance committee. Thus the key to expansion and development on a nation-wide scale of the services developed in Hollywood for the good of all lay in whether or not the resources would be provided by other branches of the industry especially designed to function on the national level.

SMPTE IN 1952

By HERBERT BARNETT

President, Society of Motion Picture & Television Engineers

THE SOCIETY'S BASIC FUNCTION is impartial service to motion picture and television industries in engineering matters. It provides the instrument through which information is disseminated, technical problems are studied on an industry wide basis and through its committee work standards proposals are advanced.

The relationship of the Society with the entertainment use of motion pictures is well known but in addition to its services in that connection it maintains similar position in the applications of motion pictures and television in scientific and educational media. Developments and trends during the past year indicate an increasing need for services the Society is equipped to perform.

BARNETT

In 1952 growth in membership, convention attendance and interest in current technical developments were at an all time high. The Spring convention was held in Chicago and the October session in Washington. At both these conventions subject matter treated covered a wide variety of technical phases designed to be attractive to most of the Society's membership.

A special feature of the Washington meeting was an international symposium on high speed photography which is a most interesting phase of the Society's work relating to the scientific application of motion picture principles.

There was, throughout the year, a high level of interest demonstrated in connection with monthly meetings which are normally held in New York, Chicago and Los Angeles. Additionally there was gratifying activity in certain regional meetings such as that held in Dallas and in Atlanta together with the continuing growth of the sub-section in San Francisco.

It is hoped that these efforts will lead to the establishment of additional sub-sections where there is sufficient technical concentrations to justify such organizations.

Engineering committee work which is one of our most important activities continued investigations where industry wide services are desirable in the interest of improved performance and agreement on standard procedures. One of the highlights of the year was participation in meetings of the International Standards Organization held in New York during June. Working with the American Standards Association, Society's representatives assumed leadership in discussions of international standards pertaining to Cinematography. Delegates from Belgium, France, Germany and the United Kingdom participated with the United States. Results achieved were highly gratifying and of considerable significance.

It is apparent that 1952 will be remembered as the year in which the motion picture industry most clearly demonstrated its ingenuity in meeting and conquering a declining economy. Restoration of prosperity begun in the previous year continued at a pace sufficient to still the cries of doom so persistently voiced a few years ago. To whatever cause one may attribute box office slump, recovery has been a victory for improved industry cooperation, enterprising management, quality pictures and engineering development.

Particularly through trade associations there is an important trend toward intensive study of all phases of motion pictures as a basis for solution of industry problems and improvement in service. As never before, businessmen of this industry are keenly aware of the value of engineering developments and there is aggressive desire to understand the significance of new methods and processes.

Among the most important developments introduced in 1952 were Cinerama and stereo projection and the enthusiastic reception these innovations are continuing to receive. In the same period theater television made considerable progress toward establishing its usefulness in the exhibition field. It may be too early to fully evaluate the potentials of these but the aggressive imagination and support now being applied will afford every opportunity for careful and sound conclusions.

Public reaction to Cinerama and stereo demonstrates clearly tahat new methods of picture presentation are vital to growing prosperity of the theater. This fact represents a clear challenge to the engineer in this field, at the same time providing him with encouragement to apply his knowledge and imagination.

Two developments in television occurred during 1952 which are of direct interest to the Society. Hearings were initiated before the Federal Communications Commission designed to secure frequency allocations to serve as exclusive transmission facilities for theater television.

This petition was made on behalf of the Motion Picture Association of America and the National Exhibitors Theater Television Committee. The Society is not now an active participant in these hearings but many of its members have been cooperating unofficially in the behind the scenes preparation of technical and economic data to be presented.

It may be recalled that the Society initiated consideration of theater television requirements in 1944 when a special committee was formed for the purpose of assembling and disseminating technical information on this new medium. Subsequently the Society appeared before the Federal Communications Commission to state the Committee's determinations with respect to facility requirements for theater television systems.

Many of the recommendations made then form basis for the present petition before the F.C.C. In future television developments, the Society's principal responsibilities will relate to engineering problems associated with operations of television projection equipment in theaters, transmission requirements and the application of color to theater television.

Lifting of the freeze on granting of licenses and construction of broadcasting stations during 1952 was the second important television development for the Society. As new stations are placed in operation there will be an increasing need for the Society to step up its services to the television industry in the fields of films and film equipment, laboratory practice, studio lighting, camera techniques and many other related requirements.

It is extremely important that station personnel associate with the Society through membership and that the broadcast industry actively participate in studies, technical conventions, committee work and other Society functions so that their best interests may be properly served.

Rapid strides were made last year in advancement of motion pictures and television in education. Many factors have contributed to this, such as continued improvement in magnetic sound recording and the attendant improved flexibility in presentation, action by F.C.C. with respect to granting educational TV broadcast channels and increased attention to equipment problems. Above all these, however, enthusiastic cooperative efforts on the part of the several associations dealing with training methods and facilities have been most important.

The Society is cognizant of its responsibilities to this important field wherein there must be an increase in its services. Studies of equipment requirements, lighting—both screen and surroundings, screen sizes and optimum viewing conditions represent only a few of the contributions the Society can make. The full program of audio visual training will advance most rapidly through cooperative efforts of various educational associations and the Society.

As we view the future we look forward with considerable optimism and at the same time a recognition that much work lies ahead in realizing full potentialities available to both motion pictures and television. Realization is rapidly growing that these two arts have much in common and there is no longer a wide spread feeling that destructive competition will develop.

The Society feels a responsibility to both media in discovering and charting engineering factors of mutual concern to both activities. In doing so it will need and seek full cooperation of other segments of these industries. It is our earnest desire that every organization within the television and motion picture industries be well represented through membership in the Society.

A PRICELESS PUBLIC RELATIONS ASSET

By GEORGE MURPHY

President, Hollywood Coordinating Committee

THE 1946-52 POST-WAR patriotic and public service record of the Hollywood entertainment industry and its roster of artists through the HCC could well be regarded as a priceless public relations asset.

This seven-year period was completed last December with 1952 as the greatest 12 months in the history of the organization.

Each year since 1946 the progress chart has shown a consistent rise in the number of name personalities who have given more free personal appearances in conjunction with more projects and charitable causes worldwide.

During this post-war period the HCC has booked 14,996 gratis appearances of 2,461 individual guest artists on 4,858 programs.

A total of 3,256 separate requests from all parts of the globe for free talent have been received and screened in this seven-year span. Of that number 1,002 have been approved by the committee, either as one event or as a continuing year-round series of programs.

Last year 853 performers gave 3,157 appearances on 680 programs. This was an increase of nine per cent over 1951 totals which were larger than 1950, which were larger than 1949, and so on down the post-war years.

These increases reflect the willingness on the part of the industry and its talented personnel to give whole-heartedly of their time and art for the benefit of all branches of the armed forces, government and public service agencies and all recognized charitable, religious and fraternal causes.

It would be impossible to price tag this gratis service, and, equally difficult to compute the savings of time and money to the industry and players as a result of the HCC clearing house operation.

The 680 events in 1952 included the volunteer services of performers who were featured on 380 programs in the U. S. and abroad for all branches of the armed forces and government agencies as compared with 319 in '51. These programs were in the form of hospital, camp and overseas tours and visits to entertain military personnel.

Personal appearances in behalf of fund-raising benefits, both national and local, accounted for the balance. National organizations included Cancer Society, CARE, Cerebral Palsy, Crippled Children's Society, Christmas Seals, Boys Clubs, Community Chests, Heart Association, Infantile Paralysis, March of Dimes, Red Cross, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Salvation Army and United Jewish Appeal.

National conventions included American Legion, Disabled Veterans, Knights of Columbus, Shriners and Veterans of Foreign Wars.

The stars performed on 274 network and local broadcasts, live and transcribed, last year for all the named charitable causes, plus 257 radio programs shortwaved by the Armed Forces Radio Service. These totals amounted to a 60 per cent increase over the preceding 12 months.

I would like to present for the record in FILM DAILY YEAR BOOK of 1953 the names of volunteers who completed 32 overseas entertainment tours to the four corners of the world where GIs were stationed or hospitalized between 1948 and 1952:

December, 1948, Berlin—Bob Hope, Tony Romano, Jane Harvey, Tex McCrary, Jinx Falkenburg and Irving Berlin.

September, 1949, Germany & England—Yvonne DeCarlo.

December, 1949, Alaska—Bob Hope, Jimmy Wakely and Patty Thomas.

December, 1949, Honolulu—Al Jolson.

January, 1950, Germany — Donald O'Connor, Patricia Medina, Yvonne De Carlo, Peggy Castle, Leslye Banning, Jackie Coogan and Lois Andrews.

September, 1950, Far East—Al Jolson.

October, 1950, Far East & Alaska—Bob Hope, Marilyn Maxwell, Jimmy Wakely.

May, 1951, Far East—Jennifer Jones.

June, 1951, Far East—Jack Benny, Errol Flynn, Benay Venuta, Marjorie Reynolds and Frank Remley.

August, 1951, Far East—Audrey Totter.

August, 1951, Far East—Danny Kaye, Monica Lewis, Sam Prager.

When taps were sounded for World War II the HCC program settled back on the home front.

The job accomplished by Hollywood actors and actresses between December 1941 and December 1945 has been acclaimed far and wide.

The walls of the committee offices were covered with framed praise, and files were packed with letters and resolutions of thanks for everyone from everybody including the President of the United States.

During the last four years the scope of responsibilities and activities of the Hollywood Coordinating Committee has been expanded again to encompass the world.

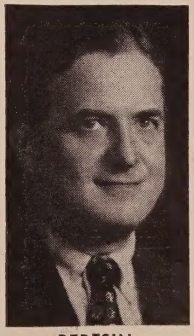
CARRYING VARIETY'S TENETS OVERSEAS

By JACK BERESIN

International Chief Barker, Variety Clubs International

AS A BOY ATTAINS his manhood so has Variety International matured in stature during the year 1952. The wonderful accomplishments of the existing tents of Variety International has inspired the interest of the world to such an extent that at this writing we have an application for charter from the city of Hamburg, Germany. We have requests for all the paraphernalia for forming a tent in Cairo, Egypt, and from the interest displayed all over the world, Variety will, in a reasonable length of time, be represented in the Middle East as well as it is now represented in the Far East and Europe. It seems as though the great Heart of Showbusiness will soon encompass the globe.

During the past year the great tent of Houston dedicated a Boys Club that is serving thousands of boys. This was a tremendous project which cost in the neighborhood of $200,000 and the building is probably the nicest of its kind in the entire country and something the entire city of Houston and the Variety Club of Houston can point to with great satisfaction.



BERESIN

Our very fine tent in Charlotte has dedicated the Variety Club Children's Clinic in the new wing of the Charlotte Memorial Hospital. On April 28, in the city of Las Vegas, a Vocational Training School for Crippled Children was dedicated. It was a remarkable tribute to the boys of Las Vegas that in a period of one short year they acquired this great charity.

It has been my privilege since being elected chief barker in May of 1952 to have traveled many thousands of miles and to have visited over 50 percent of our Variety tents. I am happy to report from my observations on these trips that our great Heart Report to be made in Mexico City in May of 1953 should greatly exceed the three million dollar pledge which was the total announced at our Heart Report in Las Vegas in 1952—this indeed is a magnificent accomplishment, and everyone in showbusiness can be proud of Variety.

We celebrated our 25th Anniversary in Pittsburgh last November and it brought a great surge of delightful memories to many of the old-timers. Twenty-five years is a long time—long enough for Catherine Variety

Sheridan to have grown to womanhood's estate—long enough for Variety to have expanded over a great nation, and pressed on across the seas to East and West. And yet, memory is so kind that it seems so shortly since the abandoned baby, in the Sheriden Square Theater, gave opportunity for 11 great showmen to lay the foundation for what is today an inspiring and ever increasingly valuable organization.

Fate plays her part in our lives in many strange ways—undoubtedly, something more powerful than man was responsible for the little bundle of joy that was abandoned in the Sheridan Theater in Pittsburgh 25 years ago. As a result of this event, hundreds of thousands of children have felt the warmth of the great Heart of Showbusiness and, as the international chief barker, it is with pride that I salute each and every one of the 10,000 men constituting this grand organization. These 10,000 men are the tallest men in the world—as no man is so tall as when he stoops to help a child.

OURS IS A YOUTHFUL INDUSTRY

By GEORGE SIDNEY

President, Screen Directors Guild

AS I LOOKED about me at the hundreds of people who shared this industry's good wishes to Adolph Zukor at a recent dinner held here in his honor, I marvelled again at the stamina of motion picture people.

I could pick out example after example of men who would be retired in any other business continuing to play after roles in our industry. Paradoxically enough, I believe, this is possible because ours is a youthful industry. It is not merely that such men as Jack Ford, Clarence Brown, C. B. DeMille, Adolph Zukor and Darryl Zanuck are men of youthful spirit, but that the industry that nurtures them continues to afford new and stimulating jobs.

SIDNEY

More than ever, now, it becomes apparent that the motion picture industry depends for its vigor and interest on the youthful approach, the daring and imagination of Hollywood's great directors most of them men of at least 20 years' experience behind the cameras.

I have been thinking of many of these men who have worked in the industry for all these years, yet whose work today, reflected in many an award-winning picture, is as creative and lively as it was then. It is interesting to examine current production in comparison with pictures in work 20 years ago and see that the directors who brought in the best pictures of 1932 are still bringing in the top pictures today.

The director's achievement stands out to an even greater degree when one realizes that he brings with him to each assignment only a highly developed special skill . . . nothing more. The men, who 20 years ago directed that decade's best pictures, did their work with entirely different stars, different equipment, different working conditions and entirely different "front office" requirements. A director is great because, whatever he may be given to work with, the end product of his labors bears the unmistakable imprint of both imagination and experience . . . the inspired creation of the one man who can blend all the ingredients.

The director in this year of 1953 is already being asked to work with new tools, new ideas and in new media. It is gratifying to see that the men who have set directorial standards for many years and whom the industry regards as its "old timers" in point of service, are in the vanguard of those ready and willing to use the new tools and work in the new media. The youth and vigor of these familiars is in just as much demand today for TV, three dimension or any technological variants that represent other approaches to the entertainment or educational problems of present day motion pictures.

Twenty years in the other direction cannot possibly alter the basic standards for fine direction or negate the value of a director's contribution to the making of screen entertainment. The seeds of greatness have been sown for the directors who will take over in the decades ahead . . . tomorrow's DeMilles and Fords and Stevenses are already beginning to thrust up here and there. And they, too, will bring to their assignments the same intuitive skill that is the true gift of the director and that is independent of star, studio, or story.

Add to this the leavening of experience and the entertainment media of 1973 will mark then, as now, the daring and imagination of the Hollywood director.

SAG IN 1952

By JOHN DALES, JR.
National Executive Secretary

THE SCREEN ACTORS GUILD in 1952 made substantial contributions to the general welfare of the motion picture industry and achieved unique gains for actors in films exhibited in television.

Under contracts negotiated during the year with all producers of entertainment films specially made for television, actors in the casts of these films are paid additional sums for the re-use of their films. The actor's original salary permits only two showings in each television viewing area. This is the first time in the history of the entertainment industry that the principle of additional payments to actors for re-use of their films has been established by contract between management and union.

In a different phase of this same interesting development, the Screen Actors Guild negotiated an agreement with independent producers for additional payments to actors for their television rights when a selected list of theatrical pictures was released to television.

Thus the Guild achieved contractual recognition of another principle adopted by its members some years ago, namely that actors in theatrical films must receive additional compensation if and when such films are sold for exhibition in television. There is sound reasoning back of this princple. In setting their individual salaries for work in theatrical films, actors certainly had not contemplated selling their services and permitting reproduction of their likenesses to advertise commercial products on television—no more than a film studio, in selling a picture to a distributor for use in theaters, would throw in television distribution rights without additional compensation.

During the year, the Screen Actors Guild negotiated and signed new contracts with all producers of theatrical films. This contract increased minimum salaries (e.g. day player up from $55 to $70 a day; free-lance player up from $175 to $250 a week), established preference of employment for professional actors in day player employment, and provided for separate bargaining for a separate contract for actors in films made specially for television.

Another "first" in 1952 for the Screen Actors Guild came when we won the right to represent actors in films by a national television network. It is the first time the Guild has had such relations with an employer outside of the established motion picture industry. In a National Labor Relations Board election to select a bargaining representative for actors employed by Columbia Broadcasting System in the Amos 'n Andy film series, the players selected Screen Actors Guild by a two-to-one majority over the contending union, then known as Television Authority, an organization of performers in live television.

Following this development, it was not long until the Guild was able to have settled once and for all the jurisdictional dispute in television which had plagued actors' unions for some years. The American Federation of Labor international of all actors' unions, Associated Actors and Artistes of America, popularly known as the Four-A's, rescinded a resolution of some years ago, which had sought to give to Television Authority the right to represent actors in television films, and the Four-A's confirmed the Guild in its historic position as the sole collective bargaining agency for actors in all forms of motion pictures, no matter how exhibited and specifically including television films. Television Authority, now merged into American Federation of Television and Radio Artists, has jurisdiction over actors in live television, as well as in radio.

This year-end review, while necessarily shortened by lack of space, would not be complete without mention of the Guild's constructive steps to help our industry fight the United States Department of Justice's Federal Court suit which seeks to force the motion picture industry to allow the free viewing on television of multi-million dollar theatrical motion pictures in direct competition with the theatrical box office.

In August, the board of directors of the Guild issued a statement policy strongly condemning the Department of Justice action. Often a resolution like this is voted and nothing is done about it. However, the Guild followed up through regular trade union channels and in September, the Guild in cooperation with the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees was successful in having the national convention of the American Federation of Labor approve unanimously the following resolution:

"Whereas, The making, distribution and exhibition of motion pictures have long provided and do now provide employment for many thousands of persons, and have been for many years and now are the principal means of entertainment for many millions throughout the United States of America; and brings direct benefit to every transportation agency, every tire and gasoline station, every restaurant, every grocery store, every drug store, every novelty shop, every news stand, every shoe shop, department store, dry goods store and garment shop, and is particularly important to real estate values; and

"Whereas, Motion pictures have been and now are a channel of communication, historically noted for promoting the democratic way of life throughout the world and acquainting the world with American progress; and

"Whereas, The United States Department of Justice has filed federal court action which seeks to force the motion picture industry to allow the free showing on television of multi-million-dollar theatrical motion pictures in direct competition with the theater box offices and if this illogical and arbitrary result should ensue, a great many of the 22,000 American motion picture theaters would be forced to close, with the result that film producers then would not have enough monetary returns to finance the making of quality theatrical pictures in which hundreds and sometimes thousands of American workmen are employed; and

"Whereas, This capricious and unreasonable court suit by the Department of Justice jeopardizes the livelihood of many of the 250,000 workers in the film industry, who for the most part are organized in A.F. of L. unions; now, therefore, be it

"Resolved, That the American Federation of Labor in convention assembled condemns the Department of Justice action against the motion picture industry; and be it further

"Resolved, That the convention instruct the A.F. of L. Executive Council to investigate all factors in the bringing of this unfair suit which jeopardizes the jobs of thousands of A.F. of L. members; and be it finally

"Resolved, That all A.F. of L. publications and news outlets be requested to give the widest possible publicity to this resolution."

The Screen Actors Guild looks forward to 1953 with confidence, even optimism. As always, we stand ready to assist every constructive move for the good of the motion picture industry.

THE SCREEN WRITER IN 1952

By RICHARD L. BREEN

President, Screen Writers' Guild

THE YEAR 1952 was a year of turmoil in the entertainment industry, brought about in the main by that enfant terrible television. Writers felt the repercussions in a jurisdictional struggle and the first writers' strike in many years.

The issue of jurisdiction was raised by a small group within a sister guild of the Authors League, which has been angered by the League's grant to the Screen Writers' Guild of jurisdiction over television west of the Rockies. They attempted to set up a separate TV guild outside the League and, through a certification petition to the National Labor Board, to prevent the Authors League-Screen Writers' Guild live TV contract with the networks from going into effect.

This contract had just been finalized after two years of negotiation in New York and was to have become effective Oct. 16, 1952. However, Labor Board hearings on the matter have recently been concluded, and we are confident the threatened disruption will serve only to unify writers more solidly than ever before.

In the field of film television a strike proved necessary to protect and preserve certain rights which screenwriters have for years strongly believed should be theirs. These rights can be lumped under the general heading of participation—in the profits from their creative efforts whenever, wherever and however used. Only in the field of theatrical motion pictures has the theory of the outright buy been allowed to deprive the writer of a say or a share in the multiform uses to which a single piece of literary material can be put.

A dramatist, a novelist, a short story writer, a radio writer—any other kind of writer—sells his material for a single use in a single medium and retains the right to dispose of it in any other medium as he sees fit and on his own terms. And writers everywhere were determined to prevent a repetition of the motion picture pattern in television. The film TV contract finally won by the Screen Writers' Guild and the Authors League is, we feel, a splendid base on which to build a stronger and more independent position for the writer of the future.

As to writers' prospects in 1953, the hungry maw of television looks mainly to the writer for sustenance, and in this we see a golden era of employment. But quality motion pictures will continue to require the best the writer has to offer, and in this field the truly creative artisan will still find the fullest opportunity for the expression of all his talents.

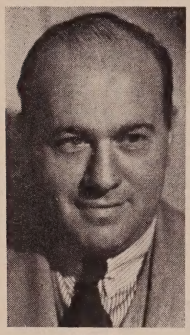
WE ACCEPT THE CHALLENGE

By SOL C. SIEGEL

President, Screen Producers Guild

IN THIS DAY OF original picture-making, third dimensional, Cinerama and all of the other novelties and devices which are to come, it is well for the Industry to bear in mind that there will be no substitute for a really good picture.

Granted that the technical devices that appear to be on the horizon will be "a shot in the arm" to the industry—and a much needed one—we must not lose sight of the fact that there are no technical devices yet created to substitute for a good story, well directed and produced. This fact must be borne in mind particularly by management in their zeal for discovering new production methods.



SIEGEL

The chips are down, and those producers who can perform during this crucial period will find their natural levels; conversely, those who cannot will also find theirs.

It is rare in any industry to find the spotlight of responsibility turned on full blast on any particular group of men as the producers of this industry face today. The plain unadorned fact is that we are on the spot and we welcome it.

We believe that technical improvements in our industry will unquestionably help, but after the public has absorbed and become accustomed to viewing the novelties in the exhibition of film, they will still come down to the basis of whether or not they have seen a good picture. This is the goal that the producer must never lose sight of. The challenge is here, and we accept it.

No towns forbid shows by local ordinance, although some of smaller towns do not have Sunday shows.

Connecticut

Local option throughout the state. Hartford and Danbury do not allow Sunday matinees, but theaters open at five p.m. State passed bill in 1937 permitting theaters to remain open Sunday night until 11 p.m. instead of 10:30, and in 1945 further liberalized law permitting opening at 1 p.m. instead of 2 p.m. and closing at 11:30 p.m.

Delaware

Legislature defeated bill in 1937 for statewide Sunday films instead of local option. 1941—Repealed Blue Laws—provides local option for Sunday movies between noon and 6 p.m. and Blackshear permitted American Legion to show Sunday pictures but city council rescinded ordinance.

No state statute prohibiting showing of motion pictures on Sunday and no law legalizing such showing, but all towns run shows on Sunday.

Nebraska

Legalized by local option. Sunday shows forbidden in Stromsberg. Town council opened Arnold for Sunday shows Jan. 18, 1937. Beatrice voted for Sunday pictures April 3, 1940.

Nevada

No state legislation against Sunday amusements.

New Hampshire

State passed Sunday sports and entertainment bill in 1931 and individual cities and towns vote on it. 1943 legislature passed law permitting theaters to open Sunday afternoons at 1 p.m. by local option, instead of 6 p.m.

New Jersey

Blue laws repealed in 1933. Towns which have local ordinance prohibiting Sunday shows: Belvedere, Blairstown, Frenchtown, Highbridge, Jamesburg, Metuchen, Ocean Grove, Peapack, Ridgewood, Upper Montclair, Westfield, Nov. 8, 1938—Montclair by referendum vote made Sunday movies legal. State removed ban on Sunday shows in Princeton to provide recreation for men in Army and Navy training camps.

New Mexico

Bill passed 1931 legislature legalizing Sunday showings and prohibiting local option measures from closing theaters.

New York

Home rule law by which towns and cities are legalized to show motion pictures on Sunday after 2 p.m., provided local ordinance is enacted to this effect by local legislative body and ratified by direct vote of people at special election. Under this law leading towns and cities show pictures on Sunday.

North Carolina

Not legalized. State law, city ordinances and public opinion opposed to Sunday pictures. The following towns do have Sunday shows Asheville, Benson, Chapel Hill, Dunn, Durham, Elizabeth City, Henderson, High Point, Louisburg, Plymouth, Raleigh, Robersonville, Scotland Neck, Tarboro, Williamston. Sunday films legalized for Cherokee County in 1937. Numerous towns have Sunday shows and a per cent of the proceeds is given to charity. 1939—Sunday closing law repealed in Johnston and Hyde counties. Law also passed 1939 prohibiting Sunday shows in Yadkin county and Sunday movies in Northampton between 1 and 6 p.m. City Council of Sanford approved Sunday closing in 1940. Sunday movies permitted in Charlotte and Salisbury in 1941.

North Dakota

Ohio

Legalized showing on Sunday. Forbidden in Bayesville and Cambridge. On June 18, 1940 Supreme Court of Ohio upheld rights of municipalities to forbid Sunday shows. Wellsville resumed Sunday pictures September, 1946 after being closed since 1914.

Oklahoma

Legalized by local option.

Oregon

Legalized by local option to run shows on Sunday. No closed situation known.

Pennsylvania

Sunday opening law passed in 1935. Legalized by local option. 1941 legislature changed law providing referendum be held every 4 years instead of 5 on request of 20 per cent of highest vote cast for any candidate (old law 5 per cent).

November, 1945 general election opened 15 municipalities to Sunday shows out of 31 voting on question.

November, 1947 general election opened Sunday films in Harrisburg, Altoona, Baden, Bensalem Township, Blakely, Cheswick, Clarion, Columbia, Harrison Township, Jermyn, Jutztown, Laceyville, Lehighton, Marietta, McDonald, Nazareth, Perryville, Phoenixville, Rochester, Tarentum, Tinoesta, Wampum, Wind Gap and York, among others. Proposal was defeated in some 26 towns. November, 1949, general election opened many more places to Sunday films.

November 6, 1951, election legalized Sunday showings in: Butler, Bellevue, Brighton Township, Bedford Township, Butler Township, Summit Township, Osceola Mills, Wayne Township Washington Township, Neshannock Township, Greenville, Franklin Township, Oxford Township, Kenett Square, Scot Township, Loyalsock Township, Montgomery, Hamilton Township, Norristown, Lehigh Township, Shamokin, Mount Carmel Township, Schickshinny, Bangor Township, Palmyra Township, Westfall Township, Berwick, Birmingham, Springfield Township.

The following communities retained the ban: Rural Valley, Everett, Antis Township, Fairview Township, South Fork, State College, College Township, East Brady, Bradford Township, Greene Township, Somerset, Lewisburg, Claysvile, Philipsburg, Mercer, Middletown, Lansdale, Danville, Northumberland, Milton, Schuylkill Haven, Selinsgrove.

Rhode Island

Legalized by local option. 1943 legislature passed law permitting theaters in Providence and several other communities to open at 1 p.m. instead of 2 on Sunday.

South Carolina

Legislature in 1947 passed bill permitting Sunday films after two p.m., except between seven and nine p.m., in cities of 62,000 or more population.

South Dakota

Has state law prohibiting Sunday pictures. Local option has over-ruled this law, however, and pictures are shown on Sunday in all principal towns.

Tennessee

Governor signed bill repealing blue laws in 1935, permitting Sunday opening by local option. However, not many operate.

Theaters in Maryville, Tenn., have started operating on Sunday. (Dec. 1951.)

Texas

Governor signed bill legalizing Sunday pictures which became effective in 1931, subject to local option. Prior to passage of law, majority of principal towns were open. Most towns now have Sunday shows.

Utah

No law preventing showing of pictures on Sundays. Former state statute made it illegal to operate a theater on Sunday, but this statute was repealed in 1925. Local option bill was subsequently introduced, but failed to pass.

Vermont

Law permitting Sunday movies after 6 p.m. passed in 1939. 1941 legislature eliminated necessity for voting every year on Sunday amusements, except on petition of 5 per cent of voters.

Virginia

Motion pictures are exhibited on Sunday in Richmond, Norfolk, and various other Virginia cities usually after juries and test cases have failed to convict the exhibitor. In Williams v. Commonwealth 179 Va. 741, decided in 1942, the Supreme Court of Appeals of Virginia approved the operation of Sunday movies where the proceeds were devoted to charity and three members of the Court, in a concurring opinion, held that the defendant was engaged in a "work of necessity," within the meaning of the Virginia Sunday Observance Law. The effect of this concurring opinion has been far reaching in discouraging prosecutions for the exhibition of motion pictures on Sunday.

Washington

Sunday opening not legalized except in Colfax where old statute providing Sunday closing was attempted to be enforced, but was defeated. Theaters close in Pullman on Sunday evenings as result of friendly arrangement with people of Normal School of Pullman. Theaters throughout state operate without interference. There are no Sunday closing ordinances.

West Virginia

Not legalized, but all principal cities show pictures on Sunday which include Charleston, Bluefield, Huntington, Williamson (theaters in last city open after closing of church in morning and close prior to evening service). Forbidden by local ordinance in Lewisburg, Milton, and Ronceverte.

Wisconsin

Blue laws repealed in 1933.

Wyoming

No state law concerning motion pictures.

. . . the mark of a technical and craft publication devoted to better visual and sound reproduction. Excellence of editorial content, an outstanding feature of which is the very latest news of and views upon reproducing equipment and technique. Published exclusively for projectionists and affiliated technical personnel — the only technically-minded people in the theatre and a group that exerts profound influence upon the purchase of reproducing equipment, from screen to projection room.
